Judge Mills L. Euse died a few days ago at his home in Norfolk, Va. Thirty years ago he was a Superior Court judge in North Carolina. He had lived in Norfolk many years, where he was engaged in business.

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so bad I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." For sale by all Drugists.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

BY ALEXANDRE DUMAS

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
The Third Day of Captivity.

FELTON had fallen, but still more must be done. He must be made to know that he is not alone in the dungeon. He must be made to know that he is not alone in the dungeon. He must be made to know that he is not alone in the dungeon.

In the morning Felton came as usual, but Mladly allowed him to preside over all the preparations for the breakfast without addressing a word to him. At the moment he was about to retire she saw him make a powerful effort over himself. He set back to his head the words that were about to escape from his lips and went out.

Toward midday Lord de Winter came to her apartment. Mladly was looking out of the window and opened not to hear the door as it opened.

"I understand," said he, "you would like very well to be at liberty on that beach. Patience, patience in four days' time the sea will be open to you."

"I understand," said he, "you would like very well to be at liberty on that beach. Patience, patience in four days' time the sea will be open to you."

"I understand," said he, "you would like very well to be at liberty on that beach. Patience, patience in four days' time the sea will be open to you."

"Did not you inform me that you came to England solely for the pleasure of seeing me? I want to show you the kind of passport which I have drawn up and which will serve you henceforward as an order in the life of a convict to leave to you."

"Then, turning his eyes from Mladly to a paper which he held in his hand, he read:

"Order to conduct to — The name is blank," interrupted Lord de Winter. "If you have any preference you can point it out to me, and if it be not within a thousand leagues of London, it will be paid to your wishes. I will begain then: Order to conduct to — the person named Charlotte Backson, branded by the justice of the kingdom of France, but liberated after chastisement. She is to dwell in this place, without ever leaving it, until she shall have paid the penalty of death to be applied. She will receive 5 shillings per day for lodging and food."

"That order does not concern me," replied Mladly coldly, "since it bears another name than mine."

"That order does not concern me," replied Mladly coldly, "since it bears another name than mine."

MRS. WOODROW WILSON
Wife of the Democratic Presidential Nominee, Honorary President of the Woman's National Democratic League.

At 8 o'clock Lord de Winter made his customary visit and examined the window and the bars.

"Well," said he on leaving her, "you will not escape this night!"

"I understand," said he, "you would like very well to be at liberty on that beach. Patience, patience in four days' time the sea will be open to you."

MRS. THOMAS R. MARSHALL
Wife of the Democratic Vice-Presidential Nominee, Honorary Vice-President Woman's National Democratic League.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the new leader of Democracy and probably the most interesting woman in the United States today. This is inevitable—not because she wishes it, for she does not—and is as firm as a rock in her conviction that being the wife of a public man does not necessitate her calling for a woman's becoming a publicity seeker.
