GRAHAM, N. C., Jan. 7, 1915.

Sunday 9.00 to 11.00 a. m. and 4.00 to 6.00 p.

The County Board of Education, nsisting of Mr. J. L. Scott of Bur-igton, S. E. Tate of Stainback, d J. W. Whitehead of Snow unp, was in session Monday.

—The colored people celebrated mancipation Day on the 1st. An account of the exercises was reserved just as we were closing up the work on this issue, and hence too late for this week.

Mr. T. drove, when the playing games, after which delighted refreshments were served.

Ask and you shall receive is applicable to the business man, if he will only realize it. Before he can sell he must get to his customer in some way. Ask the customer to come in or go to see him—paradoxical as it may seem, you can do both at the same time, by putting an advertisement before him coupled with an invitation to call: in other words you must do some publicity work—advertise.

The contractors have commenced work on the streets again. The cold and rain during December stopped the work almost completely. During the entire month not a week's work was done. It will be a great relief to the people who have business here as well as the town people to have the streets put in passable condition. In the torn-up condition of the streets during the long wet spell; it has been almost impossible for teams to get through the streets.

Mr. Chas. Menefee was carried to the Stokes-Whitehead Sanatorium Saturday. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. W. Menefee. He has undergone an operation and is getting along nicely.

Rose Comb Variety Especially Adapte Cold Climates—Good Word for Rhode Island Red.

The Hamburgs and Spanish are not so popular now as they were several years ago. Probably because they are very small and lay small eggs. The Leghorns are small, also, but as a rule their eggs are of average size. They

The Minorcas lay large white eggs. Their eggs are larger than those of any other variety of chickens, and both the Rose Comb and Single Comb Black Minorca are excellent winter layers. The Rose Comb variety are especially well adapted to cold climates.

A rose comb or small compact comb will not freeze so readily as one that is thin and high. Keep this in mind. As a rule, farm people prefer to raise chickens for both eggs and meat. Then let us speak a good word for the Rhode Island Red.

They are the farmer's fowl par excellence. Good layers and good for table use, also. Therefore, the Rhode Island Red is the ideal general purpose bird. We have never raised very many Rhode Island Reds (a few this year for the first), but some of our neighbors will keep no other kind. Don't hesitate to try the Rhode Island

We have kept the Buff Orpingtons and Brown Leghorns for severallyears. The Orpington is a fine, large fowl.

The heps are good setters and about as good layers as any of the larger varieties. We have a fine flock of Leghorns this year, and a few Orpingtons, but none of either for sale. During the past two years we have been experi-menting a little, and have been very successful. The experiment was also a matter of convenience. The two flocks were turned out to-

White Plague and White Hope.

Bulletin State Board of Health.

The white man's tuberculosis problem in North Carolina is 1-ar from hopeless. Statistics in 1913 show that in North Carolina towns the white death rate was 163 per 100,000 population o. only about 20 higher than the white death rate in the registration area of the United States.

Much satisfaction is also felt in the fact that our white tuberculosis death rate is decreasing. In 1918, it was about 180 per 100,000 as against 168 in 1913. Another significant fact is that those towns in North Carolina that have rea matter of convenience.

The two flocks were turned out to gether, and the result was a lot of mixed chickens. Of course, they did not look so nice but we are very well satisfied with the cross.

For best results, however, we believe one cross is enough. Some people say that chickens will do better when they are "all mixed up." But after a while they are apt to resemble a flock of "scrubs." Then where is the advantage?

Our Leghorn-Orpingtons are somewhat similar to the Rhode Island Reds, larger than the Legitorns; more active and better layers than the Orpingtons. There is a great deal of confusion among beginners in regard to different varieties of chickens with similar plumage.

For instance, the Buff Orpington is often mistaken for the Buff Plymouth Rock, and vice versa. By the way, the Buff Plymouth Rock is a very good general purpose chicken, superior, we think, to the Barred Rocks, Orpingtons. We have kept all these and a number of others.

BEAUTY OF WELL KEPT LAWN

Care Taken of Land Surrounding the Home Adds Much to Arractiveness of Town.

At various times in connection with the newspaper reports of the meetings of citizens' associations the subject of well kept lawns and attractive flower beds has been touched on, and in a number of instances citizens' associations have agreed to contin the practise previously found effect tive of giving awards for lawns and flower growths of distinguished merit. Many of the urban and suburban neighborhoods of the district are the handsomer, happier and more valuable because of the care given to the land in front or at the rear or on the grass sides of the home. A well kept grass plot or a carefully tended flower gar den tells all the world which passes that way that somebody lives there, that there is home life there and that order and content reigns within In most cases the condition of the yard or "grounds" can be and will be taken as an index of the house keeping system that is followed in The garden or the lawn tended with care gives a proper touch to the home and applied to contiguous homes makes the neighborhood bet-ter. The climate of Washington is raging to fine gardens and every body who lives in a house has tin enough to care for one. The law mower, the rake and the spade are fine implements of physical culture The security of private lawns and flower beds is greater than it ever was. Public opinion has been so improved and educated in this matter that complaints of marauding are rare, whereas not many years ago they were frequent. This is shown by reference to an editorial in the Star, May 27, 1876, which in part folcountry where more is done by its by the cultivation of flowers, shrub-bery, etc., than by the citizens of Washington. Nor is there a place where such efforts are more successful considering the discouragements and drawbacks under which they are made. We refer more especially to the pulling of flowers, the destrucmade. We refer more especially to the pulling of flowers, the destruction of shrubbery and the theft of the form private grounds. So great has this abuse grown in some parts of the city that not a few of those who have been so frequently. raided are hesitating between giving up the pleasant duty of ornamenting their grounds and lying in wait for the marauders with loaded shotguns. The most curious thing to these sufferers is the fact that the police ap-parently never see any of the despoil-ing, and that in spite of the stringent law on the subject no arrests ar
