Gripped in a Storm.

A Tidal Wave, Blizzard and Snow Storm Sweeps New England and the Coast.

A Number of Parsons Dead—Railroads Tied Up—Shipping Fares Badly—Worst in New York in Twenty Years.

New York Dispatch, Dec. 27.

The work of repairing the damage wrought by the storm of the last two days was taken up today in half a dozen states. Millions of dollars damage has been done by the blizzard and tidal wave that have buffeted the east and the Atlantic coast. 17 persons today are known to be dead in New York alone as the result of this, the worst storm of two decades. Thousands of miles of railroads have been tied up and wire communications throughout the affected region crippled.

Gigantic efforts are being put forth by every railroad and telegraph company to bring order out of chaos. Conditions are being slowly remedied.

It is feared that the death list will mount considerably higher, as the details of the storm's effects arrive.

Fresh reports of the havoc today show that the storm is the worst that has been experienced since the New York blizzard of 1888.

In New York City alone today 7,000 men are working with might and main to clear the streets of the banked snow. Many of these have been laboring constantly for 36 hours. Trains, delayed from 2 to 12 hours, began arriving early today on the various lines entering New York. The Pennsylvania lines, as far as Washington; the New York Central, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford roads were the principal sufferers, and at places traffic on these lines was practically abandoned during the storm, while all energy was devoted to clearing the right-of-way. As a result the trains were moving slowly.

Reports received today from New England paint the storm as the worst of many years. Lives are reported lost in the 14-foot tidal wave which did immense damage. Many Massachusetts cities were in darkness last night.

In Philadelphia the situation was almost as serious, all surface traffic being blocked and the steam road services demoralized. 5,000 persons spent Saturday night in the Broad St. station, and last night the situation was almost as bad.

In Greater New York today dozens of automobiles and taxicabs were claimed by their owners and drivers who had been forced to abandon them in the streets, unable to plough through the snow-drifts. Hundreds of belated passengers today made their way into New York from hotels and farm houses in the outlying districts, where they had been forced to take refuge when the blizzard tied up all traffic. Throughout New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland the full extent of the damage was sustained. From all sources stories of suffering and tremendous loss came today in a steady stream.

In the Hudson river many vessels at anchor have been dragged perilously near shore.

In Long Island Sound the situation is even worse, a record-breaking tide having added to the storm's effects.

Damages to scores of coasting vessels, big and little, were reported today.

The full force of the blizzard was felt along the coast. Ice caked ships from hundreds of miles to the north of New York to below Baltimore were forced to struggle to keep afloat and today limped into ports.

In the tenement districts of New York suffering was especially intense. Today every charitable organization in New York took up the task of alleviating the suffering of the poor. Facilities for feeding the homeless were arranged as well as the distribution of clothing and other supplies.

Many of the victims of the storm here were wayfarers who were struggling to make their way home. Exhausted, they fell and were overcome, to be found hours later, with life extinct.

The New York Central's crack train, the Twentieth Century Limited, was 40 minutes late today and most of the other New York Central trains from the west were an hour or more behind time.

The Pennsylvania's fast trains were for the most part delayed from two hours up.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28, 1909.
Congress has adjourned for a Christmas vacation after a brief and uneventful pre-holiday session. But little legislation has been enacted and only one appropriation bill, that for the District of Columbia, has been passed. This appropriation is considerably less than that for the past year and there is promise that the other appropriations will show a proportionate reduction. There is much talk of economy at the White House, at the Capitol and in the departments, but in the national, as in family affairs, an economical program is difficult and it will generally be found in the end that both the family and the nation have lived up to their income and all they can borrow.

As was expected, there will be a congressional investigation of what is now known as the Ballinger-Pinchot feud. Mr. Ballinger has requested such an investigation in a formal letter to Senator Jones of the State of Washington, stating in his letter that the investigation should embrace the forest service, meaning Pinchot, inasmuch as he (Ballinger) believes that the pernicious activity of certain of its officers has been the source of inspiration of these charges.

In an executive session of Senate, Senator Gore, the blind Senator from Oklahoma, offered a resolution providing for an investigation and directing that a committee of eight Senators, whom he named, with a like number of members of the House, should conduct an investigation of the general Land Office and the Forest Service with respect to stone, timber, coal and mineral lands and water power sites. The Senators named by Mr. Gore: Nelson of Minnesota; Dolliver of Iowa; Lodge of Massachusetts; Bristow of Kansas; Root of New York; Tillman of South Carolina; Stone of Missouri; and Owen of Oklahoma. If these Senators shall be appointed and a comparatively strong committee of the House shall be named to act with them, there can be no doubt of an investigation that will go to the bottom of this question, a question of great interest to all the people of the United States, concerning as it does all that remains of the splendid natural resources of the best endowed country on this planet.

There is important significance in the news that became public this morning that the President will in a special message, after Christmas, indicate that no necessity exists for changing the Sherman Anti-trust law dealing with combinations in restraint of trade. The President is countermarching on this proposition and taking a view of the question opposed to that of his predecessor. It is said that the President has been influenced in arriving at his new conclusion by the attitude manifested toward the law courts by Gompers, Mitchell and others, since their conviction for contempt of court.

During the past few weeks the New York Custom House has attracted almost as much attention as the Congress of the United States. Mr. Loeb, Roosevelt's late secretary, as Commissioner of Customs, has been a veritable bull in that china shop, overturning the scales of the sugar trust and ripping up steamer trunks and scattering the landing piers of the great steamers with Parisian hats, lingerie, gowns, jewelry, hoisery, and other sacred stuff with his sacrilegious horns. It is believed that the general public regards smuggling by private persons, especially if they are ladies, with complacency. There is a general feeling that every woman has a right to buy what she likes anywhere and that it is an interference with a natural right to make her pay for it a second time when she attempts to introduce it into her own so-called free country, but Mr. Loeb, no doubt, has the law and dots on thousands of elegant globe trotters, who have long been in the habit of outfitting themselves in Paris and London instead of patriotically paying the higher prices in their home shops. There is no doubt that the custom House is the greatest of all monopolies in restraint of trade. If all countries would abolish their custom houses, their war navies might not rust to the water's edge.

You are liable to an attack of some form of Bowel Complaint and should provide yourself with the best known Remedy, Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam. Warranted by Graham Drug Co.

Value of Property and Tax Assessment in the State.

Raleigh Dispatch:
That real estate, personal property and corporation valuations for taxation in North Carolina aggregate $576,115,170, on which the State levy in taxes is $1,209,841, with other general and local taxes that round up $8,627,574 taxes paid by the people of the State, is the showing made by the State tax commission in its annual report to Governor Kitchin. This report does not include about $325,000 license taxes paid directly to the State Treasurer. The increase of total valuation of all property over last year is $744,857, in spite of a shrinkage in the valuation of personal property amounting to $2,151,431.

Increase in tax valuations since 1901 is $234,893,161, or 68 per cent. During the same time the increase in industrial corporations has been 133 per cent., public service corporation 90 per cent., and banks and building and loan associations 154 per cent.

The commission declares at present the danger is toward unlimited and unrestricted rates on property subject to the tax rates imposed for every purpose and often aggregating rates in special tax districts which, applied to properties listed at true valuation, makes excessive and unjust taxation. The commission informs the Governor that it observes with regret that the tax rate is not diminishing with the increase of assessments. The average rate now borne by all property in the State, not including municipal taxation, is 1.105, and when municipal tax is added, using many large towns as examples, the rate is 2.20 to 2.41 per cent. of the assessed value of the property taxed.

Five Years For Hiram Elliott in the Guilford Murder Case.

Statesville Landmark.
The case against Hiram Elliott and Dan Coble, charged with killing Simpson Coble in Guilford county a few weeks ago, was tried in Guilford Court last week. Coble was acquitted; Elliott was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

The murdered man was a son of Dan Coble and a brother-in-law of Elliott. The latter testified that his father-in-law had nothing to do with the killing and knew nothing of the trouble until afterward. Elliott said that Simpson Coble attacked him with a knife and he struck him in self-defense, inflicting injuries which caused his death. The killing was brutal. The murdered man was allowed to lie in a gully in a dying condition for some time, Elliott making no effort to secure help for him. Under the circumstances it is questionable if justice has been done.

WHAT IS JUSTICE?

By MAURICE MAETERLINCK, Philosopher and Dramatist

"WITHIN me there is more," runs the fine motto inscribed on the beams and pediment of an old patrician mansion at Bruges, which every traveler visits.

And so, too, might man exclaim, "Within me there is more"—EVERY LAW OF MORALITY, every intelligible mystery.

There may be many others above and below us, but if these are to remain forever unknown they become for us as if they did not exist, and should their existence one day be revealed to us, it can only be because they already are in us, ALREADY ARE OURS. "Within me there is more," and we are entitled to add perhaps, "I have nothing to fear for what is within me."

This much is at least certain—that the one active, inhabited region of the mystery of justice is to be found within ourselves. Other regions lack consistency. They are probably imaginary and must inevitably be deserted and sterile.

They may have furnished mankind with illusions that served some purpose, BUT NOT ALWAYS WITHOUT DOING HARM, and though we may scarcely be entitled to demand that all illusions should be destroyed, they should at least not be too manifestly opposed to our conception of the universe.

Today we seek in all things the illusion of truth. It is not the last or perhaps the best or the only one possible, but it is the one which we at present regard as the most honorable AND THE MOST NECESSARY.

In the heart of every man there exists an admirable love of truth and justice, and, as we observe its incessant activity in the depths of our heart, as we watch it blending with all we think and feel and do, we shall quickly discover which are the things that throw light upon it and which those that plunge it in darkness, which are the things that guide it and which those that lead it astray; we shall learn what nourishes AND WHAT ATROPHIES, what attacks and what defends.

Is justice no more than the human instinct of preservation and defense? Is it the purest product of our reason or rather to be regarded as composed of a number of those sentimental forces which so often are right, though directly opposed to our reason—forces that in themselves are a kind of unconscious, vaster reason, to which our conscious reason invariably accords its startled approval when it has reached the heights whence those kindly feelings long had beheld what itself was unable to see?

IS JUSTICE DEPENDENT ON INTELLECT OR RATHER ON CHARACTER?

All men love justice, but not with the same ardent, fierce, exclusive love, nor have they all the same scruples, the same sensitiveness OR THE SAME DEEP CONVICTION.

We meet people of highly developed instinct in whom the sense of what is just and unjust is infinitely less delicate, less clearly marked, than in others whose intellect would seem to be mediocre, for here a great part is played by that little known ill defined side of ourselves that we term the CHARACTER, and yet it is difficult to tell how much more or less unconscious intellect must of necessity go with character that is UNAFFECTEDLY honest.

The point is to increase within ourselves our DESIRE for justice, and it is certain that, at the start, our character is less directly influenced by our desire for justice than is our intellect, the development of which this desire in a large measure controls, and the co-operation of the intellect, which recognizes and encourages our good intention, is necessary for this to penetrate into and mold our character. That portion of our love of justice therefore WHICH DEPENDS ON OUR CHARACTER will benefit by its passage through the intellect, for in proportion as the intellect rises and acquires enlightenment will it succeed in mastering, enlightening and transforming our minds.

How shall we then increase and purify within ourselves the desire for justice?

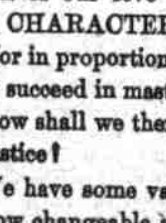

We have some vague conception of the ideal we would approach, but how changeable still and illusory is this ideal! It is loosened by all THAT IS STILL UNKNOWN to us in the universe, by all that we do not perceive or perceive completely, by all that we question too superficially.

BY LEARNING TO KNOW OURSELVES, BY NOT ACTING UNTIL THEN, AND THEN ACTING ONLY IN ACCORDANCE WITH ALL OUR DESIRES, HAVING GREAT CARE ALWAYS THAT WE DO NOT INJURE OUR NEIGHBOR, SHALL WE AT LAST BE ABLE TO KNOW WHAT JUSTICE IS.

A Poem for Today

THE SIN OF OMISSION

By Margaret E. Sangster

It isn't the thing you do, dear;
It's the thing you've left undone
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten.
The letter you did not write.
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts tonight.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say;
The gentle touch of the hand, dear;
The chill and winnowing tone
That you had no time nor thought for,
With troubles enough of your own.

The little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind;
These chances to be angels,
Which every mortal finds;
They come in sight and silence,
Each chill, reproachful writh,
When hope is faint and sagging
And a night has dropped on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great
To suffer our slow companion
That tarry until too late.
And it's not the thing you do, dear;
It's the thing you leave undone
Which gives you the bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.

President Taft has been having considerable to say about government economy, but reports come from Washington that indicate that the expense will be greater than under Roosevelt's administration.

Col. James Gordon has been appointed U. S. Senator by Gov. Noel of Mississippi to succeed Senator A. J. McLaurin who died suddenly last week. Col. Gordon is a Confederate veteran. A reward of $10,000 was offered by the Federal authorities at close of the civil war for his capture dead or alive, it having been charged that he conspired with J. Wilkes Booth for the assassination of President Lincoln. The suspicion arose from the fact that in the earlier years of the war Col. Gordon and Booth were intimate friends.

Fighting Tuberculosis.

Raleigh Evening Times.
There is a war now in progress in the United States, the importance and significance of which is realized by few people and the outcome of which is regarded in a listless and desultory manner. This war is a bloodless one and its object is not to kill but to make live. Tuberculosis, the scourge of the United States, the disease whose ravages are more to be feared than an invasion of a hostile army, and the disease which draws a larger toll of human life than any other in this country, is being rounded up and if the interest of the people at large can be aroused, the near future will see consumption under control and the average life of the American citizen lengthened to a great extent. Tuberculosis is a preventable disease and The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has undertaken a mighty task, which has for its purpose the education of the American people to the fact that tuberculosis can be prevented if not wholly stamped out. The association, organized in the spring of 1904, has grown until nearly every physician in the country has allied himself with the movement and laymen from every section are waking up to the dangers of a disease which causes annually over 150,000 deaths in this country, and are joining the organization to help fight the "Great White Plague." There are several traveling exhibitions on the road and over 500,000 people have seen these exhibits. These go from state to state, putting before the people in the clearest and plainest way information which can be gained from no other source except direct contact with the disease.
