

THE GLEANER

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY.

J. D. KERNODLE, Editor.

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

GRAHAM, N. C., AUG. 11, 1927.

Mr. Coolidge's "do not choose to run" announcement has been partially clarified by a further statement that he meant what he said.

The cotton crop for 1927 will be about 12,495,000 bales, according to an estimate of August 1st, released Monday by the census bureau at Washington.

A strong movement is in progress in Greensboro to hold a recall election to oust the councilmen who so generously granted a city employee a four months leave of absence with pay at $400 per month for the four months leave.

Sacco and Vanzetti, who murdered and robbed a paymaster around eight years ago, after going through every process known to the courts for escaping the death penalty, were to be executed after 12 o'clock last night.

The Mississippi flood of 1927 has passed into history, but there is an old saying that runs thus—"history repeats itself."

College Education.

It is the opinion of Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, that the popularity of American college education, which is now drawing 850,000 young men and women yearly to institutions of higher learning, is likely to go on increasing for 25 years.

Barnyard Millet Is Fine Hay Crop.

The common barnyard or Japanese millet advertised by seedsmen under the glowing name of "Billion Dollar Grass" is one of the best hay crops for the eastern Carolina farms according to evidence submitted by farmers of Edgecombe county.

"I planted six acres of good land to the crop this spring," says Walter Bullock of Edgecombe, and it yielded me at the rate of a little over eight tons of air-dried hay per acre.

Mr. Bullock states that he has been able to reduce his grain ration to his livestock since he began feeding the millet hay.

County Agent Zeno Moore who saw the crop on Mr. Bullock's farm states that it would yield at least 1250 pounds of feed to the acre.

For the man not willing to plant his good land to the crop, Mr. Moore suggests that next year he plant the tobacco seed beds when the plants have been set.

Farm Women Attend College Short Course.

School girls again, trudging with their note books from classroom to class room or singing songs of bygone days on the campus at vesper services, 194 farm women from 33 counties of North Carolina left the cares of home behind and attended the third annual short course at State College last week.

Their days were full. Classes started promptly at eight o'clock each morning and continued until the general conference period at noon.

The women took intensive training in foods, clothing, house furnishings, gardening and poultry. Each woman was allowed to take only two subjects but county delegations split up their work so that some person from a county was enrolled in each of the courses.

It was disclosed during the general conference hours, that many of the delegates had their expenses paid by their home clubs. Some came as individuals interested in the work but the larger number were accredited delegates.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla. THAT when times are good competition is keen.

When times are dull competition is keener. Business concerns that use comprehensive, honest advertising stay ahead of their competitors in both good and dull times.

Newspaper advertising creates an increasing desire for advertised goods. In some sections business is increased to a certain extent by increased population; in others by increased wealth, but under any circumstances business will grow faster by using newspaper space.

The longer business concerns wait for business to come without asking, the longer they will wait for business to come their way.

Business is here and to be had. The ones who get it will be the ones who go after it hard!

Wealth and Illiteracy.

Julian Harris in his recent address to the North Carolina Press Association made a plea for the editors to fight illiteracy, prejudice and ignorance in the South.

Quoting Walter Hines Page that a "South, illiterate, unhealthy, poverty-stricken was a national peril," the editor declared that "to that statement I would add that it is equally true that a South illiterate and intolerant, but wealthy, is a national menace."

"If you are tempted to reply that as soon as the South is wealthy, illiteracy and ignorance, which breed intolerance, will be wiped out, my reply is that the South, even now, is rolling in wealth."

Reciting a list of figures showing the great increase in recent years of wealth in the South. Mr. Harris said the South is no longer poverty-stricken and unhealthy, "yet, illiteracy thrives, and prejudice and intolerance, often masked and hooded, usurps the law and administers justice with the lash."

To get the best results from dairy or beef cattle, one must not only feed an economical and balanced ration, but must also have the watchful eye of a true stockman. There is much truth in the old saying that "the eye of the master fattens the cattle" say extension workers.

Reitzel Reunion.

The ninth annual Reitzel reunion will be held at Richland Church, about four miles east of Liberty, on Thursday, August 18, 1927.

All persons related to the Reitzel family, either by blood or marriage, as well as all friends of the family, are cordially invited to be present.

At 10:00 a. m. the gathering will be called to order by the president, and a short program of business and short talks will follow, after which dinner will be served picnic style. Some good speakers have promised to be present.

A large attendance and a great occasion is expected.

TAX NOTICE

You Will Hereby Take Notice That I Will, on

September 2nd, 1927

Advertise All Land

in Alamance county owned by those who have not paid their past due taxes before Sept. 2, 1927.

I am publishing this notice, giving a definite time in which you may settle your taxes and avoid being advertised, and in the hope that you will promptly make a settlement for such county taxes as you may owe.

If I am forced to advertise your land for taxes there will be added the cost of advertising. If you allow by neglect or otherwise your property to be advertised, you cannot blame me for discharging my duty as required by law.

This notice is published in accordance with an order passed on to me by the County Commissioners at the regular Monday meeting. This is absolutely the last notice that will be given with respect to taxes.

Trusting that all will come forward promptly and make settlement, I am,

Yours very truly, C. D. STOREY,

Sheriff Alamance County.
