Private Mark Magne, U. S. A. sent as a spy to Chattangoga by General Thomas, is saved from guerrillas by Souri Slack. Disguised as a countryman, Mark starts for Chattangoga with Jakey, Souri's brother. Mark is to send Souri her red handkerchief if in peril.

Mark and Jakey are given shelter by Laura Fain and her mother. Laura suspects Mark is a Union soldler in disguise. He confesses that he is. Laura is a Confederate. She prevents her lover, Capital Cameron Fits Hugh. C. S. A. from detaining Mark.

Mark learns that a big Confederate army is massing at Chattanooga and planning a northward dash. He attempts to escape from Chattanooga. He carries Jakey in safety past the picket line and unexpectedly meets a band of Confederate deserters. He and Jakey are then taken prisoners.

Mark is imprisoned as a spy. Jakey sends Sourl's handkerchief to her by a nogro. Mark, defended by Fitz Hugh, is sentenced to death.

Sourl receives her handkerchief and, disguised as a colored girl, goes to Mark's rescue. She becomes a servant in the jail.

Sourl and Mark exchange clothing, and with a blackened face Mark passes the guard. Bloodhounds follow him. He takes to the river.

Still no reply

Turning Souri over he at once recog-nized the face of the "mulatto girl." In an instant he saw through the ruse that had been practiced. Without stopping to interrogate her, he rushed from the room past the sentinel at the door and out to the guardhouse. There he gave the alarm, and in a moment the whole guard was in motion

Sourl hoped that the sentinel at the door would join in the chase, in which event she intended to go to Jfkey's room, get him out and attempt to es-cape. But the soldier only went as far as the door at the head of the long staircase.
