The trial of the eight deputies at Burnsville, charged with the massacre of six textile strikers at Marion, is nearing the close. Before Saturday night it is expected to hear the verdict of the jury. The legal battle has been on for over two weeks.

The Roxboro Courier, J. W. Noell, editor and publisher, comes out this week enlarged from 6-Column 8-page to 7-column 8-page. A new press and folder have been installed. The Courier is mechanically, splendidly equipped, and Joe Hoell is making it one of the best county weeklies in the State. Our heartiest congratulations.

The Future Of Cotton Prices

With the present low price of cotton, the question among farmers is whether to hold or sell their cotton. What to do can only be determined by a study of figures relative to the supply and demand.

"While the demand is uncertain, the chances are that prices have reached the low point for this year and a gradual improvement may be anticipated," says Dr. G. W. Forster, agricultural economist at State College. "Whether this improvement will warrant holding the cotton is a matter for the individual farmer to decide."

A carry-over of 4,500,000 bales together with an estimated production of 15,000,000 bales, gives an available supply of 19,500,000 bales of American cotton, says Dr. Forster. This is approximately the same amount as was available last year. The estimated consumption for this year is 24,500,000 bales and from these figures it does not seem that low price of cotton can be expected to supply, he states.

Since about sixty per cent of our cotton is shipped to European countries, the economic conditions there naturally affect the price received for the staple. An increase in demand for cotton and cotton goods is reported from practically all these markets with a slight increase in the Great Britain demand.

In the Japanese and Chinese markets, importations of American cotton have fallen off to a considerable extent. Stocks of raw cotton in these markets declined over 100,000 bales during September and American cotton alone fell off 41,000 bales.

"With the depleted supply in foreign markets and a gradual improvement in demand, prices for American cotton should go up but farmers who plan to hold their cotton should watch closely the information given by Federal and State governments as to foreign and domestic conditions," says Dr. Forster.

Millsaps Resigns Job Held Quarter Century

E. S. Millsaps, county and district agent of the Agricultural Extension Service of State College for a period of twenty-one years, has resigned his position as district agent of the Piedmont district, effective December 31.

"Mr. Millsaps began farm demonstration when the idea was new," says Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the extension service. "He served faithfully as a county agent and when additional funds were appropriated and the work was extended, he was promoted to have charge of the Piedmont area. He began his services to the farmers of this State on March 23, 1908 and when his resignation becomes effective on December 31, he will have served for a period of 21 years, nine months and eight days. During all of this long time, he has been faithful in the performance of his duties. Not only was he successful in securing the right type of man as county agent, but he has also given of himself liberally in promoting the aims and purposes of our organization."

In a letter to Mr. Millsaps, accepting his resignation, Dean Schaub made it clear that the veteran extension worker retires with the respect and good wishes of the entire organization. "You can well feel proud of record," said the Dean, "I am sure that the best wishes of every extension worker goes with you now that you are withdrawing from active service." Mr. Schaub also said that Mr. Millsaps has shown judgment and foresight in selecting men

Alamance County Agent Narrative Report For 1929

Poultry Husbandry
 We devoted thirty-one days to poultry work. We treated twenty flocks for fowl typhoid, and aided many people in making diagnosis of poultry diseases. Flocks on twenty farms were culled. The poultry specialist met with our leading poultrymen at various farms and discussed poultry management.

Dairy Husbandry
 Dairying is the going industry of the county. The local creamery reports a quarter of a million pounds of butter this year as compared to 46,000 pounds five years ago. Acquisition for a Condensery continues and experts from various Condensery concerns made additional surveys this year over what was made a year ago. Nothing definite has been announced. Another indication of genuine progress is that 28 silos were erected in the county this year as compared to ten last year.

To the Island of Jersey goes the honor of being the home of the Jersey cow. She is that Island's peculiar contribution that most merits the admiration and gratitude of manhood.

To Alamance County goes the honor of having the largest Jersey Calf Club in the world. In Alamance County 183 boys and girls own 225 registered Jersey calves.

Our county not only has the largest Jersey Calf Club in the world, but she has some of the very best cows as proven by three large community calf shows, county show, and the State Fair.

At all shows over a hundred calves were exhibited by members of the World's Largest Registered Jersey Calf Club. Making a reputation with Jerseys like this is a problem worthy of not only the highest type of human intelligence, but also the greatest determination and stamina of a people eager to uphold and maintain the standards set by advancing conditions. Our boys and girls are upholding the standard for they have passed the experimental state and their interest is growing by leaps and bounds. The boys and girls of the county have won for Alamance the recognition she deserves and open the eyes of the world her possibilities as a dairy center, and showed that the Jersey cow is the uncrowned Queen of the Keweenaw Club gave $10,000 to be distributed to Calf Club members, which was appreciated very much.

We assisted in securing city bills for farmers over the county, and aided in marketing around seventy females, totaling in value $10,000.00.

Agricultural Engineering
 In engineering we aided in terracing one farm, we aided in poultry brooding house plans for fifteen poultrymen, we aided eight poultrymen in poultry house construction. Five dairy barns were built this year. These barns embodied the latest ideas in dairy barn construction.

Marketing
 In our marketing program we assisted in the sale of one hundred cows, bulls and heifers valued at $10,000.00, and sold at a saving of $1000.00 in selling cost. We shipped cooperatively 15,766 pounds of poultry for $3,940 saving actually $475.00 to producer, and strengthening the local market for much more than that.

We purchased sixty-seven tons of Fish Meal for $4,020.00 saving $1,005.00 in freight charges and necessary charges for retailing. Forty-eight dollars was saved on purchase of one car of Oyster Shell for poultry feeding. We ordered cooperatively 1,000 tons of lime at a saving of $250.00; 80 tons Basic Slag at a saving of $80.00; 250 bushels Lespedeza at a saving of $250.00. We purchased cooperatively 35,000 pounds of seed for pasture campaign costing $7,700.00 at a saving of $1,175.00. The success with stands of grass and clover proves that the quality was good. We handled a total of $33,490.00 worth of products at a definite saving of $4,859.00 to the farmers. An important item of consideration here is teaching the value of cooperative purchasing and selling of farm products. Seven-hundred farmers co-operated in our purchasing and selling.

Bee Keeping
 We held two field meetings in bee keeping. Bee keepers from adjoining counties were present.

Community Activities
 The National Grange was invited to fill the difficult job as county agent. Many of those so selected have been at work in one county without interruption for a period of ten years or more. Largely through their efforts, the farming practices of the piedmont area have been remade.

While Mr. Millsaps' general health is still good he is suffering from a decided tremor of the hand and arm, caused by an accident in 1915, to organize in this county. Three Subordinate Granges were organized in the county and it appears that others will be completed the coming year.

Another matter of much benefit to the suffering area was the Hall Storm Relief Fund in which so many people took part and cooperated in heartily. Farm men and women over the county contributed much in plants and seeds. The citizens of Burlington, Mebane and Haw River contributed cash to buy the seeds and plants listed below. The cooperative spirit showing that we are really one big community was splendid.

We were certainly glad to get your gift for the sufferers in the hall storm area. We have distributed the following amounts to these people, and assure you that your help has been appreciated:

2000 pounds of cabbage; 250 pounds snap beans; 75,000 tomato plants; 250,000 potato slips; 5,000 cabbage plants; 180 pounds Tennessee green pod beans; 180 pounds speckled bush lima beans; 180 pounds white spine cucumber seed; 30 pounds squash seed; 40 pounds rape seed; 120 pounds Kentucky Wonder beans; 660 pounds Cowpeas for garden use; 200 packages miscellaneous garden seed.

We feel that their needs for starting a new garden has been supplied, and know from conversation with many of these people that this has been very keenly appreciated, and the goodness that prompted you to do this has been indeed a kindness to a neighbor in distress.

In carrying out the above program we prepared 36 news articles for the press, distributed 5,100 bulletins, mailed 2,542 letters; wrote 113 circular letters and mailed 55,430 copies; 2,548 people called at the County Agent's office, 1,446 called the office by telephone, we made a total of 1,117 farm visits and visited 660 different farms. We conducted or attended 183 meetings with a total attendance of 77,918. We traveled over the roads of the county, good bad and indifferent, a total of 29,732 miles, and we traveled by railroad a total of 830 miles.

Outlook and Recommendations, Including Suggestive Program for 1930
 On account of the general depression in Agriculture, National, and State Authorities have been interested in developing a long time Agricultural Program. A meeting of Alamance farmers was called to map out a program for this county. Forty representative farmers, progressive in attitude, from all sections based on their experiences.

All sections of Alamance county were represented in an all day meeting at the Courthouse on November 19th to plan a county-wide program of work for county agent activities and at the same time make recommendations that will improve farming conditions in this county.

Corn production first received consideration from this committee. It was recommended that corn not be grown on land that would not produce over twenty-five bushels per acre; that variety tests be put on to determine best varieties for this locality. It also recommended that some farmers in the county produce certified seed corn for sale. It was also recommended that four or five year rotations be practiced where possible with a legume in the rotation. Also it was recommended that the fertilizer suggestions for corn as sent out from State College be modified to suit local conditions.

Hay production, it was agreed, was only three-fourths of what was needed in the county at present. It was recommended that each farmer sow two or more acres of winter hay such as barley, wheat and oats mixed, and cut for hay, Austrian peas and oats, or oats and vetch.

With whole hearted response to the questions of, "What shall we say about Pastures?", it was agreed from every one present that the Pasture Campaign of 1929 was a decided success, and that it should be continued through 1930 with a goal of 3,000 acres actually sown as compared to 2050 acres for 1929. It was further suggested that the County Agent make this one of the major activities for 1930. Spontaneous impulse to tell of their success with improved pastures came from many at the meeting.

It was recommended that old pastures be top dressed with superphosphate in February.

Of paramount interest to every farmer in the county was recommendation that Lespedeza was the most economical soil building legume, and that it be used in pasture mixtures, to be used also with red and sweet clovers, as it grows under practically all conditions.

It was further recommended that we continue co-operative marketing of live poultry, cooperative purchasing of Fish Meal. Also it was requested that the State division of markets be urged to aid in a cooperative shipment of eggs, to relieve the glut when eggs drop low in price.

A final recommendation was that the County Agent continue to cooperate with the Mebane Fair Association.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

(Copyright 1928)
 By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.
 Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, says:

"That I have been engaged for about fifty years in the serious struggle for business achievement. I am a great believer in the doctrine that all business effort must be done after the most careful calculation and in the light of sound economic process. There is no sounder lesson to business than was conveyed in my experience with Mr. Carnegie when, upon one occasion, I went to him triumphantly and showed him a very alluring statement concerning the profits we had realized from our manufacturing efforts. His answer was: 'I am not interested in your profits; show me your cost sheet.'"

But while business in all directions must be conducted upon sound principles, I am an equal believer in the doctrine that a healthy sentiment should underlie all our business relations. After all, business is but a relationship between human beings. Human beings must work and live, but above all things they want to be happy and it is the duty of every one of us to seek to make those around us happy. The personal relationships I have formed in my business career are the source of my greatest joy in life.

In my own experience, while I like to say that my greatest pride is to visit industrial towns and see smoking furnaces and busy machines, the fundamental thought that underlies all this is that these furnaces and machines are giving work and high wages to men and women on the basis of which they may develop contented homes and happy people.

WE IN OUR COUNTRY ARE ENJOYING AN UNPRECEDENTED ERA OF PROSPERITY. WE HAVE EVERY REASON TO LOOK FORWARD TO THE REALIZATION OF EVER-INCREASING HEIGHTS OF MATERIAL WELFARE AND PROGRESS. TO CONSERVE THIS PROSPERITY WE MUST, ABOVE ALL ELSE, CONSERVE THE WELFARE OF THE WORKING MAN AND ASSURE HIS PROTECTION UPON A HIGH SCALE OF WAGES AND A HIGH STANDARD OF LIVING.

DAIRYMEN TAKE FORWARD STEP

After first making the decision to keep dairy cows, the most forward step yet taken by Alamance Dairymen was the definite decision to employ a man for whole time work to do milk and butterfat testing and cost accounting for them. This association of dairymen, as formed, was once called Cow Test Association. It is now called Herd Improvement Association.

At a meeting of twenty-two dairymen held at Alexander Wilson School the decision was made to adopt the bi-monthly method of testing which is approved by the Bureau of Dairying at Washington and the State Dairy Extension Service at Raleigh. According to A. C. Kimrey, State Dairy Extension Specialist this is the first bi-monthly association organized in the South.

Guilford County Agent, J. I. Waggoner, Mr. J. S. Cummings wholesale Dairyman of Guilford County were present and told of the Herd Improvement work going on in their county.

This work will be started in February. Twenty-eight Dairymen whose names are listed below have already indicated their desire to start this work as early as the man can be employed.

V. T. Wood, C. W. Stanford, Manley Snipes, C. E. Teer, W. C. Neece, Jr., Geo. Bason, Harvey Mann, E. C. Turner, Geo. M. Isley, W. Kerr Scott, Henry Scott, Howard Cates, Ed. Dodson, Joe Aldridge, William Gaus, D. B. Moore, W. L. Spoon, Robert Long, Cad Albright, Geo. W. Isley, Wister Wood, G. L. Shore, N. A. Kimrey, Earl Covington, Dewey Covington, J. Webb Lindley, Guy Braxton, Joe Nicholson, and Loy Guthrie.

Other dairymen of the County expect to take advantage of the services of the "Cow Tester" who is to be employed. Fifty-two dairymen are as many as can be handled in one Association.

W. KERR SCOTT
 Alamance County Agent

It was recommended that the farmers of the county grow their own meat supply.

A final recommendation was that the County Agent continue to cooperate with the Mebane Fair Association.

W. H. HERRING, Jr.
 Asst. County Agent.

County Agent E. D. Bowditch of Clay County reports 3,000 bushels of sweet potatoes stored in cooperative curing barns. Mr. Bowditch has just gone into this county and gives credit for the work to the former agent.

From a flock of 154 White Leghorn hens, T. A. Woody of Marshall route 4, in Madison County, gathered 29,361 eggs, or an average of 190 eggs per hen. "Beat this if you can," says County Agent Earle Brintnail.

The fifth edition of "Poultry Diseases" written by B. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at State College, has just come from the printer. This book is used in practically all institutions as a text book in poultry science.
