Calculating Pulley Sizes for Gas Engines and Tractors.

Deane G. Carter, Agricultural Engineering Department.

West Raleigh, N. C., Jan .-With such a large increase in the of gas engines and tractors on the farm, the problem of pulley sizes is one which is causing a good deal of worry, for there is nothing quite so aggravating as a which is trying to work at or 60 strokes per minute when hitched up to the gas engine; or corn shredder which is not turning fast enough to do good work.

There is a simple rule to follow in figuring pulley sizes which makes it possible to hitch the power to the machine in such a way that good work can be done

The rule is this:

Multiply the revolutions per minute of the engine by the diameter of the engine pulley wheel and divide the result by the number of revolutions at which the driven pulley should travel. For example, if the engine turns at 250 revolutions per minute, using a 10-inch pulley, and it is desired to belt the engine to a machine which turns 125 turns per minute, the size pulley required would be found as follows Multiply 250 by 10 and divide the result by 125. The result is 20. result by 125. which means that a 20-inch pulley

A few minutes spent in study and calculation when the new ma-chine is belted up will save unnecessary labor and the results will be better.

BIRD HUNTERS' CLEVER TRICK

Natives of Northern Nigeria Assum plance of the Quarry They Are Seeking.

ne may have called you "a bird" with exclamatory accents of admiration, but have you ever tried to act like a bird or to appear like a bird to attract a real bird? Of course you haven't, for this isn't the way we in this country go hunting, even though we may be the most ardent of sports-men. It is, however, one bird-hunting method in Africa, writes Temple Manning in the St. Louis Republic.

shows how a dusky beau sets out to fascinate one of the feathered natives of the and plains of northern Nigeria. It was in Bassa, to be exact, where the photograph from which the picture is drawn was snapped. And the person who was caught in the very act of enticing a bird belongs to the tribe which goes by the name of Munshi.

Industrious and very good tillers of the soil as they are, the Munshis are said to be quarrelsome and great lovers of alcohol, which they sometimes contrive to smuggle in and to drink with vast speed. It may be, indeed, that this Munshi hoped to catch his bird for the drink it would bring. any rate, he was most serious as he went about his bird-acting.

Clad in a straw shirt to give the ect of the scene in which he moved, hunter held the artificial bird's ad close to his own and began to stalk his quarry. To human eyes view ing him from a distance he looked ostrich than anything else. To bird eyes perhaps he appeared like a scene the surrounding country-that is, a bird teetering on a coal-black branch, swaying above a field of grain that moved in the wind.

It seems odd that so simple an exat should be so successful. It is true that the hunters sometimes return come back laden with the birds they set forth to get. In this country and In these days, when hunters sometimes seem almost as numerous as the hunt-ed, it would be exceedingly dangerous to appear like the quarry, for a bullet most certainly would be the reward. But in Nigeria the method is a success, although it requires much practice to imitate a bird well enough to deceive

Marvelous Gains In American Shipping at Baltimore.

Baltimore Sun.

Figures showing the extent to which American shipping is wresting supremacy from foreign countries is shown in the review of shipping for 1919 submitted yesterday to the Chamber of Com-merce by William P. Ryan, col-lector of the port. The totals are little short of startling, revealing that last year one in every three ships that entered this port were American vessels, while a decade ago only one in every 30 flew the Stars and Stripes.

The report shows that in 1919 789 ocean going vessels brought cargoes to Baltimore, represent-ing a tonnage of 1,984,099. Of this number 256 were American, with a total tonnage of 733,955. while 533 bearing foreign flags had a tonnage of 1,250,144. For the same period there cleared with cargo a total of 1,087 vessels, 450 of which were American. The total tonnage cleared was 2.414.

664, of which 1,483,987 was for eign and 930,575 American. figures mean in terms of American shipping and Baltimore com-merce is gained by comparison with similar reports made for 1914, for a decade ago and for two decades ago. In 1914 of 827 clearances only 15 were of American ships. Of 734 cargoes entered at the Custom House only 24 were The tonnage entered was 1.512.672 foreign and 43.968 American.
