GRAHAM, N. C., OCT. 11, 1928.

Hon. John H. Small

To Speak At Court House Thursday Evening, Oct. 18.

On Thursday evening next, Oct. 18, at 8 o'clock, former Congressman, John H. Small of Washington, N. C., will speak at the court house.

His years of service in the National Congress and his intimate knowledge of legislation enables him to speak with a certainty about matters of interest in the pending campaign.

Everybody, especially the ladies, should hear him.

Gov. Smith, Tammany, and the Government of New York

When character is to be passed upon, those intimately acquainted with the individual—neighbors—are called upon to testify.

Reputation is something else. It's what people pervert, add to and take from and pass from mouth to mouth, without, in most cases, any acquaintance with the individual.

Ever since this campaign opened garbled stories of Gov. Smith's conduct of the office of Governor of New York have been passed around by his political enemies, regardless of whether true or false.

Let us read what a nationally known paper, The New York World, that has not failed on occasions to criticize Gov. Smith when criticism was warranted, has to say of Tammany and Gov. Smith. The World says:

"The epithet of 'Tammany' in this campaign is employed by two sorts of people. By those who do not know the facts of Governor Smith's career and by those who do know them.

"Those who do not know the facts are also of two sorts. These are the persons who honestly believe that Tammany to-day is the Tammany of Tweed and Croaker. They believe it lives chiefly by collecting graft from prostitution. They are exactly as well informed as backwoods Republicans who still believe that the Democracy is the party of Jefferson Davis and that the Republicans are the party of General Sherman and the carpet-baggers. The second-class of those who are uninformed consists of men and women who are the bigoted. When they say Tammany they really mean the newer immigrant stocks organized politically by Roman Catholics from Ireland. The word Tammany for them is simply a safer form of Ku Kluxery.

Among those who know the facts about Tammany to-day and about Governor Smith's career and about 'Tammany' there are also two classes: The snobs and the deliberate falsifiers. The snobs are those who do not think that Governor Smith and Mrs. Smith have the social graces which their elegant tastes call for. Much more important are the deliberate falsifiers. We mean those New York Republicans who know the facts and continue to misrepresent them.

"They profess to fear Tammany's control of the Federal Government. Yet they know that Tammany has not controlled the government at Albany during Governor Smith's four terms. The proof of this is overwhelming.

Tammany has not controlled the State appointments. Tammany has had the passage of local offices in the city of New York exactly as Sam Koenig has had the Republican Federal patronage in the City of New York. But in the State government Tammany has not had even its proportionate share of the desirable offices.

"Tammany has not controlled Governor Smith's legislative policy. The great measures of Governor Smith's regime have been the reorganizing of the State government along the lines laid down by Republicans like Mr. Root, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Stinson. The whole purpose of that reorganization has been to destroy Tammany's government. No honest student of politics can examine Governor Smith's legislative record and fail to see that it embodies the best known principles for eliminating boss and machine rule which American experience has thus far suggested.

"Tammany has not controlled his administrative action. At no time in his four terms has he had a Democratic majority in both houses of the legislature. Every dollar spent has been passed upon first by Republicans. No appointment has ever failed its confirmation. No veto has ever been overridden. No scandal has ever been proved against his administration.

"This is why this newspaper, which severely criticized Alfred E. Smith in his younger days, which is wholly independent of Tammany Hall and persistently critical of the Tammany administration in the city of New York, is prepared to say and prove that the administration of Gov. Smith is the ablest, purest and most constructive period in the history of the government of the State of New York. The statements made here are known to all well-informed New Yorkers. They have won him tributes of admiration from Republicans and Democrats which are without parallel in our political life.

"Therefore, we say that when leading Republican politicians from New York, sally forth crying that the election of Smith means 'Tammany' they are not describing the facts they know but are appealing to the lowest and most vulgar prejudices."

Store Sweet Potatoes For Late Winter Sale.

Nearly always, sweet potatoes bring a low price at digging time and a higher price in the late winter and spring because they are hard to keep unless properly cured and stored.

"The best method for curing and storing the crop is to use a well constructed, modern sweet-potato storage house," says Robert Schmidt, vegetable specialist at State College. "Where such a house is not available, some tightly-constructed building on the farm may be pressed into use. A tobacco barn may be used for curing but this house has no insulation against mid-winter cold and precautions must be taken against freezes. The old-time earthen bank should not be used except for the home supply."

For sweet potatoes to keep best, it is wise to harvest them before frost. When the vines are killed by a light frost, usually the tubers are not injured. There is danger from cold injury, however when heavy frosts occur. A potato hurt by cold will not keep, even under the best of conditions. Then, too, says Mr. Schmidt, a bruised potato is hard to keep, so it is necessary to use care in harvesting and to handle the roots as little as possible.

The three important factors in keeping stored potatoes are moisture, temperature and ventilation. When the crop is freshly dug, the potatoes contain excessive moisture. This moisture must be reduced and is accomplished by the curing process. The appearance of sprouts is a good indication that the roots are well cured. Plenty of ventilation is needed during this process and when curing has been accomplished, the temperature of the house may be reduced to about 60 degrees F. and kept at that mark as long as the potatoes are in storage.

Since curing and storage needs to be done with extreme care, Mr. Schmidt advises sweet potato growers to get full information on the subject.

Hotchpotch.

Dr. Della Dixon Carroll, speaking in Burlington Monday night said "there is no such thing as an anti-Smith Democrat." That sort of voter must be a "mugwump," a kind often mentioned a few years ago.

It is suspected that a large share of the opposition to Gov. Smith is on religious ground rather than on his views as to the 18th amendment and the Volstead act. Is not the latter being used to camouflage religious prejudice? Some are caudic enough to say they are opposed to him on account of his religion.

To defeat Gov. Al Smith in North Carolina, Grand Dragon Amos C. Duncan of the Ku Klux Klan has called for a war chest of $8,000 to pay for sending out "literature." The "yaller" Broadaxe and Fellowship Forum would do it for less.

Chas. W. Tillett of Charlotte has won a suitable medal or a "distinguished cross of honor" for his fidelity to Gov. Al Smith. Whether he ever gets either, he has stood like adamant for religious freedom and clean politics.

William Edward Hickman of Los Angeles, who kidnaped and fiendishly mutilated and murdered Marian Parker, the young school girl, is to pay the supreme penalty on Oct. 19th. Every move for a review of the case has been denied by the courts. He has had every chance that the law allows and many more than simple justice warranted. It is such delays that begets disrespect for the laws made for the protection of society.

The political battlefield appears to have shifted to the East—there, it is believed by political forecasters, that the battle will be lost or won, as the case may be.

A pasture of carpet grass and leopedeza is superior to that secured from a commercial seed mixture tested by two Bertie County farmers.

Ragweeds where no limestone was used and a good stand of red clover where the soil was lined is the experience reported by W. H. Marshall of Forsythe County.

A clear profit above feed and marketing costs of $175.30 reported by W. M. Koons of Davidson county from 30 pigs fed according to demonstration methods for September market.

Gov. Smith Passes Thru the State To-Day.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee for president, left New York Wednesday night for a trip through the South.

Richmond was the first stop. There he is for the morning. Short stop at Norfolk, Virginia-Carolina border town.

At Raleigh for more than an hour this afternoon, where an immense reception and parade is planned.

Then a short stop at Durham. Burlington is to get a short stop between 6 and 6:30. This through the good offices of Mayor Horner and others. Thousands will gather in Burlington.

A Greensboro stop and parade thence to Charlotte and on to Louisville, Ky., to speak.

Poultry Short Course Offered Next Month.

How to raise chickens and market them profitably will be the subject of a short course offered by the poultry department of State College during the week of November 19 to 24 inclusive.

The course will be free to citizens of North Carolina and will seek to give a week of intensive training in all subjects relating to the profitable handling and marketing of poultry products. Each morning, Dr. B. F. Kaup and his corps of associates in the poultry department will give a series of lectures that will give all late information developed at the college in recent years. The lectures will include such subjects as the selection and mating of breeding birds; feeding baby chicks, laying hens and breeders; housing and managing the birds; incubation and shipment of baby chicks; disease and parasite control and the marketing of poultry and eggs.

Each afternoon the poultry folks will give demonstrations and practical exercises in the poultry yards and in the poultry laboratories. The State Division of Markets will have an expert on hand to help with the marketing work.

Dr. Kaup extends an invitation to all poultry growers in the State to attend at least part of this course. Women as well as men are invited and expected to be present. While the college cannot supply rooms, these can be obtained at reasonable rates in private homes near the campus.

Last year there were 85 students enrolled for the entire week. This year, Dr. Knapp expects a larger enrollment, especially as the North Carolina State Poultry Association will hold its annual meeting at the college during the same week.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

(Copyright 1928) By Edson R. White, Shawnee, Okla.

Strolling along Thirty-fourth street, New York City, the other day watching the preoccupied, colorful crowds, I noticed a throng gazing upward at some wee specks perched 400 feet above Broadway. They were workmen atop the 27-story Hotel McAlpin, just one block from the Pennsylvania station.

There they clung on rope scaffolds, busily engaged in cleaning the beautiful polychrome terra cotta trimming of that famed hostelry. Never a worry about the long drop to the street below. Their job was the only consideration; and they were doing it mighty well. In this respect, they reflected the spirit I found prevalent throughout the entire Hotel McAlpin. From the bellboys to the president and managing director, Frank A. Duggin, who until this spring was manager of the Pennsylvania hotel, largest in the world, there is an attitude of "being on the job" that is highly gratifying to the guest. Courtesy, willingness to serve, competency—these are McAlpin characteristics.

And the visitors beneath the McAlpin roof seem to catch that three-cornered attitude the moment they step into the spacious lobby. And as I walked about the hotel I noticed other things being planned for the guests' comfort. More than $2,000,000 is being expended in improvements. High-speed elevators, comfortable, attractive furniture, luxurious new carpets and a bath for every one of the 1,720 rooms are some of the material qualities which, when completed will help make the McAlpin the finest in New York.

I asked Mr. Dugan what he attributed the success of the McAlpin to besides satisfying the guest and he answered: "Country-wide newspaper advertising. It is the backbone of American business promotion."

Beardless barley is superior as a winter grazing crop to rye and oats, say farmers of Davidson County. Many of them graze the barley until late in the spring and then make a good yield of grain.

Weevil and weather damage to cotton will run as high as 40 per cent, report several growers of Nash County.

Seventy-two 4-H calf club members of Alamance County exhibited 72 fine heifers at recent community fairs.
