BEANS ARE RICH IN VITAMINES.

May be Grown in Garden Throughout the Year.

In North Carolina a continuous supply of beans may be had from early spring until the first frost in the fall. Beans are rich in vitamins which are essential to good health. Also green beans are bulky and some bulky foods should be eaten at every meal.

"To produce beans successfully in the home garden" says R. F. Payne, Extension Horticulturist for the State College of Agriculture "the soil should be broken deep and thoroughly pulverized with a harrow and drag. It should be well drained and contain plenty of organic matter. A sandy loamy soil is preferred for the early crop and a heavier soil for the mid-seasons and late crop.

"Stable manure should be applied to other crops in the rotation. A good high grade fertilizer, applied at the rate of 800 pounds per acre will give good results on most soils.

"Beans should be planted 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep on heavy soils and 2 to 3 inches deep on light soils. Snap beans should be 2 1/2 to 3 feet between rows and 3 to 4 inches apart in the row. Pole beans and pole limas should be 4 ft. between rows and 2 to 3 feet apart in the row. Bush limas should be 3 ft. between rows and 6 to 10 inches apart in the row.

"The best varieties of green podded pole beans are Horticultural Pole, Lazy Wife, and Kentucky Wonder. Green podded bush beans are Stringless Green Pod, Red Valentine, and Refugee. Wax podded pole beans are Golden Carmine and Golden Cluster. Wax podded bush beans are Pencil Podded Black Wax, Rust-proof Golden Wax and Wardwell's Kidney Wax. Dwarf Limas are Improved Henderson's Bush Limas, and Fordhook's Bush Limas. Pole limas are Early Leviathan and Sieva.

A. W. McLean For Governor.

Bailey the Crank-Shaft of Machine.
 (The Cleveland Star, March 14, 1924)
 Shelby, N. C., Mar. 1, 1924.
 Dr. N. Y. Gulley,
 Wake Forest, N. C.

Dear Doctor:
 I have your favor of February 28, and concur with you that the most cordial relations exist between you and your many former law students. Personally, my fondness for my school days at old Wake Forest increases with the years. My thoughts frequently turn to you and your most interesting lectures in the classroom. I am quite sure that you do not have an old student who is more appreciative of your splendid efforts, or is personally fonder of you than myself. It is therefore always a pleasure to me to hear from you.

I am, however, quite a bit surprised at the contents of your letter, but assure you that what I have to say is only in love for and with the hope of being of some service to you. You have been in close touch with the political movements in our state for a much longer period than I, but I have been equally in personal touch and knowledge of the activities of Mr. Bailey, concerning whom you write.

I agree with you that "the candidacy of Mr. Bailey is unique," but in my humble opinion it is unique because his platform and verbal enunciations are in direct conflict with the life and activities of the same Mr. Bailey during the past 25 years. The principal part of his platform, and the part of which you refer, relates to his opposition to the democratic "machine." You know as well as I that Mr. Bailey has for many years been the crank-shaft to the democratic machine in North Carolina. I, with many others, have been fighting the battles for a free and untrammelled democracy in North Carolina when Bailey and Watts were our most vigorous and aggressive opponents. Bailey, as you know, held office under the "machine" for many years. He and his revenue agents in the last gubernatorial campaign were the principal factors in defeating the candidate who opposed the machine. After manipulating the machine and his revenue agents to encompass the defeat of Gardner for governor, Bailey continued to help manage the affairs of the machine and dispense its patronage. He then strongly recommended Watts for tax commissioner of the state, the man who had been his right bower in his activity in behalf of the machine. Mr. Bailey has either now been converted or turned traitor to the machine. If his conversion is real, he should be content to carry a gun and fight as a private in the ranks until he has proved his faith by his works. If he has merely deserted the machine for office, his case will merit no discussion.

Mr. Bailey's candidacy is also "unique" by reason of his platform on taxation, which likewise is a complete reversal of his former activities and utterances on the subject. I was a member of the legislature in 1919 and heard that famous bout between Bailey and Maxwell. I, together with a number of other members of the legislature, doubted the wisdom of Revaluation Act for fear it would place an unreasonable per cent of the burden of taxation upon the land and the small home owner. To answer this objection the finance committee prepared and asked for the passage of a constitutional amendment to permit the levy of an income tax with the promise that, enacted, the state property tax would be eliminated. At that time Mr. Bailey opposed the income tax amendment, and in his argument before the committee urged that same be defeated and the revenue required be obtained by increasing the tax upon land, livestock, the farmer's ass and his hog. That was the time when Mr. Bailey made his famous declaration that the farmer would "charge you more for a ham than the tax value of the whole hog." At a time so recent Mr. Bailey was championing the interest of the corporations and the big wealth of the state. * * * So you can clearly see his present campaign is very "unique."

You likewise know as well as I, that since Mr. Bailey's connection as a trustee of Wake Forest College was severed he has consistently opposed practically every Wake Forest man and Baptist who has sought political preferment of note in our state. He has not only done this, but he has so timed and phrased same as the opposition of "a Baptist and a Wake Forest man" so as to command extra weight and influence. I consider that this was peculiarly true in your case. When I, together with many of your old students and friends throughout the state, were going out to battle for you for Supreme court judge with strong prospects of victory, we suddenly met the vigorous and active opposition of this same Mr. Bailey, who opposed you to the limit.

For these reasons and many others I cannot support Mr. Bailey for governor, and believe, if you will calmly reflect on same, you will agree with me. Whether you do or not, I shall always retain the same admiration, respect and veneration for you.

I would appreciate a hearing. With every good wish I am,
 Yours cordially,
 O. M. MULL.

WHO MR. MULL IS.

The gubernatorial campaign in this section is awakening and the Gullett letter and the O. M. Mull reply will doubtless serve to kindle more interest. Mr. McLean has a strong and courageous supporter in the person of O. M. Mull. He is at present the democratic county chairman of Cleveland county. Mr. Mull is well known in Cleveland county for his high character and vigorous support of men and measures he deems worthy. For 15 years he was the law partner of Federal Judge E. Yates Webb until Judge Webb was appointed by President Wilson to the Federal bench. He managed with great success the campaign of Clyde R. Hoey for congress and four years ago was the 9th district manager for O. Max Gardner for governor. He knows the people of the 9th district and they know and trust him.
