Mount Vernon.
Shrine Should Remain Under Present Control.

Indianapolis Star.
Some patriotic societies in Virginia have conceived the idea that it is unworthy of the nation that a fee shall be charged for admission to that patriotic shrine, Mount Vernon, the home of Washington, and are organizing a movement to secure an appropriation from the national government that will be sufficient to maintain the place without cost to the pilgrims who visit it. This, of course, means that it would sooner or later have to be national property.

Mount Vernon now is owned and managed by an association of women who, from patriotic motives, many years ago obtained possession of several hundred acres of the estate, including those on which are the buildings and old garden, and gradually put the place in order and refurbished the mansion. The expenses are considerable, because it is necessary to employ many workmen to keep the grounds and buildings in shape and many guards to prevent the ravages of relic-hunters. The work is well done, as visitors know, for the place is always in beautiful order. The admission fee is but 25 c, and certainly no reasonable person could complain of this. It does not appear, in fact, that any one has complained, but only that it seems better to these Virginians that the shrine should be free to the public.

It seems a mistaken idea. The association of women labored hard to secure the present conditions, and the government could make no improvement on them. On the contrary, if the place were left to perfunctory official supervision, with free admission to every one, the probability is that it would soon lose much of its present beauty and charm through carelessness and neglect. It is in good hands now and should be left there.

Forced Into Exile.
Wm. Upchurch of Glen, Okla., was an exile from home. Mount air, he thought, would cure that frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for Coughs and Colds, it dispels Hoarseness and Sore Throat. Cures Grip, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Asthma Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1.00, trial bottle free, guaranteed by Graham Drug Co.

Enlightenment.
Mrs. Boggs—Henry, did you hear about Mr. Jones? Mrs. Smith was telling me this afternoon how—
Mr. Boggs—That's just like you women, gossiping about things that don't concern you, and I suppose you have the story all mixed up, anyway. Now, I got the whole thing straight at the cigar store and the barber shop, and the facts in the case were like this: It seems that, etc.—Puck.

A correspondent writing from Linville Falls to the Charlotte Observer says that within the past ten days forest fires have swept over the mountains in that section, doing much damage to timber and endangering houses. No loss of buildings is reported.

When Women Smoke Pipes.

New York Press.
Many pioneer wives and widows got the habit of smoking tobacco from dreary loneliness and nervousness from fear of Indians in their cabin homes, while the men folk were away hunting or at work in distant clearings. Toothache was another cause of getting the tobacco habit. Their only dentistry was to snatch a tooth out with a string, kill the nerve with a red hot knitting needle, or take a chew or a smoke of tobacco, and so got the tobacco habit if toothache lasted several days. It was a common sight in the old days to see a grand old lady riding horseback, with a little negro on the same horse behind her, her body servant, with nothing to do except to eat, sleep, sit around the fire, keep the hearth clean with a turkey wing, and light the old lady's pipe with a small pair of ember fire tongs. Sometimes elegance was added to this function by having a little darkey dressed up in red velvet breeches and zouave jacket, like a little Turk or Nubian Arab. Corncob was the favorite and only pipe.

Women Swimmers.

Philadelphia Bulletin.
"The Korean women are the best swimmers in the world," said a life-guard. "The Korean pearl diving is in their hands. They swim—they don't boat—they swim out to the pearl fisheries of Quelpart lugging baskets with them. After this swim of half an hour they dive down fifty feet and fetch up queer one-shelled pearl oysters as big as babies. They dive till their baskets are full—the baskets are corked to keep them afloat—and after three or four hours work they swim back home with their catch. The big one-shelled oysters are valuable as pearl mines and as food, too. A half dozen Koreans will sit down to an oyster as gayly as you or I sit down to a boiled lobster. Sometimes when the great shell-fish is eaten raw it quivers and moans slightly as the knife is plunged into it."

Foley's Honey and Tar
