SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck.

CHAPTER II—On his return Bibbs met at the station by his sister Edith. CHAPTER III—He finds himself an in-considerable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. He sees Mary Vertrees looking at him from a summer house next door.

CHAPER IV—The Vertre-ses, old town family and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and afterward discuss them. Mary puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys.

CHAPTER V—At the Sheridan house-warming banquet Sheridan spreads him-self. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheri-dan's attention, and Bibbs hears he is to be sent back to the machine shop. CHAPTER VI—Mary tells her mother about the banquet and shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility.

CHAPTER VII—Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He pro-poses to Mary, who half accepts him.

CHAPTER VIII—Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. CHAPTER IX-Edith and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lam horn; Sybli goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mar; leaves her in the room alone.

CHAPTER X-Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. CHAPTER XI—All the rest of the fam-ily helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

CHAPTER XII—Mrs. Sheridan pleads with Bibbs to return to the machine shop for his father's sake, and he consents. CHAPTER XIII—Bibbs purposely inter-rupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamborn. He tells Edith that he over-heard Lamborn making love to Roscoe's water.

CHAPTER XIV-Mutual love of music grouses an intimate friendship between CHAPTER XV—Mary sells her plane to elp out the finances of the Vertrees fam-

CHAPTER XVI—Roscoe and his wife uarrel over Lamhorn. CHAPTER XVII—Sheridan finds Ros-

CHAPTER XVIII—Friendship between Bibbs and Mary ripens into a more inti-mate relation, and under Mary's influ-ence Bibbs decides to return to the ma-chine shop.

CHAPTER XIX—Sheridan finds his son Roscoe's affairs in a muddled condition, owing to his intemperate habits. CHAPTER XX—Bibbs, under the inspiration of Mary's frieniship, makes good in the machine shop. Sheridan is injured while attempting to show the boy how to do his work.

CHAPTER XXI—Sibyl, insanely jealous over Lamborn's attentions to Edith, makes a scene in the Sheridan home, and Lamborn is ordered out of the house by CHAPTER XXII—Bibbs finds great happiness in his work and his growing love for Mary.

CHAPTER XXIII—Edith leaves for New York, ostensibly to visit a friend. Roscoe tells his father that he is going to quit the business and go away with his wife.

CHAPTER XXIV—Sheridan announce that he is going to take Bibbs into the office with him and make a business man of him.

CHAPTER XXV.

There was sleet that evening, with a whooling wind, but neither this storm leaped as he turned and say that other which so imminently threatened him held place in the consciousness of Bibbs Sheridan when he touched her. When he had gone on, sciousness of Bibbs sherian word as came once more to the presence of Mary. All was right in his world as he sat with her, reading Maurice Maeterlinek's "Alladine and Palomides."

Mary did as she always did—she was she always did—she was step into an unlit room across the hall from that in which they had spent the every step in the was step in the was out of sight. And while the zinc eater held out to bring him such golden nights as these, all the king's horses and all the king's but she caught a glimpse of him under men might not serve to break the Bibbs read slowly, but in a reason able manner, as if he were talking; and Mary, looking at him steadily from beneath her curved fingers, ap-peared to discover no fault. It had peared to discover no fault. It ha grown to be her habit to look at hir whenever there was an opportunity It may be said, in truth, that while were together, and it was light looked at him all the time

When he came to the end of "Alla dine and Palomides" they were silen a little while, considering together; then he turned back the pages and

"There's something I want to read over. This:

You would think I threw a window open on the dawn... She has a soul that can be seen around her-that takes you in its arms like an alling child awithout saying anything to you consoles you for everything... I shall never understand it all. I do not know how it can all be, but my knees bend in spite of me when I speak of it....

He stopped and looked at her.
"You boy!" said Mary, not very clearly.

"Oh, yes," he returned. "But 4t's true—especially my knees!" "You boy!" she murmured again, blushing charmingly. "You might read another line over. The first time I ever saw you, Bibs, you were looking into a mirror. Do it again. But you needn't read it—I can give it to you: 'A little Greek slave that came from the heart of Arcady!"

"No." She shook her head. "You love and want what's beautiful and delicate and serene; it's really art that you want in your life, and have always Bibbs looked doubtful and more wistful than ever; but after a moment or two the matter seemed to clarify itself to him. "Why, no," he said; "I wanted something else more than that.

"And here I am!" she laughed, completely understanding. "I think we're like those two in "The Cloister and the Hearth." I'm just the rough Bur-gundian crossbow man, Denys, who followed that gentle Gerard and told everybody that the devil was dead."

"He isn't, though," said Bibbs, as a coarse little bell in the next room began a series of snappings which proved to be ten, upon count. "He gets into the clock whenever I'm with And, sighing deeply, he rose to go.

"You're always very prompt about leaving me." "There's one little time in the twenty-four hours when I'm not happy. It's now, when I have to say good night. But now's the bad time—and I must go through it, and so—good night." And he added with a pungent vehe-mence of which he was little aware.

"I hate it!"

"Do you?" she said, rising to go to the door with him. But he stood motionless, gazing at her wonderingly.

"Marry! Your eyes are so—" He topped.

"Yes?" But she looked quickly away.
"I don't know," he said. "I thought just then-"What did you think?"

"I don't know—it seemed to me that there was something I ought to under-stand—and didn't." She laughed and met his wondering gaze again frankly. "My eyes are pleased," she said. "I'm glad that you miss me a little after you go." "But tomorrow's coming faster than other days, if you'll let it," he said. She inclined her head. "Yes, I'll-

"Going to church," said Bibbs. "It is going to church when I go with you!"

She went to the front door with him; she always went that far. They had formed a little code of leave-taking, by habit, neither of them ever speak ing of it: but it was always the same She always stood in the doorway until he reached the sidewalk, and there he always turned and looked back, and she waved her hand to him. Then he went on, half-way to the new house, and looked back again, and Mary was not in the doorway, but the door was open and the light shone. It was as if she meant to tell him that she would never shut him out; he could always see that friendly light of the open doorway-as if it were open for him to come back, if he would. He could see ti until a wing of the new house came between, when he went up the path. The open doorway seemed to him the beautiful symbol of her friendship-of her thought of him: a symbol of herself and of her ineffable kindness. And she kept the door open-even tonight, though the sleet and fine snow swept in upon her bare throat and arms, and her brown hair was strewn but she caught a glimpse of him under the street lamp that stood between the two houses, and saw that he turned to look back again. Then, and not before, she looked at the upper windows of Roscoe's house across the street. They were dark. Mary waited, but after a little while she closed the front door and returned to her window. A moment later two of the upper win-dows of Roscoe's house flashed into light and a hand lowered the shade of one of them. Mary felt the cold then -it was the third night she had seen dows lighted and that shade lowered, just after Bibbs had gone.

Bibbs stopped at his last look back at the open door, and, with a thin mantle of white already upon his shoulders, made his way, gasping in the wind, to the lee of the sheltering wing of the new house.

A stricken George, muttering hoarse-y, admitted him, and Bibbs became aware of a paroxysm within the house Terrible sounds came from the library: Sheridan cursing as never be-fore; his wife sobbing, her voice rising to an agonized squeal of protest upon each of a series of muffled detonations -the outrageous thumping of a band aged hand upon wood; then Gurney sharply imperious, "Keep your hand in that sling! Keep your hand in that sling, I say!"

"Look!" George gasped, delighted to play herald for so important a tragedy; and he renewed upon his face the ghastly expression with which he had first beheld the ruins his calamitou gesture laid before the eyes of Bibbs "Look at 'a lamidal statue!

"Look at 'a lamidal statue!"

there. I heard George just let him in. Now you'll see!" And tear-stained Mrs. Sheridan, looking out into the hall, beckened to her son.

Bibbs went as far as the doorway. Gurney sat winding a strip of white cotton, his black bag open upon a chair near by; and Sheridan was striding up and down, his hand so heavily wrapped in fresh bandages that he seemed to be wearing a small boxing-glove. His eyes were bloodshot; his glove. His eyes were bloodshot; his forehead was heavily bedewed; one side of his collar had broken loose and there were blood stains upon bis right cuff.

He swung toward the quiet figure waiting in the doorway "Bibbs' will you come down town with me Monday morning and let me start you with two vice-presidencies

"No, father," said Bibbs, gently. Sheridan looked at Gurney and the

"And I'd like the doctor to hear What 'll you do if I decide you're to high-priced a workin- man either to live in my house or work in my shop?" "Find other work," said Bibbs. "There! You hear him for yourself!

Sheridan cried. "You hear what-"Keep your hand in that sling! Yes Sheridan leaned over Gurney and shouted, in a voice that cracked and broke, piping into falsetto: "He thinks of bein' a plumber !He wants to be plumber so be can think!" He fell back a step, wiping his for head with the back of his left ha "There! That's my son! That's the only son I got now! "That's my one chance to ing any property in a city or town until he has inspected the property as to its value and insurable condition. This is a very important law and ap-plies to the issuing of all policies upon live—that thing you see in the door

Doctor Gurney thoughtfully regarded the bandage strip he had been winding, and tossed it into the open bag. "What's the matter with giving Bibbs a chance to live?" he said, coolly. "I would if I were you. You've had two that went into business." Sheridan's mouth moved grotesquely

Lesson XIII.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 24, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

(Quarterly Review)-Golden Text, II Cor. iv. 18-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson 1.-Paul at Thessalonica and Berea, Acts xvii, 1-15. Golden Text, Acts v, 31, "Him did God exalt with His right hand to be a prince and a Saviour." May we so see these men of God going from place to place preaching Jesus Christ crucified, risen, and coming again, that we shall decide to do likewise at all costs, knowing that everywhere some will believe, though others believe not.

Lesson II.—The Thessalonian Chris tians, I Thess. i and iv, 13-18. Golden Text, I Thess. iv, 14, "Them that are fallen asleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." It is refreshing to note how these people received the message, not as from mon, but from God; how effectually it wrought in them and how they proclaimed it to others, seeking to please God and not men (l. 8: 11. 4).

Lesson III.—Paul at Athens, Acts xvii, 16-34. Golden Text, Acts xvii, 28, "In Him we live and move and have our being." In this gentile city, very religious, but wholly idolatrous, Paul preached Christ as the Creator of all things and the sustainer of natural life in all His creatures, but also as crucified and risen from the dead and crucified and risen from the dead ar the appointed Judge of all mankind.

Lesson IV.—Paul at Corinth, Acts xviii, 1-22. Golden Text, Acts xviii, 9, "Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace." Working at his trade of tentmaking, along with Aquila and Priscilla, he continued at Corinth a year and six months teaching the word of God among them (xviii, 11). The opposition was great, but a night visit from the Lord Himself with the gracious message of verses 9, 10, was an unusual strength and encouragement. LESSON V.—The word of the cross, I Cor. i, 18, to ii, 2. Golden Text, Gai, vi, 14, "Far be it from me to glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." Although Paul knew much of the wisdom of this world, he renounc-ed it all for Jesus Christ, who had be-come to him the nower of Golden the come to him the power of God and the wisdom of God and who was made unto him and to all believers wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption (I Cor. 1, 17, 18, 21, 24, 30).

LESSON VI.—The greatest thing in the world, I Cor. xiii. Golden Text, I Cor. xiii. 13. "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, and the greatest of these is love"—greater than the gift of tongues or understanding mysteries or the power to work miracles, for God is Love, but without faith it is impossible to please God.

LESSON VII.-The grace of giving, II Golden Text, Acts xx, 35, "Re member the words of the Lord Jesus that He Himself said, "It is more bless-ed to give than to receive." Giving is easy when the love of Christ con-strains us, because of His great grace and love to us, and when we remem ber that we have nothing that we have not received, that all things come from Him and we can only give Him His own which He has first given to us.

Lesson VIII.—The riot at Ephesus, Acts xix, 29-41. Golden Text, I Tim. vi, 10. "The love of money is a root of all kinds of evil." The record of the riot is the least important part of this chapter, but teaches what may happen when business is interfered with. Car when business is interfered with. Car-rying the word of the Lord into all Asia and bringing the special gift of the spirit to believers, this is some thing worth while.

Lesson IX.-Journeying to Jerusa lem, Acts xx. 16-27. Golden Text. Acts xx, 32, "I command you to God and to the word of His grace." The greater part of this chapter tells of Paul's farewell to the church at Ephesis through the elders who came to Miletus to meet blin, with a mention of three months in Greece and seven days at Troas, on his way thither. He remind ed the Ephesians that for three years he had taught them the whole co of God (verses 27, 28).

LESSON X .- Paul's sorrows and com forts, Il Cor. xi, 21-33. Golden Text, II Cor. xii, 9. "My grace is sufficient for thee, for my power is made perfect in meekness." I think that the record of his sufferings, as in xi, 23-28, can or ins surerings, as in x1, 23-28, can-not be equaled in the case of any oth-er mere man. But he must have been sustained by the glory which he saw on the way to Damascus and while he was dead after his stoning at Lystra (xli, 1-5).

LESSON X1.-The arrest of Paul Acta xxl. 27-40. Golden Text. Acta xxii, 15, "Thou shalt be a witness for Him unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard." The first half of this chapter tells of the remainder of his journey to Jerusalem and his welcom there, with some incidents by the way at Tyre and Caesarca. The last hall tells of his failure to pacify law keep ing Jews. LESSON XII.-A prisoner in the cas-LESSON ATL-A prisoner in the car-tle, Acts xxii, 17.29. Golden Text, Ps. lxli, 2. "He is my refere and my fortress, my G-d in whom I trust." The story of Paul's conversion is the real topic of this lesson, and to me the central saying is, "I could not see for the glory of that light." The choice by God of such a man for such a grea work and the manner of his call is on of the greatest marvels of the whole Bible story concerning any mere man.
