It Was at the Bottom of a Plot

"Goodby, Harold."
"Goodby, Alice."

These, and these alone, were the parting words between Harold Rothwell and Alice Swain, for their hearts were too full to say more. They were to have been married within a few months, but Rothwell had developed pulmonary trouble, and it was decided that he should go west and live an outdoor life. The prospect before them was gloomy. Even if Harold recovered his health the giving up of prospects he was leaving might keep him in poverty and necessitate their continued separation. He turned away and set out for the railway station. Alice watched him till he reached a bend in the road, when he turned and threw her a kiss. She returned it, and he passed out of sight. And as they were, they would have been far more so had they known what would happen before the should meet again.

But that day two years hence found Rothwell financial manager for Henry Palmer, a rancher, though but just appointed to the position. Rothwell had long been a sheep herder for Palmer, and the out-of-door life had completely cured him of his ailment. As soon as it was considered safe for him to lead a more confined life Palmer, who had taken a great fancy to him and who needed a clerk, put him in charge of the financial part of his ranching. Then Rothwell wrote to Alice Swain that within another year he hoped to return for her and bring her back with him.

The ranch was not a large one, and the owner and his clerk were the only two persons engaged upon it except a few herdsmen, who were always in care of the flocks. The men became very warm friends and were almost constantly together. One day Palmer said to his clerk:

"You know, Harold, that I am a bachelor and have no one in the world to leave what belongs to me. I'm going to make a will bequeathing this ranch and the stock on it to you."

Rothwell smiled. "Considering that you are but ten years older than I and are stronger, I think I would better leave my possessions, if I had any, to you."

"Furthermore," Palmer continued without noticing the comment, "there are five $1,000 bonds, which will also be yours. These bonds, together with some old family trinkets, I have placed in hiding, and I am going to show you where they are hidden. They, too, will go to you at my death."

He led the way to the attic and from a recess formed by a corner in the roof between two joists took a tin box, opened it and showed Rothwell the bonds and the trinkets referred to. The latter consisted of a gold watch bearing the initials H. P. and some articles of jewelry.

"You are very kind," said Rothwell, "to make me your heir; but, as I have said, I don't think there is the slightest chance of my ever receiving my inheritance."

"There is a better chance than you think," said the other.

Rothwell looked at him inquiringly, but received no further confidence. Palmer replaced the box, and the two men returned to the lower story. Then Palmer opened a safe kept on the premises, took out a will, showed Rothwell that it was in his favor, put it back and closed the safe door.

"Why," asked Rothwell, "don't you keep the bonds and the other things in the safe?"

"I have a special reason for not keeping them there. As to the watch and jewelry, it doesn't much matter where they are kept. Some day you may learn the reason. So long as I live I can trust you not to disturb the box in the garret, and after my death what it contains may be of some benefit other than for its intrinsic value."

"To whom?"

"That will appear at the time." That was not very satisfactory, but Rothwell was obliged to be satisfied with it.

It was but a few weeks after this that Rothwell, having got in some funds for the sale of sheep, rode to the town some days later. He deposited the money in a bank. On the way two men were seen upon him from a wood behind the road and he was seized. Returning to the ranch, he found Palmer lying in the living room of the house with a bullet hole in his brain.

As soon as he had sufficiently recovered from the shock to think he determined to go to the nearest ranch, get a messenger to come and take the money to the bank, and send for the proper authorities to come and take legal action upon the matter.

Within a few hours an officer of the law arrived and took charge of both the premises and the body.

When Rothwell had told him the whole story of his connection with Palmer, concluding with the statement that he was Palmer's heir, that he had started for the bank that day to deposit some $1,000, been robbed on the way and returned to find his benefactor murdered, the official looked at him curiously.

"What was the name of the messenger and what time of day?"

"What?" Rothwell returned, "without a word of explanation, I carried a pair of handkerchiefs on Rothwell's wrist. The prisoner was taken to town and lodged in jail, charged with the murder of Henry Palmer and the concealment of the funds he obtained. He had intended to go to the bank to deposit some of the money—some of the money, rather, of my own—some of the money that Rothwell had

The President's Thanksgiving Proclamation

This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well-being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the seas. These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measures, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious with an ever-growing reality of friendliness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achieved in the cause of arbitration and the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

"Now, therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of the Civil Magistrate since the first settlements in this land and with the rule established from the foundation of this government, do appoint Thursday, Nov. 24, 1910, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to Him for all His goodness and loving kindness.

"Whose initials are those?" asked the broker.

The woman said she did not know. The detective took a hand in questioning her and, her replies being contradictory, took her to police headquarters. There, after many questions, she noticed that "H. P." were the initials of Henry Palmer, for whose murder Rothwell was to be hanged in a few days. The chief of police put the woman through the "third degree" process, with the result of a confession that she had murdered Palmer.

Many were inclined to doubt that the confession was genuine. Had it not been for the fact that the woman had attempted to borrow money on a watch with Palmer's initials on it little attention would have been paid to her statement. She claimed to have been discarded wife of Palmer, and it was for this casting off that she had killed him. The watch was shown to Rothwell, and he told the police where he had seen it. This identified the woman with Palmer, she was charged with his murder, and Rothwell was released. He asked to see the person who stood in his place and was taken to her cell.

What was his amazement to recognize Alice Swain.

She had to have time to betray their relationship she gave him a look that put him on his guard. She then spoke to him as a stranger, telling him that if he could get permission to see her alone she would throw additional light on the murder. Permission was granted, and the two were left alone.

Not daring to embrace each other, they talked. She claimed to have been discarded wife of Palmer, and it was for this casting off that she had killed him. ### Kills Himself Because He Couldn't Get Work

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Unable to find employment which would enable him to support a wife, Lafayette Maddox, aged 25, today shot and killed himself while seated in a street car beside his 18-year-old fiancée.

He had fixed the 26th of this month as the date for the wedding but grew despondent at his continued failure to find remunerative employment. While on a suburban trolley car with Miss Nellie Callahan, to whom he had been engaged for nearly a year, Maddox, it is said endeavored to induce the girl to enter a suicide pact. She refused to consider such a proposition and did not believe he was serious until Maddox pulled a revolver from his pocket and sent a bullet through his head. The girl fainted and the other passengers were panic-stricken. The mortician hastened to a physician's residence but the doctor said death had been instantaneous.

G. B. Barham testifies after four years. I C. B. Barham, of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and I heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." Graham Drug Co.

The Poet Burns a Good Roads Advocate

Robert Burns, the great Scottish poet, was a versatile, many-sided person, but we venture the assertion that few of his admirers know him as a good roads enthusiast. Here is one of his good roads utterances that applies to the Davidson county roads as aptly as it did to the unspeakable highways of Bonnie Scotland many years ago:

I'm now arrived—thanks to the gods, Tho' pathways rough and muddy, A certain sign that makin' roads Is no' this people's study; Altho' I'm not w' Scripture cram'd, I'm sure the Bible says, That heathen sinners shall be dam'd Unless they mend their ways.

No Case of Fracture on Record. We do not know of a single instance where a cough or cold resulted in pneumonia or consumption when Foley's Honey and Tar had been taken. It cures coughs and colds perfectly, so do not take chances with some unknown preparation which may contain opiates, which cause constipation, a condition that retards recovery from a cold. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered. Graham Drug Co.

Ballot Seven Feet Long. The voters of South Dakota at the election of Nov. 8 submitted to them the longest ballot voted in any state in the union.

The ballot measured more than seven feet, and contained proposed laws which are to be submitted to the voters under the referendum amendment to the state constitution. It was 14 inches in width and filled from top to bottom with closely printed nonpareil type, one of the proposed laws alone filling more than two feet of the ballot.

Special ballot-boxes were manufactured for the larger voting precincts.

Breeding Shetland ponies for market seems to be a profitable industry. There are other pony farms in the State.

NOTH SPERD AND EFFECTIVE This indicates the action of Foley's Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek, Mich., illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backache and severe shooting pains in the sides with annoying urinary irregularities and a sense of incompleteness in the act. The steady use of Foley's Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my troubles. They have my highest recommendation." Sold by all Druggists.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with water and let it stand twenty-four hours. A thick coat of sediment, or a milky or watery deposit, or a deposit of any kind, is a sign of kidney trouble. The back is also a symptom that tells the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

There is comfort in the knowledge often expressed, that Dr. King's Swamp-Root, the great kidney medicine, almost every week, in common rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold on and scaling pain in passing it, or effects following use of Swamp-Root, the back and overcomes that tremendous capacity of being compelled to go through the day, and to get up at times during the night. The immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is the best kidney medicine ever discovered. It is the best health restoring medicine. If you need it, you will find it. It is the best health restoring medicine. If you need it,
