GRAHAM, N. C., THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1922

NO. 22

EVANS DEFEATS HINSDALE FOR SOLICITOR.

Farmers' and Farm Women's Conventions in August.

(By Maxwell Gorman.)

Raleigh, July 4.—Scandal mongering at back-room headquarters where a woman politician presided and showed her "wares" to people invited to call, was the new feature of campaigning in this, the Raleigh judicial district, that caused a landslide of protesting ballots to put W. F. Evans, an "orphan boy who had a good mother," over the top by nearly 2,000 majority for solicitor and drowned out Mr. Hinsdale and his alleged "underworld" supporters by a majority that stunned the friends of the defeated candidate.

The great moral lesson which the result teaches is more important than the election itself, and it is to be hoped the politicians involved will see it as it emblazons in the chirography on the walls.

Assaulting the private life of every man (women are facing it, too, in a most nauseous form) who offers for public service, must stop or the offices of trust and honor as well as of emoluments will be common division among reprobates who have no character and never aspired to have any—and Raleigh in this election has started to stop it.

It Will Soon Be Up to Evans.

"So far, so good. Now, if Evans will deliver the goods as promised, we will not have worked and wrought in vain," was the consensus of comment after the election by many men not politicians, who "shucked their coats" and went after the Raleigh ring of politicians who have been cracking the whip over the heads of the people of Raleigh for many years.

Boasting reformers have had their day, which day was usually limited to the end of the day of election. The people who have so pronouncedly opened the door to Solicitor-elect Evans expect and believe he will measure up to his promises—and the "stop-rocket" brigade and the "underworld" are not the only birds in sight, Mr. Evans. You want to draw a bead on some of the forty "leading" lawyers who "practice" at the bar, and some others can be given a bad case of belly-ache when the new solicitor gets into official action—and a "killing" along the line of reform in the courthouse is also demanded, sir!

We believe Evans will "deliver the goods." That is what he was elected to do because of his promises, and it is the fond hope and belief of his friends that he will be unlike some others, who have witnessed sin of invidious mien and at last "embraced it." Let not your ardor cool with the counting of ballots, but measure up to the duty and possible greater opportunities for service to the real people its prompt and efficient performance may mean to you!

The shyster lawyers are fair game, and the potting season will open about the time you qualify for your new job. We believe, Mr. Evans, you have the sense of duty and will recognize the fact that the people are demanding a fairer play of justice in the courtroom and have often been denied it by shyster lawyers "practicing" at the bar.

Sending the so-called "underworld" to the roads or state farm, is not more important than cleaning house in your own profession. We voted for you in the hope that you have the sense of duty to tackle this job, too.

No Bailey Victory in Evans' Election.

There were several intermingling "issues" that contributed to Evans' election and the victory can be laid to no one consideration. Evans in his last speech in Raleigh did not say a word calculated to confirm the statement of some that he had accepted Bailey's forced company upon him, except to confirm the belief that it was endured rather than invited.

Certain it is, that Watts himself did not antagonize Evans' ambition, and Josiah Bailey knows who was present when he (Bailey) first presented these or similar charges against Evans at the Executive Mansion, after Manager Heriot Clarkson had chosen Evans as Morrison's director for Watts in the campaign two years ago. Moreover, some of Watts' "force" and strongest personal friends voted for Evans and did much to encompass his election. The new solicitor is not Bailey's child by an ascertained majority!

Farmers' State Convention

The Farmers' State Convention this year is one of the events that no farmer can afford to miss.

Mr. U. B. Blalock, the president, is going to Detroit to personally request Henry Ford to speak at the convention.

The names of some of the prominent speakers follow:

From Outside the State.—Hon. A. F. Lever, author Smith-Lever bill; Hon. Henry C. Stuart, ex-governor of Virginia; H. S. Mobley, International Harvester Company; Roland Turner, general agricultural agent, Southern Railway; J. R. Howard, president Farm Bureau Federation; Mrs. Charles Schuttler of Ohio.

Within the State.—Hon. Robert N. Page, ex-member of Congress; E. C. Branson, professor Rural Social Science, University of North Carolina; F. P. Latham, State Board of Agriculture; G. A. Norwood, president Tobacco Growers' Association.

Raleigh.—Hon. Cameron Morrison, Governor; Dr. Clarence Poe, editor Progressive Farmer; Dr. E. C. Brooks, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Dr. B. W. Kilgore, director of the Extension Service, and several very able speakers within the organization.

There will be demonstrations of the radio, cotton dusting, and others. Reduced railroad fare. Meals 50 cents each. Lodging free (take sheets, pillow slips and toilet articles).

The Farmers' and Farm Women's State Convention.—The Farmers' State Convention at Raleigh, August 1, 2 and 3, this year, will furnish a place for a profitable, entertaining and economical vacation.

Tuesday, August 1st, will be "get-together day." There will be some stirring speeches, followed at night by a community sing and free punch.

Wednesday, August 2d, will be devoted to Country Life. The topics will include The Home, The Church, The School, Literature.

Live Stock and Horticulture will also receive attention on this date, followed at night by a play.

Thursday, August 3rd, the keynote of the convention will be "Co-operative Marketing and Combating the Boll Weevil." The following co-operative organizations will be represented by officers or others, who will explain just what they are doing:

Co-operative Cotton Marketing; Tri-State Tobacco Growers; Peanut Growers' Exchange; Truck Growers; Peach Growers; Farm Bureau Federation; State Beekeepers' Association.

There will be demonstrations, including The Radio and Cotton Dusting. Reduced railroad fares and 50-cent meals at the State College, with lodging free, makes this an opportunity for the farmer to go and take his family for an outing that will be entertaining, instructive and economical.

Two Sets of Brothers at West Point and Annapolis.

The following about two brothers and two other brothers (twins) is a long way out of the ordinary:

Gerauld L. Olmstead won highest honors at Annapolis Naval Academy this year while his brother, George, was second in the class at West Point Military Academy. Albert Vincent Kastner, graduated from Annapolis while his twin brother, Alfred Eugene Kastner, graduated from West Point.

An old custom was for unmarried girls to fast on Midsummer Day, lay a meal on the table at midnight, leave the door open, and wait for their future husbands to enter and eat.

J. A. White, a well-known Kentucky farmer, said he could beat his hands shucking corn after taking Tanlac. For sale by Farrell Drug Co., Graham, N. C.

SENATOR NORRIS'S SPEECH AGAINST TARIFF BILL.

Senator Simmons Calls it Best He Ever Heard.

Washington Correspondence.

One of the briefest and one of the best speeches made in the Senate against the pending Fordney-McCumber Profiteers' Tariff bill was made by Senator George W. Norris (Rep., Nebr.), discussing the rates on shotguns, rifles, etc.

The House bill imposed the following high taxes: On shotguns valued at more than $5, $1.50 each; valued at more than $5 and not more than $10, $1 each; valued at $10 and not more than $25, $1.50 each; with an additional ad valorem rate of 35 per cent, which the Senate Committee made 45 per cent.

In his best, ironical vein, Senator Norris said:

"I am surprised that the Senator (Mr. Simmons) does not understand it. Of course, it is not for protection, because we send guns all over the world. We command the world's market in guns. There is no protection in it. It is not for revenue, of course, because none are imported; but the Senator forgets—and this applies to a good many other things in this bill—that there is another reason that might have a practical effect, and I am surprised that the Senator does not understand it. Has he forgotten the men who are engaged in making guns in this country? Has he forgotten that the war is over and that their market is probably somewhat interfered with, and that they need some assistance from somebody? Does not the Senator realize, too, that while there are no guns imported, because they cannot compete with us, there are, nevertheless, people in other countries who make guns?

"We have this market. We are reaching out to get the balance of the world. We want a tariff away up high so that we can raise the price here and still keep out the foreigner, while we go out into the foreigner's country and sell guns at less than cost and put him out of business. We could not do that if we did not have the American follows here toiling and working to make up here what we lose abroad, and hence we have to have him. It is necessary. If we can raise the tariff high enough to keep out the other fellow, and raise the price here up to the level of the tariff wall and compensate ourselves while we go out and conquer the rest of the world in the gun business, when we have driven the other fellows out of business in their home countries, which may take some time, we can increase the price there. We could not do that without losing some money unless we had this thing in the bill, and so we have it in here.

"It may be pretty hard on the fellows who want to buy guns to shoot prairie dogs and rabbits, but it is a splendid thing for the millionaire who makes the gun. The Senator has forgotten about that, and while he is traveling out to rather in the world market we will toil and sweat and work and labor and keep the wolf from his door. That is why we have this tariff, not only on guns but on a good many other things. We are going to do the same thing with sewing machines and paints, and a whole lot of other things; and will it not be a glorious day when that time comes, when our millionaires will control the world, and we will go hungry and toil while they are getting around to do it? We ought to be glad of the opportunity to make these sacrifices. We ought to rejoice that we are the instrumentalities by which these men will not only profiteer but continue to profiteer. They have us captured now. We want them to capture everybody else, and let everybody pay tribute to their greatness and to their grandeur."

"The Senator from North Carolina has not grasped the idea yet. He ought, it seems to me, to be able to understand, and he will when he gets as old as I am and lives as long as I have, that one of the blessings that comes to us through such legislation as this is that for every drop of sweat and every bit of toil that our people go through and all the suffering they have to endure they are going to be able to see somebody living high and flying with the geese."

Senator Simmons on Norris' Speech.

Senator Norris's brief speech against the Profiteers' Tariff bill won the following eulogy from Senator Simmons, ranking minority member of the Finance Committee:

"I want to say that I have heard quite a number of good tariff speeches, but I think the one just delivered by the Senator from Nebraska is the best tariff speech that I have ever heard. It is the best indictment of this bill that has been made. It is the best indictment of the application of the principle of protection so as to help those who do not need help, and oppress those who are already overburdened that has been made."

"I want to express my gratitude and my admiration for the Senator. He has done the public a service in making this thing so clear, and I hope and believe that what he has said will be taken by the press of the country to the people of the country. He said it in a vein of irony, it is true, but an irony which will be understood."

"There is no question about the fact that the people are beginning to understand this bill pretty well. Outside of this chamber, in private conversation and in public gatherings, it is being discussed with a freedom with which it is not discussed here, and the volume of protest and criticism is growing every day."

"The sentiment of the country is overwhelmingly against it. In fact, when you get outside of this Chamber it is very difficult to find anybody, outside of the beneficiaries, the representatives of the combinations, whom this bill was made to subvert, who defend these rates."

RACES AT RALEIGH FAIR THIS FALL.

Purses This Year Will Aggregate $5,000.

Raleigh, June 26.—In order to give variety to the race track events of the State Fair, which will be held in October, the officials are this year offering purses which aggregate more than $5,000, paying $500.00 for eight events on the speed program, which this year revives the old sport of running races in North Carolina. It has been many years since running races, jockeys in their gaily bedecked suits and speedy runners, have been seen on the fair ground race tracks. There have been many requests from lovers of this old sport that these running races be put back on the speed program.

The difficulty of getting up sufficient interest among the stable owners and horsemen to put on the races, is now removed and there is every indication that a very fine start will be made in reviving this thriller. Recent performances of the last few years, with their record-breaking events, have started anew the thrill of the North Carolina public which watched the runner and his mount flash past the judges' stand on the home stretch. There is nothing else like it.

A number of horse owners have already signified their intention of adding runners as well as trotters and pagers to their entries for the events in October. All horses must be entered on or before Wednesday, October 11, and the racing program will begin the following Tuesday, October 17. No entry fee is required, but five per cent is deducted from the winners. The usual five per cent will be required of entries for the other events, but there will be no deductions from the winners. All races will be conducted under the rules of the national association. T. M. Arrasmith, well known horseman and trackman of Hillsboro, will be the official starter for all events.

ANNA DICKIE OLESEN

Democratic Nominee for U. S. Senator in Minnesota, Styles Herself "David's Little Sister."

The nomination of Anna Dickie Olesen by the Democrats of Minnesota to be United States Senator—the first woman ever to be nominated for that exalted office—is in harmony with the policy of the Democratic party and the Democratic national organization to give women an equal chance with men in all party affairs.

When Mrs. Olesen announced her candidacy she also announced that she was out to slay "Goliath," the Giant, the ogre of Special Privilege which owns and controls the Republican party as at present constituted.

"Are you David?" she was asked.

"No; I am David's little sister," she replied.

This little wonder woman of Minnesota has the true spirit of the crusader and his fighting equipment besides. One of her first acts was to challenge her opponent, Senator Kellogg (Newberry Republican), to a joint debate.

In her first statement following the primaries she made it clear that she claims and asks no favor because of her sex, although she is a mother and a housewife. It is conceded, however, that her nomination will have a stimulating effect upon women throughout the country, who have received news of her nomination with enthusiasm. Her equipment as a public speaker and her wide understanding of public questions, together with her strong human qualities and her sympathy and understanding of the common people are such as to insure that she will reflect great credit upon her sex as well as her party.

Already she has focused the eyes of the nation upon her candidacy, which will have the effect of bringing under public scrutiny the record of the pseudo-Progressive Kellogg, who long since qualified as a member of the Old Guard. Minnesota now has the opportunity of her life to make progressive political history and to write the name of the state first on the list of states with women Senators by electing Mrs. Olesen.

Republican Failures as Campaign Issues.

From article by Cordell Hull, Chairman Democratic National Committee, in N. Y. Times.

Issues as stated will in many cases arise from Republican failure, omission or incompetency with respect to the following:

Failure of promise to reorganize and consolidate the Government department and to reduce the number of employees and effect large savings; to revise and reduce internal taxes; to establish a merchant marine policy; to effect real economy; to settle Mexican problems; to persecute criminal profiteers and suppress profiteering; to establish a working permanent immigration policy; to restore reciprocal foreign markets; to propose any definite foreign policies; to establish an association of nations; to collect even the $241,000,000 due for expenses of army on the Rhine; to adopt any practical domestic or international economic policy; to establish any industrial policies offering a just and peaceful settlement of the relations between capital and labor; to settle any industrial problems; to enforce the Jones shipping law, after threatening to impeach Wilson for his refusal to do so; to settle claims against Germany growing out of the war; to establish a definite army and navy policy; to observe either the letter, spirit or the policy of the Civil Service laws; to make disposition of alien property seized during the war; to provide for better farm credits relating to production and distribution and for cheaper farm and other transportation; to reduce rent, fuel and high cost of living; to effect either a practical or sensible revision of the tariff; to prevent the industrial panic of 1921-22, and to maintain prosperity; to put into practical and successful application the budget system, with the result that the Treasury will have a favorable paper balance for 1922 only by postponing payment of accrued obligations to 1923, during which year a deficit of more than $500,000,000 is inevitable without new tax levies.

STATE COLLEGE TEXTILE DEPARTMENT.

Had 175 Students Past Year and 24 Graduates—Only School to Win National Association of Cotton Manufacturers' Medal.

The Textile Department of the North Carolina State College, which is the North Carolina Textile School, has had a very successful year's work. More students have been registered this year than in any previous year, and also a larger class has been graduated. The graduating class, which numbered twenty-four, have all been located and will work in the different mills and allied industries.

At the Commencement exercises Mr. L. W. Clark, General Manager of the Carolina Cotton and Woolen Mills, Spray, North Carolina, presented to Mr. Wesley Irwin Plekens of Charlotte, North Carolina, the student's medal which is given annually by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers to the student having the highest proficiency in his work. In order to obtain this medal the school must fill the following requirements: There must be a good equipment for instruction in cotton manufacturing. The institution must be of recognized standard. There must be at least fifty students taking the textile course, and at least four competitors for the medal. The Textile Department fills all these requirements, as there were registered one hundred and seventy-five students, and a graduating class of twenty-four. This is the only textile school in the South that has been awarded the medal.

A Graham Citizen Tells of His Experience.

You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt a Graham endorsement?

Read it:
A. F. Webster, Poplar Street, Graham, says: "I suffered severely from pains across the small of my back and there was a soreness through my kidneys. The kidney secretions were unnatural, too. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and soon was much better in every way. I have had but little pain in my back since and the kidney secretions have cleared up."

Over ten years later Mr. Webster added, "I would not be without Doan's Kidney Pills for anything as I think they are the best kidney medicine on the market. They put me on my feet when I had kidney complaint and I advise anyone who has this trouble to take them."

"Whitewashing Done Here!"

Washington Correspondence.

If any one desires to retain a souvenir of the Harding administration, now headed for oblivion, he or she can cut out and frame the following letter from President Harding to the notorious Nat Goldstein of St. Louis, who admitted having taken $2,500 of Lowden campaign funds when a candidate for delegate to the Republican National Convention of 1920, and who was later named by President Harding for Collector of Internal Revenue at St. Louis:

"My Dear Mr. Goldstein: I have been intending for some days to make an acknowledgment of the very gracious and considerate letter which you addressed to me under the date of May 10.

"You very promptly recognized a difficult political situation, for which neither of us is responsible, and you took yourself out of it in a very prompt and considerate way. I should like you to know of my understanding of your feelings and my appreciation of your thoughtfulness in helping to solve it, though you were fully conscious of the undeserving character of the attack which your nomination brought out. I can assure you that Senator Spencer has said only the most pleasing things concerning you, else I should not have so approved of your nomination.

"With very best regards, I am, Very sincerely, WARREN G. HARDING."

In view of President Harding's endorsement of Senator Newberry before the Newberry case was decided in the senate, his determination to stand by Attorney General Daugherty despite the serious charges against that official and the above certificate of character to Goldstein, it is suggested that the next Billboard advertisement of prosperity credited to the White House shall also bear the sign "Whitewashing Done Here."
