The President has determined to send American soldiers into Mexico in pursuit of General Villa and his bandits. Our news columns give an account of Villa's raid on a New Mexico town in which a number of American citizens were killed. General Carranza, the provisional President of Mexico, will aid in exterminating the bandits. The expedition will be in command of Gen. Funston, a fearless fighter and strategist. The warlord is "Villa dead or alive".

There was a meeting of the County Democratic Executive Committee here Saturday. The new plan of organization was discussed, and it was a familiarizing with its provisions more than anything else. Except the nominations for county officers and a Representative in the General Assembly, which will be named in mass-convention as heretofore, nominations will be made in a primary election, which will be held throughout the county on the same day. The same law governs all parties, so the other political parties will have to hold their primary elections on the same day as the Democrats.

Educational Column Conducted by Supt. J. B. Robertson.

The disbarment of James H. Johnson, attorney of Fayetteville, who stands convicted of having violated the State prohibition law, will be argued this week in the Supreme Court. The State appeals in this case. Mr. Johnson won in the Superior Court when he moved for dismissal of the action against him on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction.

MARION BUTLER.

In later years Butler has not been a commanding figure in North Carolina politics. He is itching again for power, but the people have not forgot him, especially those who took note of politics a dozen or more years ago. At State conventions he usually shows his hand. Lest the people forget just what sort of a fellow he is, the following from the Charlotte Observer, in concrete form, should be read for information:

The Republican campaign in North Carolina will be conducted this year under the direction of Mr. Marion Butler. The campaign will be supported with plans by Mr. Butler, and they will receive instructions from him and these instructions will be obeyed. Marion Butler will be the inspiration of the campaign. It will be an artificial campaign and the main endeavor will be to create and foster discontent on the part of the people of the State and dissatisfaction with the Democrats to as great an extent as possible. The main effort will be to arouse prejudice, and in view of these facts it will be to revive the memory of the people of North Carolina in the matter of Mr. Butler's political record. This record is an indictment against the people of the State—to the voters who are but recently exercising the franchise. The older people know they need only to be reminded. It may not now be time to spread the full details of the indictment. It is many months before the people will pass judgment on the issues of the approaching campaign. But the circumstances of the return of Marion Butler to a dominating position in the control of the public party in this State should not be permitted to pass even temporarily without proper challenge of the reaction which has taken place in the party imposed on the character of the State.

He began public life in North Carolina by the publication of a paper to which he gave the name, "Lancaster," and which in turn became the chief spokesman for the regime of negro domination in this State. One of his early entries into political conventions was into the Democratic congressional convention in 1892, when he attended as a delegate to the convention. The nomination of his countyman, Hon. B. E. Grady, whose nomination he eulogized in his paper, and then bowed and helped to nominate P. D. Koonce to oppose him.

He was a member of the Democratic State convention in 1892 that nominated Elias Carr for governor, whom he supported in the convention and in his paper, and afterward participated in the Populist convention and helped nominate him for governor. In two years after he joined the Populist party, organized mainly as a protest against national legislation by which the people of the United States were to be fused with the Republican party, which resulted in a Fusion Legislature to be adjourned in honor of Douglas and former negro domination on eastern North Carolina to the point of revolution.

He took his seat in the United States Senate and drew his salary to the utmost to secure Judge Critchfield's defeat for re-election at the end of his short term of two years, and the re-election of whom he had solemnly and publicly pledged to return for his having been given the full six-year term. He betrayed his associates in the Democratic party. He betrayed his race into negro domination.

And while yet a Representative of the interests and the honor of the State in the United States Senate he betrayed itself to the noisier of the millions of dollars of repudiated and fraudulent carpet bag bonds. While yet a member of the United States Senate and drawing his pay as a Representative of North Carolina he concocted the fraudulent scheme by which the holders of these bonds were to be paid by the State. He betrayed his race into negro domination.

State of North Carolina and obtained judgment in the Supreme Court of the United States, which for the State to pay to the interest the bonds donated to South Dakota and to compromise the whole issue the settlement for the State to pay to the interest of a million dollars. Mr. Butler and his associates then advertised in the New York press that they had found a way by which they could force payment of all repudiated State bonds, but have since not been able to get any State to accept any of them as a gift, after being advised of their fraudulent character. There are about seventeen million dollars worth of these bonds and the interest, issued by carpet baggers for which the State never received a particle of benefit. They were issued ostensibly to build railroads in the State, but not a mile of railroad was ever built with the proceeds of these seventeen million dollars of bonds.

These are in bare outline, some of the betrayals which the Republican party, by permitting the return of Mr. Butler to a position of leadership in the State, has submitted as a challenge to the character of the State. We have them down here, not because this is the proper time to give them a quiet consideration, but to put them as well as the people of the State, on ample notice of the significance of the attack upon the Republican party under its new organization.

Having defeated the element in the Republican party which was against his return to leadership in that party, having placed himself on the platform committee that shaped its declaration of principles; having dominated the selection of the convention at every contested stage in its stormy proceedings, he now shrewdly proceeds to make his duty will be to run a muck in its ranks, but every observing man in North Carolina knows that an increased Republican vote in the State will be universally accepted as a Butler victory, and that Republican success would be Butler success.

Summer School at University—Teachers and Lecturers.

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 14th. The twenty-ninth session of the University Summer School for Teachers will open June 15th and will continue for a term of six weeks. Prof. N. W. Walker, Director of the Summer School, expects this to be the banner year in the history of the school and feels confident that the enrollment this year will reach the thousand mark.

All the college dormitories will this summer be turned over to the ladies, with the exception of the University Inn—and matrons will be assigned to each. The Y. M. C. A. will also be used by the ladies as a Y. M. C. A. No men, except night watchmen, will be allowed on the campus after ten o'clock. The men will find rooms at Pickard's Hotel, the University Inn, private homes, and in the various fraternity halls.

The Summer School is this year enlarging the scope of its work by opening up the Department of Economics and by offering many additional courses in departments previously opened. Many of these courses count for credit towards the degrees of A. B. and A. M. In all, about 100 courses will be offered this summer.

Among the most notable additions to the Summer School faculty are—Prof. B. C. Carroll, of Guilford College, who will have charge of the Department of Economics; Prof. W. A. McCall will take Dr. H. W. Chase's place as lecturer on the Psychology of Education—Dr. Chase goes to Peabody College for Teachers this summer. Dr. James Finch Royster, formerly head of the Department of English at Carolina and now holding that position at the University of Texas, will be a member of the Summer School English faculty. Miss Ida Evans Roger, of Port Chester, N. Y., will have charge of the department of primary methods of teaching. Miss Edith G. Daggett, of Washington, D. C., will teach Drawing.

Professor Walker is laboring untiringly to make the six weeks spent at the Summer School as pleasant and profitable as possible. With this in view he has made arrangements for a number of lectures and entertainments to be given during the summer. The Coburn Players will present two of Shakespeare's plays—"Hamlet." Miss Diele Howell, of New York will give a vocal recital, accompanied on the violin by Miss Emilie Rose Knox, of Raleigh. The Choral Concert will be given under the direction of Prof. Gustav Hagedorn. On July 4th a pageant in North Carolina Colonial History will be presented by Mr. A. Vermont.

Dr. Edgar J. Banks, explorer, author, and lecturer, will deliver a series of three illustrated lectures on Archeology and Ancient History. Richard Wyche, President of the Story Tellers League of America, will give three readings. T. E. Finney, assistant commissioner of education of New York, will give a series of lectures on educational subjects. Rabbi George Solomon, of Savannah, Ga., will deliver one lecture on the "Jewish Character of America" and six on the "Representative Jews of Christian Era." Dr. J. G. deR. Hamilton, Professor of History in the University, will lecture on "International Policy and Conciliation."

Samuel Bear, who died at Wilmington recently, left an estate of $300,000 to $500,000. A number of charitable bequests were made. The James Walker Memorial Hospital was given $10,000, the Catherine Kennedy Home for old ladies $10,000 and the Temple of Israel, $10,000.

Claude Suggs, who killed his father-in-law, J. J. James, in Onslow county, a few weeks ago, submitted to a verdict of second degree murder and got off with a sentence of 20 years in the State prison. Sentence later reduced to ten years because Suggs is paralyzed.

Without waiting to pass resolutions of regret, Anson county Democrats called a mass meeting and named a man to succeed Mr. Page in Congress. L. D. Robinson is the choice of the Anson Democrats.

Mary Maria Foust and John F. Foust.

Mary Maria Foust, daughter of the late Daniel and Mary Foust, who was born Nov. 28, 1825, and died March 6, 1916, aged 90 years, 3 months and 23 days. She was a faithful and constant member of Springwood Presbyterian church, Whitesett, N. C., for something like forty years.

She was a woman of most amiable qualities; social and warm-hearted to an unusual degree, and was known and tenderly loved by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Her entire life was spent at the old Foust homestead one mile west of Whitesett, except for a brief time spent in the home of her favorite brother, the late Daniel P. Foust. Her filial devotion was unusual; although a woman of rare beauty with numerous admirers she never married, but remained at home giving to her parents so long as they lived her constant and kindly care. Throughout her community the beloved name of "Aunt Mary Foust" has for half a century been held in loving admiration.

She lived and died a beautiful example of noble Christian womanhood, leaving to all who knew her a legacy of memories purer and tenderer because of her serene and beautiful life.

On the afternoon of Wednesday, March 8th, she was laid tenderly to rest amid her kindred in the Springwood cemetery, sleeping beneath a covering of bloom and flowers; not dead, but sleeping, and in the eternal dawn of the endless days beyond we shall see her sweet face once again.

John F. Foust, son of the late Daniel and Mary Foust, was born April 2, 1830, and died March 7, 1916, aged 85 years, 11 months and 5 days. Most of the years of his mature manhood were spent upon his farm near Foust's Mills three miles west of Whitesett. Selling his farm in recent years he returned to spend his last days with his sister, Mary M. Foust. Neither of them ever married, and their closing years were spent together upon the old home grounds where their joyous childhood days had run so happily together.

Their brother, Gideon C. Foust, died only a few days ago, and with the passing of these three aged people there passed the last of a remarkable family of fifteen children. There were four daughters and eleven sons, their father having been twice married, first to Mary Clapp and after her death to Catharine Freeland.

John F. Foust never mingled to any great extent in public life, but chose rather the quiet scenes of his own home circle. He came of a strong line of people, and had many of the marked traits of his ancestry. Peace to his ashes; after life's fitful fever he sleeps well. March 8th he was laid to rest in quiet Springwood cemetery by the side of the sister who had died only a few hours before his death.

John McAuley, an engineer of the Southern railway, was run into by a motorcycle at Greensboro and his leg broken.

Walking across the court house square, at Yadkinville, last Wednesday, Dillard Shorner, about 30 years old, fell. He got up, and fell again, and soon died. Heart disease.

Jeff Swinton, a Raleigh negro, was in the habit of chastising his wife. The last time Jeff engaged in that pastime the lady surprised him with a hammer. Jeff died two days later.

Where the Analogy

Doesn't Hold Good. Wilmington Star.

Senator Overman takes the ground that because there was no surrender of American rights in warning Americans to keep out of the danger zone of Mexico there would be no surrender of rights in warning them to keep off of armed merchant ships. The Senator ought not to deal in such faulty analogy. When an American goes into Mexico he goes into somebody else's territory, someone else's premises, as it were. When he goes on the high seas, even on an armed merchant ship, he is on the world's highway, even though he may be showing lack of personal prudence. The difference is the same as the difference between going into another man's house or on his lot, when there is danger of getting shot, and passing along the public street is a possibility or even a probability that he may shoot you. In one case you are an intruder or a trespasser; in the other, you are a traveler on a public thoroughfare.
