Discusses Nation's Foreign Relations --- Declares That Lasting Peace in Europe Cannot Be a Victory For Either Side.

Washington .- Whether the United States shall enter a world peace league and, as many contend, thereby abandon its traditional policy of isola-tion and no entanging alliances was laid squarely before Congress and the country by President Wilson in a personal address to the senate.

For the first time in more than a hundred years, a President of the United States appeared in the senate chamber to discuss the nation's foreign relations after the manner of Washington, Adams and Madison. The many military and naval units in unieffect was to leave congress, all official quarters and the foreign diplomats amazed and bewildered. Immodiately patriotic societies and other organithere arose a sharp division of opinion over the propriety as well as the sub-stance of the President's proposal.

Startling," "staggering," "astound "the noblest utterance that has ing." fallen from human lips since the Declaration of Independence" were among the expressions of senators. The President, himself, after his address, said:

"I have said what everybody has been longing for and has thought im-Now it appears to be pospossible. sible."

The chief points of the President's address were:

ient's address were: That a lasting peace in Eu-rope cannot be a peace of victory for either side. That peace must be followed by a definite concert of power to assure the world that no catas trophe of war shall overwhelm it again. That in such a concert of powers, the United States cannot withhold its participation to guar-antee peace and justice throughout the world.

War Department officials continue to withhold comment on reports that the movement of General Pershing's regulars out of Mexico soon will be under way, and the statement an-nouncing the guardsmen designated for relief does not connect these orders with the withdrawal plans in any way. The understanding has been, however, that with the return of the expedition in Mexico, and readjustment of the border patrol, all of the state troops gradually wound be sent home. The department's statement said: "General Funston has selected these organizations chiefly in accordance with the rule of returning first those
