The Republican meeting held in Greensboro to dish out the Federal pie did not go off to suit Marion Butler and he proceeds to make a statement, using the phrase as "hog combine" to describe how things were done. That's rough on Linney and Morehead, but the phrase may rise some day to smite some of Butler's cherished plans. They ignored him, hence the wail.

Reports say the Easter sunrise services at the Moravian church-yard in Winston-Salem drew a crowd estimated at eighteen thousand. Some crowd that, and no doubt a majority of them rose earlier than they will till another Easter comes. It is stated that many States were represented in the multitude.

The Tobacco Farmers Are Signing The Contract.

Meetings within the last two weeks were held at Glencoe, Stony Creek, Martin's School, Mahan and Oakwood.

A large number of signatures were secured at every place except Mahan. These gentlemen were favorable towards the contract but wanted to wait for their neighbor to sign first.

Over at Oakwood we held a rather unique meeting on the roadside where farmers were working on a new road. After explaining the contract every one, except two, signed the contract.
