

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She Is a Well, Strong Woman and Praises Cardui For Her Recovery.

Royse City, Tex.—Mrs. Mary Kilman, of this place, says: "After the birth of my little girl... my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me... but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable... I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot... I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family about me... for I knew I could not last many days unless I had a change for the better. That was six years ago and I am still here and am a well, strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life... I have never had any trouble from that day to this."

Do you suffer from headache, backache, pains in sides, or other discomforts, each month? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fagged-out? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

"Deep Stuff" Is What Doughboys Read Over There

Paris.—(By Mail).—Not "best sellers" but serious works is the literary refreshment demanded by the American soldiers in France, now that the war is over, and our boys are waiting to get back home. The soldier is a serious-minded person, with a deep intellectual view, all reports to the contrary. He wants to make his way in the world.

The American Y. M. C. A. in France came to this conclusion when a group of 300 doughboys, when asked what they would like as light reading matter, spoke up with one voice, and demanded books of applied mathematics. They were so much in earnest about it that the Y. M. C. A. decided to start its first class in practical arts in France. B. H. Morrison, formerly an instructor in the States Teachers' College of Greeley, Colorado, was sent for to take charge of the class.

The first real impediment to intellectual research among the buck privates presented itself when it was discovered that there wasn't so far as any could find out, an American book on applied mathematics in all France. There were the French ones, of course, but none should be expected to study French and Mathematics simultaneously. It really isn't well to mix drinks from the fere of learning in that way. Mr. Morrison, however, was undaunted by the absence of textbooks and volunteered to teach without them until the ones which were wired for immediately could arrive from the good old U. S. A.

"Y" To Use Candy To Fight Alcohol "Over There"

Association Men Will Fight Demon Rum With Proper Method—The Sweet Tooth Compete Against Wine Shop.

Paris.—(By Mail).—A sugar-coated American Expeditionary Force is the ideal now being striven for in the marketing period of the armistice and demobilization, with fighting gone and the American fighting men suddenly turned into a uniformed tourist-seeing France. Peace, as has been quoted often, has victories, and one of them is to be the victory over the evil influences which beset an idle army.

In this campaign the Y. M. C. A. has planned the drive and the soldiers are executing it. Incidentally, the Y. M. C. A. has gone into competition with the wine-shop, as this story will relate.

During the period of demobilization, the Y. M. C. A. will have an even greater responsibility than it has had while the war was on. The soldiers then had the inspiration of being in the fight—or backing up the fighters—to spur them on. They also were extremely busy and their time for recreation and for spending money was limited. But there has been a let-down since the armistice was signed, and the men in olive drab are waiting for transportation home to reduce idleness always means trouble and

WAR SAVINGS CAMPAIGN MUST BE MADE A SUCCESS

State's Task to Raise $48,000,000 Not to Be Affected by Peace. Money Has Been Spent—State's Honor at Stake.

Even though the war is over and peace will soon be declared, the War Savings Campaign is to be made a success in North Carolina by raising $48,000,000 by December 31. Secretary McAdoo has said that raising the State's War Savings allotment is the last call of the Government for war finances this year and should be the people's most immediate duty. He urges the people to redeem their War Savings pledges by Christmas and to keep on buying stamps until the State's entire quota is raised.

WAR SAVINGS CAMPAIGN MUST BE MADE A SUCCESS

There are three reasons why North Carolina must raise her War Savings allotment this year regardless of the coming of peace and the end of the war. The first is because the money called for in the War Savings allotment has already been spent. Last June the people gave the Government their word that it could depend on them for the purchase of their quota of War Savings Certificates. The Government took their word as their bond and spent the amount in equipping the soldiers with needed guns, ammunition and supplies, which act brought the war to a speedier close than would have been possible had this money not been spent. By giving their pledge the people not only helped to win the war, earlier than would have been the case otherwise, but saved millions of dollars and thousands of lives.

Now the Government comes to the citizens of the State with the request that they make good their word and redeem their War Savings pledges. As patriotic American citizens they can do nothing less than this is a debt of honor they will be glad to meet. If for no other reason, they would redeem their pledges in appreciation of the services and sacrifices the boys have made at the front. They would show their gratitude in a more substantial way than shouting victory and hurrahing for peace. They would themselves make some self-denial to show that they are worthy of the sacrifices made by the boys.

Another reason for selling the State's full quota of War Savings stamps even though the war is over is because the expense of the war are still going on. The soldiers over there as well as those over here must be fed and clothed for several months to come. As a matter of fact, the work of the soldiers over there is not yet done and their expenses, even though an armistice has been reached, continue to be enormous. Not until every American soldier is safe again on American soil will the expenses of the war be over.

A third reason for making a success of the War Savings Campaign in North Carolina is because the State's reputation is at stake. Thus far her record is 100 per cent patriotic. She has made a success of all of her Liberty Loans, her Red Cross, her Y. M. C. A. and other war measures, and now it remains to her to make a success of her only unfinished war job. The task of the people is to complete this task and give the State a 100 per cent war record.

Will they do it? North Carolina never has failed her country, and will not fail this time. Her citizens will be called on to redeem their War Savings pledges and to buy an additional amount necessary to complete the State's allotment by December 31. They will do it.

Two conditions in North Carolina assure the State a War Savings victory. The first is the unquestioned patriotism of her people, and the second is the great wealth of her citizens. With this combination North Carolina will raise her entire War Savings quota and make a 100 per cent war record.

PIDGIN ENGLISH IS POPULAR

In China the Lingo Is Used by Both Servants and Employers in Speaking to Each Other.

In China servants speak pidgin, or business, English to their employers; and servants from different parts of China will use this weird language in speaking to each other. The formation of the sentence is the same as in Chinese; the language itself is an extraordinary mixture of English, Portuguese, French and Chinese. Some of the phrases, says Mrs. De Burgh Daly in An Irishwoman in China, are very quaint and amusing.

A bishop is called "No. 1, top side" and a "pidgin" means heaven, "joss," god, "pidgin," business.

There is a story of two men who came to call upon the king of Siam when he was staying in Shanghai. They entered the hotel and asked the proprietor, a courteous American, if his majesty were at home.

"Boy," called the proprietor, "one piece king have got?"

"Have got, sir," replied the boy cheerfully.

"His majesty is at home, gentlemen," translated the proprietor.

One day, says Mrs. Daly, a large party assembled on a steamer to bid farewell to the homeward-bound friends. Wishing to make certain that the steamer should not carry us off, we informed the steward in excellent Mandarin that he was to come and warn us of her departure. He stared blankly. Some one tried Ningpo dialect—no use; Shanghai—still a blank stare. At last my husband called out:

"Boy?"

"Yessir."

"Wantchee walkee can come talker? Savee?"

"All right, sir, my savvy." Servants quickly find out our likes and dislikes in food, and accordingly, a friend of mine was fond of snipe, and often ordered them for dinner. One evening, when an unexpected guest arrived, she told Boy that since there were not enough snipe she would not eat one. Presently Boy judged her and remarked in a loud whisper:

"Misses can have snipe; one piece man no chow!"

BESSEMER IRON AND STEEL

Original Process Involved Decarbonization, or Burning Off of Excess Carbon, by Blowing Air.

Henry Bessemer, who invented the method named for him in the manufacture of iron and steel, which revolutionized the industry, was granted a patent by the British government on October 17, 1855. This was the first patent given him, notes an exchange. Additional patents were taken out in the following December and February, covering improvements. Bessemer's original process involved decarbonization, or the burning out of the excess carbon, by blowing air through pig iron. This revolutionary invention was due indirectly to the Crimean war.

Bessemer undertook to invent an improved cannon, but found all available metals too weak for the gun he sought to make. He then began experiments in steel making, with the ultimate result of the production of "Bessemer steel." His invention won for him fame and fortune and the honor of knighthood. Sir Henry Bessemer was born in England, but was of French Huguenot descent. Since his pioneer invention, the process of converting iron to steel has been vastly improved.

That Bore of a Fond Parent. Of course, you have a bright youngster, who says and does amusing things, asserts a writer.

But all children do.

Your child has not a monopoly.

If you wish to be classed with the worst of bores, continue your constant eulogy of all that your child says or does.

If, for instance, some other child said or did what your boy or girl does, would you think it so excruciatingly funny?

Every bright, healthy, intelligent child is delightful in the unfolding.

To each fond father and mother the particular angles of understanding, as they come to light, are most interesting.

But the youngster is chiefly interesting to yourself.

You see traits and characteristics in the light of what you know you are yourself. That is what makes it sound so funny.

How about the mean little tricks that your own child has and that you cannot get away from? They all have them, too. Do you tell these things? No.

Then your wonderful tales are merely another form of braggadocio. How about it?

EVERYTHING IN ITS PLACE

Mrs. H. had just employed a new maid, fresh from the old country. She asked the girl to take the baby out in the baby carriage. Gumble was delighted. She had never seen a baby before and from her articulate joy one might think that she had waited for this moment all her life. Mrs. H. was pleased to see that the girl was so willing. The baby was wrapped up and they started. Two minutes later Mrs. H. looked out of the window and her face froze with horror. Instead of rolling gently down the sidewalk the baby carriage had rolled down the middle of the street in the midst of automobiles and delivery wagons. From Gumble's expression one could see that she knew that her carriage was better than any coach on the avenue.

Judge Emory Spear of the United States district court for the southern district of Georgia, died December 13 at Macon, Ga. He was one of the most spectacular figures in American politics during the days of reconstruction, and was one of the literary geniuses of the bench. He was over seventy years of age, but took an active part in all the Liberty loans.

All government regulations affecting rail control ended with the dissolution of the cotton distribution committee of the cotton industries board.

The Southern Commercial Congress, closing its general sessions in Baltimore, approved the Bankhead measure for $500,000,000 in five annual federal appropriations for highway and post road facilities and a gigantic increase of merchant marine, with equal distribution, terminal betterment and general economical trade conditions with the South as a meritorious beneficiary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 2.24 P. M., DEC. 5, 1918

Mr. F. H. Fries, State Director, War Savings Committee, Winston-Salem, N. C.

I most earnestly urge upon you that your organization make every possible effort to the end that pledges for the purchase of War Savings Stamps be fulfilled before the close of the year. The government's monetary requirements were never greater nor more pressing than they are to-day. Expenditures for November were greater than in any similar period. These expenditures growing out of the war must be met by borrowing from the people and their magnificent response heretofore to the government's requirements makes me confident that they will not fail to continue their support to the end that all payments resulting from war necessities will be promptly met. Much remains to be done, our brave troops must be maintained and paid until their work is fully accomplished and they are returned to their homes. This is not a time for us to relax our efforts and the Treasury Department is making plans for larger and even more important work during the coming year. Please make every effort to bring this statement before the people in your district and to urge upon them the continued holding of their War Savings Certificates, the fulfillment of their pledges and additional purchases as their means permit.

W. G. McADOO.

EARLY MAN FIGHTING ANIMAL

Ancestors of Present People Were Called Upon to Face Beasts That Inhabited Plains and Rivers.

The first houses were caves. Early man was a fighting animal, and had to contend against the huge and ferocious beasts that infested the plains and rivers, observes a writer. His dwelling naturally had to be a place of security as well as a habitation. Caves were hollowed out of solid rock by rude flint instruments. Most of them were formed in the sides of cliffs and among high, rugged hills.

To those early ancestors of ours, the primeval men and women who secured, as one would think, but scanty shelter and protection from these stone caves and holes in the rock, we apply the generic term of cliff dwellers.

They were entirely ignorant of agriculture, and subsisted by hunting and fishing and on the natural products they found growing in a wild state.

What is very remarkable, at our very doors can still be seen the typical houses and handiwork of those prehistoric tribes in the caves of the Llanos river in southern Colorado. These, in most instances, are as well preserved, as when their ancient occupants deserted them—perhaps 10,000 years ago. When inhabited they were reached quite frequently by notches cut in the rock, and at other times rope ladders must have been used.

GLADSTONE WAS A HARD WORKER

Gladstone was a hard worker, with no dreads with regard to work, says the American Magazine.

He turned from political responsibilities of the heaviest to Greek for recreation, and lived his four-score years and more, just as Pope Leo XIII, turned to Latin poetry for his relaxation from world-wide burdens, and lived on beyond four-score and ten, living so hopefully that when, at the little dinner given him on his nineteenth birthday, one of the cardinals said, in proposing a toast to him, "Here's that you may live to be a hundred, holy father," the old pontiff replied: "But why limit me to a hundred?"

They were contemporaries of Ranke the German historian, who at the age of ninety-one proposed to write a history of the world in 12 volumes, one volume to be completed each year, and actually lived, I believe, to complete nearly half of it.

These men had no dreads; but they allowed their energies to work on without any fear of exhausting their vitality.

CARE OF PROMISING PULLETS

Unprofitable to Waste Feed on Under-sized Birds—Layer Is Worthy of Good Feed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It may pay to keep late-hatched pullets that are well grown for their age even though they should not lay until midwinter, but an early-hatched pullet that is under-sized at this season will never make a good hen. To get all that is possible out of all the promising pullets good care and good feeding should be the rule at all stages. It is impossible to grow pullets carelessly and on short rations until they reach the age when they should be full grown and mature, and then bring them forward quickly by a short course of good management.

A pullet that is worth keeping as a layer is worth good care and full rations all the time. A pullet that is not considered worth keeping should be eaten or marketed as soon as she is eatable.

The one exception to this is where there is more than enough waste feed for all the poultry kept. Even then it will pay better to sell the unthrifty birds as soon as their character is apparent and to buy good, thrifty ones to replace them.

DETERMINE SEX IN CHICKS

Difficult to Distinguish Until Head Parts Begin to Develop, Says Oklahoma Expert.

A correspondent asks if there is any way of telling a male chick from a female when they are a week old. The Leghorns are probably the quickest breed to develop, but even with these it would be a hard matter to tell a cockerel from a pullet at so early an age. You will have to wait until the head parts begin to develop to have the difference indicated, according to Prof. Harry Emberton of the department of poultry husbandry at Oklahoma A. and M. college.
