Paris.—There has never been any agreement on the fundamental principles of a league of nations between the French delegates or other "powers," said Professor Ferdinand Lardieu, dean of the Paris law faculty.

THRIFT SAYINGS OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Every little makes a mickle. Look before you'll find yourself behind.

He that waits upon fortune is never sure of a dinner.

Learning is to the studious and riches to the careful.

All things are cheap to the saving and dear to the wasteful.

If you would be wealthy, think of saving as well as getting.

Beware of small expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship.

A penny saved is a twopenny clear; a pin a day is a great a year.

Gain may be temporary and uncertain, but expense is constant and certain.

It is easier to suppress the first desire than to satisfy all that follow it.

TO SETTLE GREAT PEACE QUESTION

ACCEPTANCE OF NEW TERMS IS EXPECTED TO CHECKMATE ANY ACTION BY HUNS.

Washington.—Roger E. Simmons, who recently returned from a mission to Russia for the bureau of commerce, told the senate committee investigating lawless agitation in this country that if the American and allied forces were withdrawn from northern Russia the bolsheviks would engage in one of the bloodiest massacres the world had ever seen.

The witness said he was surprised at the demands made for the withdrawal of the American forces and the American and allied soldiers had found it necessary to give up ground in northern Russia, the bolsheviks had swept in and inaugurated an orgy of murder of peaceful citizens.

He said that before leaving Archangel last November 3, he had found that the American troops were well supplied and had performed great acts of heroism.

Paris.—The new armistice conditions will, in effect, settle the most important of all the peace questions, and their acceptance by the enemy, will, beyond doubt, deprive him of any opportunity of taking blackmail tactics when the peace treaty comes to be signed.

The fresh conditions follow generally the lines suggested by Premier Lloyd George since the beginning of the discussion, and it is wrong to suppose that in this matter the British have acted as mediators between extreme French and the extreme American points of view.

Both the Americans and the French have been impressed by the arguments brought forward in favor of all three tendencies which were placed in their presence and all agreed that the British scheme was not only less open to criticism, but the Paris positive the best proposal made.

The discussion has been extremely fruitful, and the result has shown to the American and British opinions as to the American attitude of no force.

Another good point to remember is that the action of the British delegates has proved once more to the French that, while the British are extremely desirous of retaining their close friendship with the Americans, they are imbued with a sense of continental responsibility and alliances and thus are able to act—between the old and the new worlds.

While the other powers have practically agreed to the mandatory principle and are willing to accept details of the various German colonies, Japan desires a more complete definition of the plan under which the two groups of Pacific islands will be entrusted to her.

If the society of nations desires standardization and unification of development of the captured German colonies which would prevent Japan from giving a distinctly Japanese character to the Marshall and Caroline islands, the plans would not be acceptable to Japan.
