EXHORBITANT TARIFF
MAKES TRIBUTARY CLASSES

Views of Hamilton and Jefferson

"Exorbitant duties on imported articles... tend to render other classes of the community tributary, in an improper degree, to the manufacturing classes, to whom they give a premature monopoly of the markets. They sometimes force industry out of its natural channels into others in which it flows with less advantage."

The foregoing quotation might easily be attributed to a Democratic candidate for Congress in the year 1926, but it is the deliberate statement of Alexander Hamilton, Federalist, first Secretary of the Treasury, to whom Republicans usually refer with a respect similar to that which Democrats bear for Thomas Jefferson.

Hamilton said that and more against exorbitant duties in an article addressed "To the People of the State of New York"—one of the articles in favor of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, written about 140 years ago, and going to make up "The Federalist."

Hamilton was arguing in favor of the proposed provisions of the Constitution on taxation. He was for federal power to collect duties on imports, but was opposed to restricting the federal power of taxation to such duties, for if the Government could not command other resources he said it "would frequently be tempted to extend these duties to an injurious excess."

"There are persons," he added, "who imagine that they can never be carried to too great a length, since the higher they are, the more it is alleged they will serve to discourage an extravagant consumption, to produce a favorable balance of trade, and to promote domestic manufactures. But all extremes are pernicious in various ways."

Then Hamilton went on, as shown in the first quotation, to say that exorbitant duties would "tend to render other classes of the community tributary, to an improper degree, to the manufacturing classes."

Hamilton's warning and Jefferson's observation of what actually came about, are strikingly alike. In 1826, writing to James Madison, Jefferson described a condition of agricultural depression, such as now obtains, as follows:

"Reduced prices, the general prostration of the farm business, under levies for the support of manufacturers."

Such levies upset the economic "equilibrium," the sage of Monticello said, and forced agriculture to a status inferior to manufactures.

Hamilton favored greater federal power than did Jefferson. Yet, in tariff rates, Hamilton was mild by comparison with the modern "protectionists."

The tariffs he advocated did not exceed 7 1/2 to 12 1/2 per cent when industries were really in their infancy, while the present Fordney-McCumber law rates are many times higher on industries over 100 years old; and leaders of the dominant wing of the Republican party of the present time, like Senator Butler of Massachusetts, Republican National Chairman, are calling for still higher rates, still more "protection" to industries already subsidized by the highest tariff rates in our history.

HENS NO LONER GO ON A STRIKE

Many who never could make hens lay when eggs are high are getting baskets full, thanks to the discovery of science.

Peanut products have brought about the change. A Southern chemist began experimenting years ago, and the result was Gubernut Laying Feed, a mixture of ground peanut cake, fish scrap and grains.

It made hens quickly grow new feathers after molting and start laying. Even the heavier breeds of poultry became layers at about five months.

If you want winter eggs, you must start now to give them the necessary elements to mature quickly and moult rapidly.

When used, no meat scraps or mash are needed, for this feed is a mash and scratch combined. Insures a balanced ration—makes each hen get sufficient protein, and protein in every needed form.

Any of the dealers listed below can supply Gubernut Laying Feed, and money will be returned if not satisfied with the first bag.

One Hundred Eighty Classes in North Carolina
Schools Win in Race for Health.
Durham Heads the List.

One hundred eighty classes of girls and boys in the schools of North Carolina won National honors in health education the past year, according to a report sent out by Dr. L. B. McBrayer, Managing Director of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association.

Durham city and county lead the state with 84 pennants. Asheville won second with 49. Salisbury, Wadesboro, Thomasville, Garner, Cary, Ayden schools and Stokes rural school in Pitt county made the records in winning pennant honors.

These pennants are awarded by the National Tuberculosis Association of New York City to schools children for superior work in the Modern Health Crusade. The Modern Health Crusade is a method of school health education financed in most instances by the Christmas Tuberculosis Seals. It encourages health procedures that help to build strong, healthy bodies, thereby adding to conquer tuberculosis, the treacherous foe of childhood and youth. These activities include good nutrition, adequate sleep and rest, cleanliness and preventive procedures. The membership in the National pennant winning classes had a weekly achievement record of 54 or more chores taken from the following group of health rules:

1. I washed my hands before each meal. I cleaned my finger nails.
2. I brushed my teeth after breakfast and the evening meal.
3. I carried a handkerchief and used it to protect others if I coughed or sneezed.
4. I tried to avoid accidents to others and myself.
5. I drank four glasses of water, but no tea, coffee nor any harmful drink.
6. I had three wholesome meals, including a nourishing breakfast. I drank milk.
7. I ate some cereal or bread, green (watery) vegetable and fruit, but ate no candy nor "sweets" unless at the end of a meal.
8. I went to toilet at my regular time.
9. I tried to sit and to stand straight.
10. I was in bed ten hours last night, windows open.
11. I had a complete bath on each day of the week checked.

THE STORMING OF THE GATES

This picture is typical of many such scenes enacted daily at the main gates of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia where the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence is being celebrated. The "shot" was made from outside the gates and shows the long sweep of historic Broad street, the main artery of the exposition. To the left can be seen one of the capitol of the Palace of Liberal Arts and Manufactures which covers nearly eight acres of grounds and which houses some of the finest exhibits ever seen. The Exposition will continue until December 1.
