says Mrs. Sylvia Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds and now I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill. I wish every suffering woman would give

Lesson VIII.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 23, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxii, 1-14. Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text, Luke xiii, 34—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This parable of the marriage of the king's son is found only in the gospel by Matthew and sets before us both the present phase of a rejection of the invitation and also a glimpse of the consummation, but chiefly the former. Matthew's parable is in the book on the parables that they cover the whole period from the first advent of our Lord Jesus Christ in incarnation to His second advent in glory. His incarnation is implied; His life, ministry and rejection are described, and His death is prophesied, but most of the pictures represent the time of His absence or the epoch of His return. They were not merely the words of the man Christ Jesus, a great teacher and a God sent prophet. They were, like all that He said, the words of His Father given Him to speak. For He said, "Whosoever I speak, therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak" (John xii, 50). He taught also "through the Holy Spirit" (Acts i, 2; x, 38), so that in all His teaching we have the Trinity, even as in the parable of Luke xv we see the love of the Son, the Spirit and the Father.

Some aspects of the lesson today, such as the treatment of the invitations, are similar to those of the great supper of Luke xiv, 10-24. The king and His Son and the servants are suggestive of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. The words "Behold, I have prepared... and all things are ready," of verse 4 indicate that "salvation is of the Lord" (John ii, 9, from first to last. Just as in Gen. iii, 21, the Lord God provided redemption clothing without any help from Adam and Eve, as neither Noah nor Moses nor David nor Solomon had any say whatever in the design or construction of ark or tabernacle or temple, as the disciples helped nothing in providing the food for the five thousand, so the purpose and the working of it out in the whole matter of redemption and the kingdom are wholly of God. Nothing can be added to the full preparation which He has made. See also Isa. lix, 16. It is ours to heed the invitation, "Come unto the marriage" (verse 4), and to accept thankfully all that the king has so bountifully provided. The abundance of the King's table which we are privileged continually to enjoy will fill us with joy and peace if we are only believing (11 Sam. ix, 12; Rom. xv, 13).

The story of a marriage takes us back to Gen. ii, 22-24, and on to the marriage of the Lamb (Rev. xix, 7, 8) the former in Eden being a type of the latter, according to Eph. v, 31, 32. The bride of Scripture are most suggestive of the church, and there is now a betroth, Ruth and Abigail. The story of Rebekah, being obtained by the servant for the only son of his master, who had given all his wealth to Isaac, is wonderfully suggestive. The question put to her, "Wilt thou go with me?" (Gen. xxiv, 58) is like the "Come" of our lesson, and all the other "comes," such as Gen. vii, 1; Isa. i, 18; Iv, 1; Matt. xi, 28; Rev. xii, 17. We do not read of any of these disdaining the invitation or making any excuse out of their being sorry that the man who had been chosen for them of their own lesson who were invited: "They would not come." They took his servant and entreated them spitefully and slew them" (verses 3, 5, 6). What is the man who has been chosen for them? He is the Lord and His grace of God and the offer of His kingdom and glory, but the wicked adversary, the god of this world, is always doing his utmost to blind people's minds, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of His glory, should shine unto them (11 Cor. iv, 4). The carnal mind is also enemy against God (Rom. viii, 7), and none but the Holy Spirit can break it down and convince of sin.

The burning up of the city (verse 7) may refer to its destruction by Nebuchadnezzar at the time of the captivity in Babylon or the destruction of Tyne some forty years after the time of our lesson—probably the latter. The highway message may cover the whole of this age, when from all the world the guests are being gathered for the marriage of the Lamb.

Like the man who reminded us of the age of Matt. xii, 47-50, and the end of the age, when there shall be the separation. We are to gather all who seem willing and leave it to Him to prove who are really His, and who are mere professors, who really have and who only seem to have. He will send us of the one place we read of the queen and also of the virgins, her companions (Pa. xiv, 9, 14). In Matt. xxv, 1-13, the parable of the ten virgins, we read of the Bridegroom and the Bride and the virgins. In Rev. xix, 7, 8, we read of the Lamb's wife and also of those who are called to the marriage supper. In Luke xii, 36, we read of those who wait for the return from the wedding. All will be made plain in due time. Now the great question is, Have I cordially accepted His invitation?

To be Humility. To be humility in worthy deeds exceeds an infamous history.—St. Thomas Aquinas.

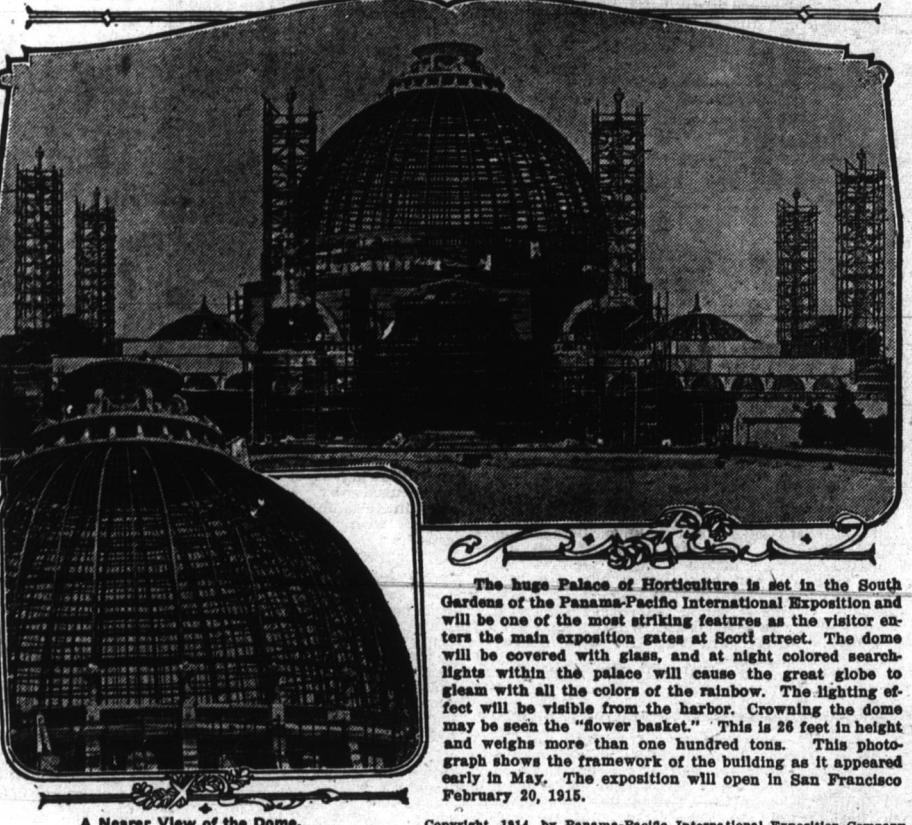

Humility may be taken for granted as existing in every sane human being, but it may be that it most truly manifests itself today in the readiness with which we bow to new truths as they come from the scholars, the teachers, to whom the inspiration of the Almighty giveth understanding.—Holmes.

HUGE PALACE OF MACHINERY AT WORLD'S GREATEST EXPOSITION.

The great Palace of Machinery as seen from its south facade. The mechanical triumphs of the world will be displayed in the great Palace of Machinery at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco next year. This colossal structure is almost a thousand feet long, four hundred feet wide and is 135 feet high. The installation of exhibits in the huge structure has already begun. Three vessels the size of the world's largest steamship could easily be placed in this vast structure and with room to spare.

FIRST NEWS PICTURE OF THE WONDERFUL PALACE OF HORTICULTURE

The huge Palace of Horticulture is set in the South Gardens of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition and will be one of the most striking features as the visitor enters the main exposition gates at Scott street. The dome will be covered with glass, and at night colored searchlights within the palace will cause the great globe to gleam with all the colors of the rainbow. The lighting effect will be visible from the harbor. Crowning the dome may be seen the "flower basket." This is 25 feet in height and weighs more than one hundred tons. This photograph shows the framework of the building as it appeared early in May. The exposition will open in San Francisco February 20, 1915.

MERIT SYSTEM AND HIGHWAYS.

Two applications of the merit system to highway work which will be noted with satisfaction by road builders have recently been made. In Connecticut state employment has been put upon a merit system basis by means of the state civil service law which became effective on Aug. 1, 1913. As applied to the highway department, this law puts all of the officials and employees, with the exception of the state highway commissioner, into the classified service.

In New York state the appointment of six division engineers has been made by competitive examination. A description of the method of conducting these examinations was given by First Deputy Commissioner George A. Ricker at the recent special road meetings of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

ROAD REPAIRING A REAL ECONOMY.

Funds Should Be Conserved by Repairs at Necessary Times. The office of public roads of the department of agriculture is making a strong effort to focus the mind of the country on the fact that maintenance and effective repair are of equal importance with the actual improvement of bad roads. Investment of money in new roads does not become real economy until provision is made for keeping these new roads in condition after they are built. If a new road is built and then allowed to fall into disrepair much of the original investment is simply wasted, says Municipal Engineering.

Europe, generally speaking, is ahead of the United States in the matter of road improvement, but Great Britain is struggling with a problem similar to the one that confronts the people of the United States. In England, Scotland and Wales there are no fewer than 2,140 separate authorities, who are in turn administering 175,487 miles of roads, or an average of only eighty-two miles apiece. In Scotland, apart from the big cities, there are over 200 burghs, one-half of which have but ten miles of road apiece to maintain.

Statistics have found that, although the average expenditure on the

GOOD ROADS IN WISCONSIN.

The Counties Take Advantage of State Aid. All the counties of Wisconsin are taking advantage of state aid for the improvement of their roads this year. The increasing popularity of this plan is described by John A. Hazelwood, chairman of the state highway commission, as follows: "Wisconsin embarked upon a policy of county aid for highway improvement of the principal roads in the counties of the state by an enactment of the legislature in 1907, and under the policy of county aid twenty counties in the state accomplished a great deal of good prior to 1912."

GOOD ROADS IN ARIZONA.

Many Miles of Highway Improved in the Southwest. Many miles of county roads have been improved in the southwestern country by the application of caliche, which, if properly handled, gives satisfaction for a country road of moderate cost. Last season three miles of road near Phoenix were improved by the application of caliche and a wearing surface of oiled sand and gravel. Caliche is a local name for a calcareous, cement-like deposit which occurs in great abundance in many parts of Arizona, particularly in and near the foothills. When pulverized, wet and compacted by traffic or rolling it forms a macadam or concrete-like mass of moderate hardness and fairly high degree of toughness.

THE HORSELESS AGE.

Automobiles and Heavy Auto Trucks Make Road Problem Harder. The astonishing results of a census taken recently on a secondary thoroughfare leading out of London showed only 3 per cent of horse drawn vehicles. The exact count was fifteen vehicles of the latter class to 500 vehicles propelled otherwise than by horses. Herein lies an explanation of the failure of the public authorities generally throughout the world to maintain roads and streets in good condition.

A similar example of the extraordinary change that has occurred in the use of roads in recent years is that of a furniture manufacturing concern in Easton, Pa., which delivers on its own trucks to New York city instead of using the already constructed steel roads—namely, the railroads. This concern uses the ordinary roads. A considerable saving is thus transferred from the steel roads to the country road and the question of any such weight or friction. It has thus come to pass that the science of engineering, which was called upon to furnish experts to railroad companies, is now also called upon to furnish experts to road building authorities.

Colorado Good Roads Association. During the recent convention of the Colorado Good Roads association it was on record as favoring greater development of the state highways along the plan mapped out by the state highway commission and an advocacy of a state levy of one-half mill for road building. There was considerable debate on the relative merits of the half mill levy and a bond issue of $5,000,000. The advocates of the former succeeded in carrying the convention, and it is stated that steps will be taken by the association to institute at

EXPERIMENTAL ROADS.

Over 480,000 square yards of different types of roads for experimental and object lesson purposes were constructed during the fiscal year 1912-13 under the supervision of the office of public roads, United States department of agriculture, according to Bulletin 53 of the department, making a total of over 4,000,000 square yards of road constructed under the supervision of this office since 1905.

The types of roads built were brick, concrete, oil-cement concrete, bituminous surfaced concrete, bituminous macadam, surface treatment, macadam, asphalt, oil-asphalt, gravel, oil-gravel, gravel, sand, sand-gravel, sand-gravel, burnt clay, shell and earth. The object lesson and experimental work during the past year was done at a cost to the local communities of $120,541.50. This does not include the salaries of the department engineers of the department engineers. The road work during the year was done in Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Wisconsin and the District of Columbia.
