One Plan Adopted To Cut Cotton Acreage.

North Carolina will move forward aggressively to cut acreage of cotton next season under a plan adopted as a state-wide measure at a meeting of all interested organizations and individuals held in the State Capitol at Raleigh on Monday, November 8. The meeting called by Governor A. W. McLean heard a number of important suggestions and then adopted a program of action to be put into effect by a special committee headed by Dr. E. C. Brooks, President of North Carolina State College.

This committee consists of a representative of the College, of the State Department of Agriculture, of the cooperative cotton association, of the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers Association, representatives of Chambers of Commerce and two or more leading farmers.

The plan under which the reduction in acreage will be brought about calls first for a better balanced system of agriculture, which in itself according to the experience of good farmers should reduce the acreage by 33 1/2 percent. The second point is that a campaign will be begun immediately to curtail acreage by diversifying crops and by signing a pledge to cut the acreage of cotton by 25 percent. A pledge will be presented to each individual cotton farmer asking him to cut his acreage by 25 percent and to put in a better balanced system of farming.

Fourth, the aid of bankers and supply merchants will be enlisted and they will be asked to sign a pledge not to supply credit except where acreage is reduced and the elementary principles of good farming are followed.

Fifth, public recognition of farmers adopting the new plan will be given.

Sixth, better marketing facilities will be worked out and the farmers will be aided in marketing their surplus food and feed crops.

To carry out these plans, one central state committee has been appointed and a county committee will be in charge of each county.

Hogs Kept Him From Going Broke

A. H. Oliver of Mount Olive is a young middle-aged farmer with a keen mind and when a fact about better farming is presented to him in the right way, he searches through it carefully and if it is worth his attention, he gives it a trial.

He did this with hogs. For over four years, Mr. Oliver and W. W. Shay, swine extension specialists at State College, have written to each other and paying one another occasional visits. Mr. Oliver became interested in the breeding and feeding of swine according to the demonstrated methods and decided to give it a trial. On November 6 he wrote to Mr. Shay saying, "I have marketed two car loads of hogs this year and now have 106 pigs just weaning. I shall begin breeding my sows next week. My hog sales for the year, to date, have been about $3,800. . . . I am just turning my pigs on the soybean fields with access to shelled corn, meal, middlings, fish meal and minerals. If this course is unwise, please write me at once."

Mr. Oliver stated further that he plans to have rye on new land with which to fatten his pigs in the spring. The rye will then be plowed under and the land planted to corn for hogging down in the fall.

"I have made over 1,400 barrels of potatoes and over 100 bales of cotton this year but hogs have kept me from going broke," he says.

Mr. Shay disagrees with his correspondent when he says that hogs kept him from going broke. It was the combination of hogs and the knowledge of how to make them profitable that kept Mr. Oliver on a cash basis this year. The 106 young mortgage litters are being handled so as to be ready for finishing next year at the least possible cost and with the greatest gains.

A pen of Leghorn poultry entered by Eugene Brown of Rich Square led the Southeastern egg-laying contest at McCormick, S. C., this year.

Tarheel Sheep Industry Depends On Lambs.

The sheep industry of North Carolina is largely dependent on the production of early spring lambs. This means early breeding, early lambing and early marketing.

"Our rule then, should be to breed the ewes not later than August to have them lamb not later than January and to market them not later than May, if we are to make the most money from sheep," says R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at State College. "The sheep industry, however, has one great menace and this is the stomach worm. Most growers recognize the symptoms characteristic of this trouble. The sheep are in a general listless condition, they are white around the membranes of the eyes, the skin lacks its ordinary pink color and there is a swelling under the throat. Preventative measures should be used to control the worms as doctoring after they have gained a foothold does little good."

Mr. Curtis advises the bluestone treatment to prevent worms both in the ewes and the lambs. Bluestone is cheap and one-fourth of a pound is enough to drench a flock of 30 to 40 sheep one time. This amount of bluestone is mixed with enough water to dissolve it thoroughly and then enough cold water added to the solution to bring it up to three gallons. Use a non-metallic container such as a wooden tub. For lambs under one year of age give 1 1/2 ounces and for mature sheep give 3 1/2 ounces. This treatment needs to be given after the sheep have been without feed or water overnight.

In drenching, Prof. Curtis advises to allow the sheep to stand on all four legs and do not hold the head too high or the solution will get into the lungs and produce instant death. Use a rubber tube about three feet long. Drench all sheep before putting them in winter quarters and then keep them on a clean pasture. Frequent change of pasture is advisable.

Thanksgiving Turkeys To Be Higher

Thanksgiving turkey eating will be somewhat more costly this year than in the past two years, according to a holiday prediction made by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The turkey crop is not as large as it was last year or the year before, and a prediction of 45 to 48 cents a pound for this year's Thanksgiving turkey is not considered pessimistic.

The cold weather this fall has been favorable "turkey weather." So long as the days and nights are comparatively warm, turkeys continue to rove the country and fail to put on flesh. When the temperature falls, they are content to cease wandering off, and settle down to grain feeding which rapidly adds pounds to turkey meat. The crop generally is further advanced than at this time in several years, and reports from the country consistently tell of the high quality of the turkeys. In Texas, which is the big early state for turkeys, the crop is believed to exceed last year when many of the young poulters were lost during the hot dry summer. Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and Ohio are expected to have fewer turkeys for the market this season while the other states report flocks of about the same size last year.

Stocks of turkeys in storage are less than half as large as at this time a year ago and 40 percent below the five year average. Reserves of frozen turkeys, therefore, will be less of a market factor this season than last. Holdings of chickens and fowls are five million pounds larger than a year ago and ten million pounds larger than the five-year average, however, offsetting to some degree the decline in turkeys.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

The Profitable Way to Keep Hens
Only One Feed to Buy

Many people claim that it costs more to feed poultry than they return in meat and eggs. This is largely due to the use of an unbalanced feed. Grains and scratch feeds made from grains are not a balanced feed.

No flock, large or small, will ever pay a profit on an unbalanced feed. While on a balanced feed, which costs but little more, the same fowls will furnish enough eggs and meat to liberally reward their owners.

Using two different feeds—one a scratch made of grains—the other a mash of concentrates, was the usual way of balancing the rations, but it is too troublesome for the average person. It doesn't balance the ration for every hen, consequently it is used by only a few. The two-in-one method, a mash and scratch all in one, a food that can be fed like wheat or corn, is the real solution for the average man. Gubernut Laying Feed is just such a feed—a perfectly balanced feed. Many users call it a real discovery. The longer you use it, the better you like it—those who have fed it constantly for years are its greatest boosters. Ask the person who has fed it, or order a sack and be convinced. Money back if not satisfied.
