Agents' Annual Meeting
Of Great Importance.

The annual short course and conference of the home and farm demonstration agents to be held at State College during the week of December 6 will be of unusual importance this year, according to Dean I. O. Schaub, of the School of Agriculture.

The meeting will face some of the most important problems recently arising in the agricultural progress of North Carolina and it is planned that a definite program of work will be adopted which all extension workers will follow next year. The farm agents now employed in 77 counties of the State will gather on Monday morning, December 6. They will begin immediately to organize their course of study and to plan a program for such general discussions of their work as they may wish to take up. The home agents, employed in 50 counties, will arrive a few days earlier and will begin their class room activities on December first. The conference will close on December 11.

Dean Schaub states that a clear cut program will be followed during the entire time the agents are at the College. Many of the general meetings at which invited speakers will appear are to be held at night so as to conserve time. Dean Schaub has invited Dr. H. C. Ramsower of the Ohio State University to give a lecture on qualities of leadership in agricultural workers. Two or three of the leading thinkers of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington have also been invited to appear before the group.

The program as now arranged calls for one two-hour joint conference each day while the agents are at college. At this period, the agents will discuss those matters of interest to both the men and women. Some of the lectures of the specialists will also be delivered at this period. One of the greatest problems before the meeting will be the adoption of a program of work next year.

Big Apple Crop to Boost U. S. Health

America should have its healthiest year in 1927, if the old adage about apples and health still holds, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The estimated apple crop for this year is more than 234,000,000 bushels, which is the largest crop since 1914 and the third largest in the history of the United States. Because the 1926 production is fully one-third larger than last year, apple prices have dropped to the lowest point in years and give promise of remaining at a low level throughout the season. Practically all of the increased production of the commercial apple crop this year was made in the East, the principal apple orchard section of the country, according to the Foundation. Here favorable conditions prevailed throughout the growing season, although some sections reported the crop as maturing later than usual. The crop in the Northwest, the only other important commercial apple section in the country, however, suffered severely from freezing in late September with the result that yields were materially reduced.

The export trade is likely to affect the apple market to some extent. While increased consumption in England, one of the big consumers of American apples, is not expected this year because of the continued unemployment which is keeping the buying power of the country low, Germany, another of the biggest consumers, is taking more American apples than the year before. Improvements in the purchasing power of the German people and reduced apple crops in European countries which compete with the United States in the German apple market are given as the reasons for this year's increase in the American apple trade with that country.

Tom Tarheel says the main reason why his children are so healthy is because they get all the milk and butter they need.

Poultry Adds Income
To Johnston Farm

A flock of poultry on the farm of T. W. Ives of Johnston county has more than made up for the low price of cotton and has returned a net cash income of $272.01 in addition to $300 worth of poultry left on the place.

Mr. Ives began the year on January first with 53 hens which he carried until May 7 when the flock was reduced to 43 hens making an average of 48 hens for the year. From this flock he hatched out 384 chicks and raised 330. His financial account shows that he sold 223 chickens for $210.04; he sold 429 1/2 dozen eggs for $182.35; he used 172.6 dozen eggs at home valued at $101.90; he used 37 chickens at home valued at $30.27 and has reserved 11 more chickens for home use at a value of $10.20. This is a total income of $534.76 from the flock. His total expenses for feed and added equipment was $262.75 leaving a net profit for this year of $272.01.

But this is not all. In his report to Miss Minnie Lee Garrison, home demonstration agent, Mr. Ives states that he now has 108 hens with which to begin the new season and these are laying high priced eggs at this time. These 108 hens are valued at $270 and six roosters selected for breeding are valued at $30.00 which is a total of $300 worth of well selected stock. The income from the flock paid for feeding and raising this stock in addition to giving the net income.

Miss Garrison states that Mr. Ives is one of the best small farmers of Johnston county. He is owner of Cloverdale Farm which makes a speciality of pure bred Hampshire hogs, good seed corn and Mexican Big Boll Cotton. Mrs. Ives is his partner in the poultry venture and the income from the flock this year has aided the family in keeping on a cash basis for incidental expenses and has provided high quality food products for the family during the year.

A well kept lawn begins first with plantings made in the fall. It's too late for farmers to think of holding cotton after it has passed from their hands.

B. D. Nelme of Anson County plants ten acres to sorghum cane and sells his syrup in gallon cans at one dollar per gallon.

Eggs from blood-tested poultry flocks are in good demand at hatcheries which specialize in selling high grade baby chicks.

A difference of 936 pounds of soybean hay per acre was secured by a farmer of Davidson county from limed land as compared with unlimed land.

Barley and vetch mixed have been planted for hay in Caldwell county this fall for harvest next spring. Seeding of wheat, oats and rye has also been heavy.

Forty-four hogs belonging to two farmers of Pasquotank county were vaccinated by the county agent in time to stop an outbreak of cholera. The hogs were valued at $500.

The SOUTHERN RAILWAY
should be owned in the South.

IN THE SOUTH there are many great industries which, with their products, are known the country over.

One of the greatest industries of the South is the Southern Railway System. It is one of the largest employers of Southern men and women, a large purchaser of Southern products, and one of the South's largest taxpayers. It is also foremost among the carriers of Southern products.

We who are devoting our lives in the service of this railroad like to call it ours. And you who travel on it and ship on it, day in and day out, are entitled to call it yours.

It will be a great day for the South and for the Southern when thousands of small and large investors of the South speak of the Southern Railway System as theirs.

THE VOICE OF THE LIBERTY BELL

This is one of the two new official posters of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, opening in Philadelphia June 1 to celebrate 150 years of American Independence. The Exposition will continue to December 1. Dan Smith, the artist, has symbolized the epoch in history which the tolling of the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall, July 4, 1776, marked and has depicted the growth of the United States from the original thirteen states, represented by the thirteen stars which emerge from the mouth of the Liberty Bell.
