

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., JULY 11, 1929.

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY.

J. D. KERNODLE, Editor.

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

The Senate is working on the tariff schedules, but not in perfect agreement. The House, when it passed its top-notch bill, before vacation, left the Senate something to do and think about. An intimation has come down from Washington that the Senate is inclined to boost the rates.

President Hoover has about completed his Farm Relief Commission and the newspaper reports indicate that they will meet and go to work next Monday. It is useless to make any predictions as to what can or will be done at this early date. One thing is certain, and that is they will not lack for subjects looking for "relief."

In next year's Congressional campaign in this (the fifth) district, there is a prospect of there being more than one candidate seeking the Democratic nomination. It is definitely understood that Maj. Stedman will not offer again. The latest recruit is Mr. Thos. D. Cooper of Burlington, native Alamance boy, world war veteran, and prominent young lawyer. As we understand, no formal announcement has been made. To be Congressman from the Imperial Fifth is a prize to be coveted.

More Soil Erosion Occurs in Summer

Contrary to general opinion, the greatest amount of soil erosion during a year in North Carolina occurred during the summer months. "This is the finding of F. O. Bartel, experimental drainage engineer of the North Carolina Experiment Station," says A. T. Holman, agricultural engineer at State college. "Experiments conducted by Mr. Bartel for the past several years show that 87 percent of the year's erosion occur during the months of June, July, August and September. This is largely due, of course, to the clean cultivation given such crops as tobacco, cotton or corn. In the summer, sheet erosion may remove soil at the rate of one-fourth of an inch in depth over a field, while the plant food lost by this erosion is frequently five times that used by the crops."

Mr. Holman says that this fact makes it imperative to check the terracing system frequently during summer. All low and weak places should be built up and repaired after each cultivation. If the terraces are strengthened in this way before rains, the chances of breaks are reduced to a minimum.

Mr. Holman makes four suggestions about terracing at this season. First, he says, all lands where washing occurs should be terraced before the 1930 crop is planted; second, by observing where washing occurs in the water channel above the terrace, one learns where the terrace has too great a fall; third, if washing occurs between any two terraces the spacing is too great, and fourth, if the terrace is of the proper size and breaks still occur, there is too great a distance between terraces, the grade is poor or the terrace is too long.

By observing crops on terraced and unterraced fields at this season of the year, one may get an answer to many perplexing problems in soil management, he says.

More Boll Weevils

Says Mr. Brannon

Rain in July and August means ideal conditions for the rapid development of boll weevil infestation in cotton. Indications are now that damage will be exceedingly heavy.

"Activities of the weevil are largely dependent on weather conditions and though no one can forecast the weather very far in advance, it looks as if we shall have a heavy infestation this summer," says C. H. Brannon, insect specialist at State college. "For this reason cotton growers should not wait until the last minute to make their plans for boll weevil control. This work is now long past the experimental or research stage. We know that dusting with calcium arsenate will control the pest but we also know that this dusting must be done exactly right. If not done correctly, dusting has no value." Mr. Brannon says that more

News of Whitsett

Whitsett, N. C., July 8.—Mrs. W. C. Tucker and J. A. Odell, of Greensboro, were pleasant visitors here today.

Miss Lucille Whitsett plans to attend the Women's Missionary Society's annual convention at China Grove the latter part of this week as a representative from Friedens church.

Numbers from this place went to the closing exercises of the Bible school which were held at Friedens church Sunday morning.

Memorial day services at Brick Church on Sunday drew a large crowd from this section. Rev. Chas. E. Hiatt, pastor, was in charge of the programme for the day. Special music was furnished by the Greeson quartette, and the Brick church choir. Hon. I. C. Moser of Asheville was the speaker for the morning; and Kermit L. Neese of Catawba college spoke in the afternoon. George W. Huffman made the historian's report, and Dr. W. T. Whitsett gave a sketch of the early history of the church. T. B. DeLouche of Burlington is president of the association for the coming year, with A. M. Shepherd, as president, Mrs. Ava Clapp Morrison, secretary and treasurer, and Ira Shepherd, custodian of the grounds. During the past few years the church building and the entire grounds including the ancient cemetery have been greatly improved, and all are now in fine condition. Dinner on Sunday was spread for the gathering on long tables on the church lawn. Many visitors were present, especially from Burlington and Greensboro. This church was established in 1770, and is the home church of the late Dr. Jacob C. Clapp who was for his entire life connected with Catawba college, and whose labors did much to organize and establish that institution. Dr. Geo. W. Welker served a pastorate here of fifty years. In the cemetery are buried a number who were active in the Revolutionary days from 1770 to 1781. At first the church was called Der Clapp Kirche (or the Clapp Church) and when the present large brick building was erected in 1841 the name was changed to Brick church. It has always been one of the largest and most outstanding churches of the Reformed church in North Carolina, and the governing body of the church, known weevils survived the winter than in several seasons. This means that the pest has a good start but does not mean, necessarily, that this alone will cause heavy infestation was held by the Whitsett Christmas in July and August. The weather will decide this. If it is hot and dry, the weevil will not do much damage. If it is wet and sultry, the weevil will propagate in enormous numbers and will ruin the cotton unless protected with calcium arsenate.

Boll weevil control is now a regular part of the cropping system and should be so considered in the expense of raising cotton. Poison machines are necessary farming implements just as the plow or cultivator. Hundreds of dollars have been lost in this state by improper methods of poisoning and the wise grower will plan to do the work as it should be done. Should any one desire detailed information about how to poison the weevil, Mr. Brannon will be glad to answer any inquiries addressed to him.

as the Classis, has often met here. An interesting patriotic service, an Endeavor society in the Methodist church on Sunday evening with special music by Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Fitzgerald, and Mrs. Dean Torreyson, and Mrs. Ed. B. Wheeler.

Those who attended the celebration at the Guilford battleground last Thursday and heard Hon. Joseph M. Dixon's address were greatly pleased with the manner in which he showed up the splendid part played by this State during the days of the Revolutionary struggle. He claimed that North Carolina had never received her just praise for her activities during the days that finally lead up to the freedom of the colonies. He supported his contentions by facts drawn from authentic historical records. He paid a fine tribute to the years of effort on the part of the late Judge David Schenck to rescue the battle ground from neglect and oblivion, and to set forth the true facts so well as Judge Schenck did in his book, North Carolina 1780-1781. No one has ever successfully contradicted the fact that Judge Schenck marshalled in his book to prove the valor and heroism of the American forces at the Battle of Guilford Court House, and to show them up in a better and truer light than had been previously done by historians.

Lindsay Hopkins, well known in this community where he was a student at one time for several years, is now one of the directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Ga. The last issue of the Yackety Yack, for 1929, the year book of the University of North Carolina, carried an excellent picture of him.

Much sympathy is expressed for E. B. Huffines, a popular citizen of Elon College, who was recently carried to Watts hospital in Durham for treatment; he has many friends here who hope for his early recovery.

Club Members Back From Washington

After a wonderful trip to Washington where they attended the 3rd National 4-H club camp and took part in club study activities along with 150 other boys and girls from 42 states, the four representatives from North Carolina returned home last week filled with greater enthusiasm and respect for club work.

"It was a most satisfactory trip," says L. R. Harrill, state club leader. "Not only did the officials of the United States Department of Agriculture show our club members every courtesy and consideration but President and Mrs. Hoover also showed their interest by taking a part in the camp program. Mrs. Hoover received the club members and the extension workers accompanying them in the East Room of the White House on Tuesday, June 30. She spoke briefly to the young people and then permitted them to see the famous rooms on the main floor of the White House. Mrs. Hoover also spoke at our annual club banquet and President Hoover met with the club members for a special photographing."

Mr. Harrill says that the club members spent the last two days of the camp period seeing the famous sights about Washington. They also were given interesting courses of instruction, had some of the leading men of the Nation to speak to them at the assembly periods and enjoyed the association with rural boys and girls from other states.

The North Carolina representatives at the National Club Camp this year were, in addition to Mr. Harrill, Miss Martha Creighton, district home agent; Miss May Swan of Cumberland county; Miss Kathleen Mock of Davidson county; Edmund Aycock of Wayne and Frank Raymond of Hertford county. These four young people, representing the 20,000 club members of North Carolina, were worthy representatives, said Mr. Harrill, and acquitted themselves with credit to the State. They will make full reports of their trip at the 4-H club short course to be held at State college, July 29 to August 3.

About one-fourth million tomato and sweet potato plants have been donated to storm sufferers in northern Alamance of nearby farmers. Much farm and garden seed has also been given.

Ten calves and four pure bred Guernsey cows were purchased last week by club boys and dairymen of Randolph county.
