A broad campaign of publicity on the subject of rural life is needed in this state today to bring the problems of the farmers to the forefront. side fences. Care should be taken in putting up the fence to see that the wire is close enough to the ground to prevent dogs from crawling under it. For temporary fences there are number manufactured from 32 to 42 inches high. A 36-inch fence is very satisfactory, and is used extensively. An advantage of wire fencing is that neither sheep nor dogs will tump it so readily. Barbed wire is undesirable except at the top, because the sheep tear out their wool upon the barbs.

ear out their wool upon the parus.

Hurdles are a great aid in handling sheep under certain circumstances They are convenient in pasturing on rape and similar crops where the sheep are to be confined to a portion of the field. This is desirable in that it prevents the sheep picking out the choicest pasture first and leaving the poorest for the last when, as a matter of fact under fattening conditions, the best should be available.

Fencing off part of the field in this way also makes more frequent the rotation of pasture. In England netting has largely taken the place of hurdles. Both cord and wire netting are used, the netting being fastened to temporary stakes by ropes or staples. Sheep farming in this country has not been intensive enough to warrant a very extensive use of these appliances, but they will be more in evidence in the future. Hurdles or panels are very convenient in making temporary pens. Light hurdles that can be handled readily should have a place when every sheep farm. They are well worth their cost. Every sheep owner should be prepared to make pens for his sheep on short notice.

lamb wanders about, becomes lost among the flock, and loses its char-acteristic smell by which the ewe recognizes it. She may then refuse to claim it, and the trouble begins. By having some panels or hurdles at hand the ewe and lamb may be quickly placed by themselves and a close watch can be kept upon them close watch can be kept upon them to see that all is well. The length of time they should be kept in this claiming pen will depend upon how long it takes the ewe to become reconciled to her lamb. If the ewe persists in butting the lamb away, she

SUPERIOR HOUSE FOR SOWS

Individual Cot Affords Protection From Infectious Diseases Can Be Easily Moved.

We desire to make a plea for the individual house. We like them for the sow and her brood especially. It has the advantage of keeping each sow from being disturbed by the others. Neither will her pigs get lost and wander into other pens where they may rob other pigs or stand a good chance of being injured by the sow. Then there will not be so much danger from infectious diseases. When it the surroundings become foul the cot can be removed to another place. Of dourse it may mean more work for the owner to attend the sows separated in different houses coathered about the place, but it will be better for the farmer to do the extra work as he will save enough in the health and it growth of his young pigs to more than pay him for his efforts. The building of the individual cot should be considered. There should be a window for light and sunshine, also a side door at that can be lifted on warm days for ventilation. For this reason we like the Ashaped house best of all. A small window can be put in one end just over the door and a hinged door placed on the side with little trouble. The frame for this cot can be made of 2x4 material and the sides can be sheathed, papered and covered with flooring. This makes a warm cot for winter use. We prefer the dirt floor with woven wire stretched on top to keep the sow from rooting. If the floor is well bedded with straw it will

This may mean the death of the entire brood of pigs, and sowe are liable to take cold by lying on them. If concrete be used it should be covered with plank, leaving a space between the plank and concrete of an between the plank and concrete of an inch or two. But board floors are ex-pensive and short lived. It is wise to whitewash the inside of the hog louse, as it disinfects the house and adds materially to the light. The sun-light will reflect from the white walls to the floor and do lots of good.

MANAGE SHEEP ON PASTURES

Where Grazing is Plentiful Animals Can Feed on What is Most Palatable to Them.

The ideal way to manage sheep on pastures is to hand them graze one pas-ture down reasonably and then put them on another pasture until the first springs up again. In this way, says a writer in Homestead, the pasture is kept fresh and sweet. But in practise it may be frequently impossible to do this. However, where the rearing of sheep is an important part of the farm er's business it can be done to some extent.

When pastures get far ahead of sheep they should be grazed down if possible with cattle. In such a condi tion the sheep will not graze down the grass that has become rank and woody. By preference they will feed upon those parts where the grass is short. In such places it is shorter and sweeter than elsewhere. Where it is not practicable to graze it down with cattle it ought to be mowed if pos-sible. Whether it should be left to mulch the ground or drawn off should be determined by the quantity of the grass and its value for hay. When thus cut off fresh and nutritious grass springs up in its place.

Some object to grazing sheep with other stock. Much depends upon the way in which this is done. If the pasture is large and not in any way over stocked, there is probably no objection to the plan, but, should the pasture be overstocked or should the sheep be relatively too numerous, then the cattle will be worsted in the grazing. Sheep eat more closely than cattle and can do well on shorter pasture. Where the grazing is plentiful sheep can feed upon what is most palatable to them and the cattle eat what they relish most. Sheep will eat off many weeds that cattle avoid and in this way they help to clean the pastures.

For winter grazing long pastures are the best. They are best for the reason that they protect the grass underneath, so that when the sheep are grazing they get some grass with more or less succulence in it, along with what is ext of the Lesson, Ruth i, 6-18. Memory Verses, 16, 17—Golden Text, Ruth i. 16-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson VI .- First Quarter, For Feb. 7, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

We have just one lesson in this bear tiful story of Ruth, but we will seek to gather many things from the whole story. The first and last names in the book. Bethlehem and David, are two of the most suggestive in the Bible No man's name is mentioned so often as David, and his is the first and las name of a mere man in the New Testament. Bethlenem, besides an the out-er interesting facts connected with it, will always be of special interest as the birthplace of the firstborn son of Mary Jesus Christ our Lord. Ruth is of the four women mentioned in Matt. I among the ancestors of the son of David. Some one has said that the four chapters of this book might be entitled Ruth deciding-gleaning-rest ng-rewarded.

The devotion of Ruth is an example of the devotion to Jesus Christ, which is expected of all believers. Her patient gleaning in the field of Boaz has in it an example of the patience and faithfulness which should be seen in rathruness when should be seen in every Christian. Her quiet expectation of some great result at the suggestion of her mother-in-law makes us think of the assurance that the meek shall inherit the earth. When we see her as the wife of Boaz, the owner of the field in which she had so patiently gleaned, we cannot but think of the time when the church, the body of Christ, the company of all the faithful gleaners of this present age, shall become the bride of our mighty man of wealth, the owner of the field, which is the world, and then we shall inherit all things with Him and reign with Him on the earth (Rev. xxi. 7; v. 10).

That Naomi and her husband and sons should leave Bethlehem because of a famine and go to sojour in Moab seems like the misstep which Abram made when he left Canaan because of famine and went down to Egypt, for a famine and went down to Egypt, for he only got into trouble there, and we read of no altar unto the Lord until he returned again to Bethel (Gen. XII, 10; XIII, 1-4). Foor Naomi found trouble enough in Moab in the loss of her husacknowledge that the going to Moak was her affair, while it was her gracious Lord who brought her back to Bethlehem. "I went out full and the Lord hath brought me home again empty" (chapter 1, 21). She turned h steps homeward because she heard that the Lord had given bread to Beth chem (verse:6).

The wandering boy of Luke xv turn ed homeward when he thought of the bread in his father's house. It seems as if we should be ever telling to the perishing of the bread, and to spare, in our Father's house, for how can they hear unless some one tells? Naom knew the God of Israel. These wom-en of Moab must have learned of Him through her, and Ruth had learned to know Him well enough to forsake all for Him, esteem Him more than her own people and her father's house or own people and ner tather's house. Or hah had not so learned to know him. If our testimony is what it should be and our life He will use us to gather some to Himself. The devotion of Ruth in the ever memorable words of verses 16, 17, are in a measure repeated by Ittal to David in II Sam. xv, 21. ed by Ital to David in II Sam. xv. 21.

The words in verse 19. "So they two went," are found in II Kings ii. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 11. and there again we see a s, t. i.i. and there again we see a steadfast purpose on the part of Elishs which brought to him that which his soul desired. This is the steadfastness which we so greatly need (I Cor xy, 58).

The friendliness and thoughtful kind The friendiness and thoughtfu kindness of Soaz in chapter if are but a faint type of the loving kindness of our Lord Jesus, who can truly say, "I know thy works," etc. (il. 11, 12; Rev. 41, 2, 9, 13, 19).

If, as His redeemed ones, we have not recognized many "handfuls of purpose" as we have gleaned in the part of the field He has assigned us, we must be blind indeed (chapter it. 16). The words of Boaz in Ruth iii, 11, "Fear not, my daughter; I will do to thee all that thou requirest." made a great im-pression upon my wife, as we saw them in a motto in the Y. W. C. A. at Cape Town, South Africa, in 1808, an Cape Town, South Africa, in 1808, and we have often passed them on to oth-ers since then. There is also much comfort in the words of Naomi in chapter iii. 18, "Sit still, my daughter, * • • for the man will not be in rest until he have finished the thing this

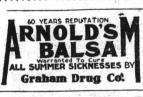

In chapter iv Boaz as the kinsman redeemer, having the right to redeem and accomplishing the same, is won derfully suggestive of our Redeemer who not only redeems us, but also our inheritance, the earth, and seals with the Holy Spirit, the earnest our inheritance, until the rede of the purchased poss of the purchased possession (Eph. 1, 13, 14). When Naomi became nurser for little Obed (chapter iv, 16, 21) she no doubt forgot in a measure the emptiness of chapter i, 21. Ruth also forgot the weary days of her poverty when she gleaned in the field of Boaz. So we shall forget ell our misery and remember it as waters that pass away (Job 15, 16).

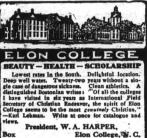

(Job 15, 16).

Let us be certain that we are deemed by the precious blood of Jeas Christ and then patiently and unwer riedly fill the place to which He has assigned us. rejoicing in the glor which shall be ours at His appearing
