His cash crop rotation is on two fields of three acres each. In this he plants cotton followed by rye for turning under and tobacco, the second year followed by cowpeas. He has made money on his cotton each year, including 1926, reports County Agent J. R. Powell. His yield of cotton this year was at the rate of 1,700 pounds of seed cotton which brought him cost of the fertilizer was only $9, According to Mr. Powell, the soil on the Callahan farm is so fertile that he cannot use ordina-

any profit from its production, especially in a time like this," says R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College. "The profit then comes from a lower labor cost per pound of cotton produced. If we study the cost of producing cotton in North Carolina, we find that when the crop s selling at an average price, there are about 50 percent of the acres that are marginal or sub-marginal land. By this, we mena-land that pays only fair wages and the cost of the fertilizer with other profit. The sub-marginal cres are worse than this. When totton is not selling at an average price, the condition is worse.'

Therefore, states Mr. Graeber, might be wise for us to let some of this poor producing land grow up in pines. Shortleaf and lob-lelly pines will pay a profit on the prorest cotton land. At the present prices of lumber, the fully stocked stands of pines will pay a profit of $5 or more per ear and as the price of lumber lvances the pines will return ill greater profit. Mr. Graeber has made some in tigations recently in eight Pied-ont counties of North Carolina and finds second growth shortless lies producing from one and one-lif to two cords of wood per acre ates, to 750 on up to 1,000 board let of lumber. The volume wild be made still larger through stematic thinning. Each of the reas studied leas studied was once an abandbadly washed cotton field aimed by the growth of pines.
