COMPROMISE TALK FAILS

Conferees of Both Conventions Could Not Agree and Nominations Quickly Followed Report-Justice Hugher in Accepting, Characterizes Wilson as "Humiliating Spectacle."

Following the failure of conferees representing the Republican and Progressive conventions in Chi cago to agree upon any man for the amalgamation of the two parties, the Republican national convention wound its work up on the third ballot by nom inating Supreme Court Justice Charle Evans Evans Hughes, for president, and Charles W. Fairbanks, for vice presi-

Hugnes by the convention were snort, sharp and decisive.

At the final conference at the Blackstone neither side had any new propositions to make and it was apparent to the participants in it that both would hold rigidly to their demands. So after shaking hands all around the confer ence fell into two parts and each set about preparing a report to be read to their respective conventions. The Progressive and Republican con-istration's Foreign Policy.

Charles Evans Hughes stepped down from the supreme bench, and, again as a private citizen, accepted the Republican nomination for president. In a telegram ringing with denunci ation of the administration's foreign policies and declaring for a dominant, thoroughgoing Americanism, he gave his decision to Chairman Harding, of the Republican national convention, and broke the long silence which had kent the leaders of his party in the dark as to his attitude toward the great issues of the day.

Within an hour after Chairman Harding had notified him of his nomination. Hughes had accepted the call. Justice Hughes sent a telegram to Chairman Harding formally accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency, as follows:

the Republican nomination for the presidency, as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Delegates:

I have not desired the nomination. I have wished to remain on the bench. But in this critical period in our history treeognize that it is your right tory treeognize that it is your right mount of the property of th

I believe in preparedness, not only entirely adequate for our defense with respect to numbers and equipment in both army and navy, but that all thoroughness to the end that in each branch of the service there may be the utmost efficiency under the most competents administrative heads.

We wish to promote all wise and practicable measures for the just set tlement of international disputes. In view o' our abiding ideals, there is no danger of militarism in this country. We have no policy of aggression; no lust for territory; no zeal for strife it is in this spirit that we demand adequate provision for national defense,

Our preparation must be industrist and economic, as well as military. Our several tests will come after the war is over. We must make a fair and wise readjustment of the tarif, in accordance with sound protective principles, to insure our economic independence and to maintain American standards of living, We must conserve the just interests of labor, realizing that in democracy patriotism and national strength must be rooted in even-handed justice.

In preventing, as we must, unjust discrimation and monopolistic practices, we must, still, be zealous to assure the foundations of honest business. Particularly should wa seek the expansion of foreign trade. We must not throttle American enterprise here or abroad, but, rather, promote it and take pride in honorable achievements. We must take up the serious problems of transportation, of interstate and foreign commerce, in a sensible and candid manner, and provide an enduring basis for prosperity by the intelligent use of the constitutional powers of congress, so as adequately to protect the public on the one hand, and on the other, to conserve the essential instrumentalities of or progress. ROOSEVELT MAY NOT RUN Declines Progressive Nomination at "This Time."

Whether the Progressives will have Perkins doesn't know. Victor Mur dock doesn't know. In fact, nobody knows. The idea prevails in Chicago that Theodore Roosevelt will not run against Charles Evans Hughes. Wil liam Loeb says he will not.

The Progressive convention nominated Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for president, and Colonel John M. Parker of Louisiana, for vice president. A few hours later the delegates list ened without protest to a message from Oyster Bay, saying that Roose welt would not "accept at this time." Colonel Rooseveit's declination was conditional and it was placed in the hands of the Progressive national committee, to be held until such time Hughès, the nominee of the Republi can party, "shall satisfy the committee that it is for the interest of the coun try that he be elected."

The delegates never had wavered i allegiance or cast a passing glance fore the convention adjourned Chair man Raymond Robins read to them the brief message from Oyster Bay, in which Colonel Roosevelt declined to accept the nomination.

The significance of Colonel Roose velt's message, with its announcer that if the Progressive national com mittee found the subsequent state ments of Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican standard bearer, to its lik-ing, his non-acceptance of the Progres sive nomination should stand as hi last word, was lost in that tire asm, by long delays over peace parleys with the Republicans and by the dis cussion of a platform, on which must go into the field, if at all, against both the forces of Democracy and Re

Mexico—a course lamentably wrong with regard to both our rights and our duties. We intefered without consistency; and, while seeking to dictate when we were not concerned, we utterly failed to appreciate and distance that the outset of the administration in the high responsibilities of our diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations were subordinated to a conception of partisan requirements, and we presented to the world a humiliating spectacle of ineptitude. Belated efforts have not availed to recover the influence and prestige so unfortunately is acrificed, and brave words have been stripped of their force by indecision.

I desire to see our diplomacy restored to its best standards and to have these advanced; to have no sarrifices of national interest to partisan expectational interest to partisan expectation and all the commands here and abroad in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights as a most and distinct of the country always at its commands here and abroad in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights utility of the country always at its commands here and abroad in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights as a most and decision, I must decline the nomination. But if you prefer it, I stand for an Americanism that knows no ulterfor purpose, for a patriotism that is single and complete. needs of the country."

In the event the national committee shall be satisfied that aid should be given the Republican party in its fight against the party now in power. Colonel Roosevelt's refusal to make a campaign will be considered final. The committee then will be authorized, as the representatives of the Progressive party, to say whether they indorse the position taken by the colonel, whether they will name another fight for their party principles.
