The GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART AUTHOR OF "THE MAN IN LOWER TEN," ETC.

CHAPTER I—Old Hilary Kingston, starting with socialism, drives the archy, and gathers round him in the hall...

CHAPTER II—In an attack on the Agrarian bank messenger, old Hilary is killed, but is not suspected of complicity.

CHAPTER III—Ward, assistant rector of St. Jude's, who consents to have her father buried from St. Jude's in the odor of sanctity.

CHAPTER IV—After the funeral the band meet at the hall and agree to go on as before, but Hilary is not to be seen.

CHAPTER V—It was, after all, the assistant rector of St. Jude's who came up the hill that hot August day.

Hilary's death had come down from the city on an early train. The rector was away on his deferred fishing trip, wife, having exchanged his clerical collar for none at all and having blundered the end of his ecclesiastical nose he was quite happy.

Ward turned in surprise. Boroday's eyes were fixed on Hilary's, with reassurance in their depths. The assistant rector was not subtle, but he had a curious feeling of something behind all this. He was uncomfortable.

Ward brought face to face with her, found her unapproachable, calm, almost serene. Found her very lovely, too, and let his ardent young eyes rest on her often than was wise.

Now and then he glanced in at the library door, but generally he watched the road up the hill. As he had watched the Church ascending, so now at any time might come Law. He would be prepared.

He had grown a beard since the St. Louis meeting. That would help. And he had wanted to return and claim old Hilary's body, until the Record extra had announced his killing.

"You Have Never Been in St. Louis?"

"Ah!" he said, bending forward to ward Boroday. "I told you I'd get it. It was in St. Louis I saw you."

Their glances clashed, the chief's intent, the Russian's cool, amused.

"I can manage," she said. "For all you eat—"

"I shall want to keep up the Saturday dinners. Let things stay as they are for a time."

It had been old Hilary's custom to have such members of the band as were available dine with him of a Saturday.

Henriette raised her hands. "Things are changed," she cried.

"You are alone here now. To have those four men—"

"That is better than having one man, Henriette."

So Hilary had her way. The Saturday dinners were resumed early in September, Boroday coming with infinite caution from his cheap boarding house in the South side.

"I had to be careful," he told Boroday, aside. "They've got wind of something, I don't know what. My room was searched today."

Boroday swore through his beard. "Then why did you come here?" he demanded.

"You know why I came," he said, in high good humor. "But I was careful. It's all right."

Old Hilary's chair had been placed by Elinor's order. She had borne up well the last month, was rather more slender, certainly more appealing.

It was Lethbridge, who, waiting until the servants had withdrawn, rose and glanced around the table.

"We've been doing well. We'll do all right again, too, as soon as this thing blows over. It was unlucky, but we've been pretty fortunate. Now we can do one of two things. For Elinor's sake, I suggest the first."

"Send Boroday to Paris to dispose of your jewels. Then get a conservative lawyer to invest the money."

"Forget you ever knew any of us." "I've seen that chap in the hall somewhere."

"The coroner drew the sheet over old Hilary's peaceful face."

"The preacher? They all look alike. It's the vest and the collar."

"The other man, with the accent. German, I take it, or—Russian."

Boroday was waiting for them at the foot of the staircase. In the library was a tray, with drinks and sandwiches. The shades had been lowered.

The chief ate and drank. And as often as he raised his glass he looked at the Russian over it. At last:

low, threw a sort radiance over her. She was dressed in white; old Hilary had disliked mourning garments.

"You are very aloof tonight," he said. She smiled up at him.

"Of what?" "Of different things—of the people down there in their houses—their lives, the things they believe; we think they are narrow, but I wonder, after all, if you and I, who believe none of those things, are not the narrow ones."

"I have always been more or less lonely. Sometimes I think if I had been sent away to school, had known other girls, it would have been better. I have never had any friends—except you, and the others."

"I don't want to be your friend, Elinor. I want to be much more."

She was rather shocked at first. She stood, looking up at him, her lips slightly parted.

"I love you. I want you to marry me, dear."

"I have no doubt of the boy's sincerity. It rang true. He stood with his arms out, and after a moment she went into them. Except for the father who was gone, this was the first love that had come into her life.

"It's a dog's life," he said. "They're not after me now. Give me something else to do, or else let me take a vacation."

Huff felt into the way of seeing Elinor once or twice a week. Talbot took him out, picking him up on the edge of town after dusk, on his way in his car to a dance or dinner at the country club, and taking him back the same way.

And the boy's infatuation for Elinor grew and thrived on those late summer meetings. Her sweetness and elusive-mindedness. Sometimes he thought her never so far from him as when she was in his arms.

"I think so. I know I want you to love me."

"I had to be content with this. On the evenings when she was alone Elinor sat in her arbor and watched the road up the hill. Ward had called twice, and each time she had been out on the long rambles she took almost daily. After his second visit, she stayed in her room for days, expecting him. But he did not come again.

She was not in love with Ward, just as she was not in love with Walter Huff. But the clergyman represented, in her strange and lonely life, something all that she had never known. He was the priest, rather than the man to her at first. The time was coming when he would be man only, and after that—"

Late in September Boroday was arrested. The arrest came as a shock to the band. As a matter of fact the police could prove nothing, but the chief had a long talk with the Russian. It seemed to him as if Boroday, the chief had recognized him. But so firmly had old Hilary's respectability been rooted in the public mind that the chief connected Boroday only casually with him.

"You know that I cannot prove this thing on you," he said. "But you know also perfectly well that I can fix you to the tune of about ten years."

"Perfectly correct in both instances," said Boroday. "You cannot prove anything and you can send me up. What is it you want?"

"I want the members of that band of yours," said the chief. "And I want your headquarters. You people have been playing hell in this county long enough; the newspapers are laughing at you. Sooner or later, we'll get you and get you off easy."

"How much time will you give me?" "The chief offered twenty-four hours and Boroday took it. At the end of that time he reported.

"I guess I'll take what's coming to me," he said. "You can fix it any way you like."

It was a bitter disappointment to the police.

ARE AWAITING FULL REPORTS

NEW ESTIMATE BY WAR DEPARTMENT EXCEEDS FIVE BILLION DOLLARS.

As Soon as the Departmental Reports Are in the Committee Will Begin Work on Budget—Provide for Big Loans.

Washington.—The new war budget to carry the government through to next July and to cover additional credits to the allies promises now to far exceed the eight billion dollars, and may amount to ten billion.

War department estimates sent to Congress call for new appropriations of $2,785,626,000 for that branch of the military establishment alone.

Estimates totalling another $1,000,000,000 or more are expected when the other departments report their needs, and in addition, Secretary McAdoo has indicated that before the year is out Congress will be asked for a $2,000,000,000 appropriation to increase the funds available for loans abroad.

As soon as the departmental reports are in, the appropriation committees of Congress will go to work on an immediate budget which probably will total in the neighborhood of $7,000,000,000.

Congressional leaders do not expect to have to provide immediately for the additional credits to the allies, as treasury officials have indicated that no appropriation for that purpose will be requested until the next session.

The gross estimates submitted by the war department totalled $5,917,378,271 but that covered all existing and expected deficiencies in the department funds, including upward of $460,000,000 already appropriated for the aviation program. This latter item will not be included in the budget, but Congress will have to provide revenues to meet it since it was not on the ledger when the war bill was framed. Congress sentiment seemed in favor of increasing the $1,470,670,000 war tax bill only to about $2,000,000,000, with authorization both for a new bond issue, possibly at a higher interest rate and in serial form and for issuance for treasury certificates of interest-bearing securities.

Adoo is said to favor a much larger levy of taxes increasing the bill's total by $1,000,000,000 or at least to $2,225,000,000.

Tillman Pushing Fertilizer Bill. Washington.—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, asked President Wilson not to exert his influence to have eliminated from the food control bill now in conference the senator's amendment appropriating $10,000,000 for the purchase of fertilizer for thin farms along the Atlantic seaboard. The President expressed willingness as far as he is concerned to have the amendment remain in the bill. He pointed out that there might be some difficulty in getting the ships to bring nitrate from Chile.

ALL CLAIMS MUST GO TO THE LOCAL BOARD

STATEMENT IS ISSUED FROM PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S OFFICE.

A DELUGE OF INQUIRIES

People Are Interested Concerning Next Steps in Draft Process and Pleas for Exemption Draw Statement.

Washington.—A deluge of personal inquiries concerning future steps in the army draft and of pleas from industrial concerns for exemption of their export workers, drew from the provost marshal's office a statement that questions must be addressed to local boards and that claims for industrial exemption must go later to the district boards.

No general class of workmen will be exempted. Provost Marshal General Crowder told the coal production committee, which sought information whether miners would be left at their work. Appeals to the provost marshal's office from employers on behalf of their workers can accomplish nothing, it was explained, as regulations promulgated by President Wilson govern all exemptions.

"The question of whether a man is more useful in his country in a peaceful pursuit than in military service is a matter to be taken up with the district board," said an announcement, and for that board to determine in the light of the circumstances surrounding each individual case.

"Procedure in case of claim for discharge on ground of industry or agriculture is explicitly outlined in the regulations. Only the upper or industrial or agricultural claim for discharge. But a man has a standing before the district board he must first be certified to it by the local or lower board as physically qualified for service, and must have had any discharge claim made before the lower board decided adversely to him.

"It has five days after he is certified to the upper board in which to file claims for discharge and five days more in which to file proof. All claims for exemption or discharge except claims for discharge on industrial or agricultural grounds, are decided originally by the local or lower board.

"The Russian retirement in eastern Galicia continues. There has been a noticeable slackening in the Austro-German advances north of the Dnieper where the Russians now are offering more spirited resistance, but south of the river to the Carpathians the Teutonic forces are moving forward almost unimpeded.

Around Tarnopol, the Austro-Germans have met with stubborn resistance from the Russians, but Prince Leopold's soldiers were able to enlarge recent gains on the eastern bank of the Sereth. Between Trembowla, and Skoromocz, south of Tarnopol, the Russians were forced to yield the crossings of the Sereth and Gniza rivers on front of about eight miles according to Berlin. Southeast of Tarnopol, Petrograd reports, the Austro-German attacks were repulsed.

The Russians have retired to new positions southeast of Trembowla, but whether they also surrendered the crossings of the Sereth and Gniza rivers on front of about eight miles according to Berlin. Southeast of Tarnopol, Petrograd reports, the Austro-German attacks were repulsed.

South of the Dnieper into the foot are retiring eastward. Kolomoia, about fifty miles northwest of Czernowitz, capital of Bukovina, was occupied by Bavarian and Austro-Hungarian troops. The town is an important railway junction and lies north of the Pruth. An unofficial report from Austrian sources says the Russians are evacuating Czernowitz.

TEN BILLIONS PROBABLE COST OF YEAR OF WAR

Washington.—Estimating the cost of the war for the coming year at $10,735,807,000, exclusive of loans to the allies, the administration informed Congress that new revenues totaling $7,000,000,000 must be raised from taxation or issuance of securities. If advancement of credit to the allies is continued at the present rate, the year's total of war expenditures will pass $15,000,000,000 and the amount of revenue required will increase.

"CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR" IS BRITISH DESERTER

Chicago.—Daniel H. Wallace, arrested at Davenport, Iowa, according to his own statement and that of fellow members of the "League of Humanity" is a deserter from the British army. According to an official of the league, the British government has set a price upon Wallace's head. Wallace claims to have been through many of the most important battles on the western front in Europe, deserting after the battle of Neuve Chapelle.
