Junior Order Memorial and Flag Days This Month.

Juniors throughout the state will observe two important occasions this month—flag day and the annual memorial service. Communications have been sent to the several hundred subordinate Councils by Charles E. Hamilton, of Durham, who is now bringing this year as State Councilor to a close.

Under the by-laws of the state organization, Juniors are required to observe flag day on the meeting nearest June 14. "The flag of our country is the symbol of constituted authority and represents the ideals and principles for which our government stands," says the state Councilor to the more than 52,000 men of the order.

Memorial day will be observed on Sunday, June 29. On that day all councils of the state are expected to do honor to the memory of their members who have died since the last memorial service was held.

Last week this story concluded with a new two-story annex to the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sidney Scott. But this was after the decease of Mr. Scott. Here Mr. and Mrs. Scott reared their family. For some time prior to and during the Civil War they made their home in Wilmington and Mebane. Mrs. Coriuna Scott Hunter was the oldest child. (At this writing the place of her birth has not been learned.) John L. Scott, Jr., (Jack), deceased, was born in Wilmington, and Henry W. (Buck), was born in the Graham home.

Let us pause here a moment for a few brief remarks about Mr. and Mrs. Scott: Mr. Scott was native this county (part of Orange at the time of his birth). He was a man of sterling character, fine judgment, acute business sagacity, kindly and friendly, and possessed a vein of good humor that seemed to be ever present. Mrs. Scott was Miss Betty Donnell and was born and reared in Guilford county. She was a gentlewoman that looked diligently after her household; a real home lover; the same whether at home or away; out of the innate goodness of her heart she seemed to never tire of doing for others; her neighbors and all who knew her loved her—the real test after all.

It would have been neglectful to have passed by these goodly people without a personal word. But it is not our intention to tittle enconiums and biographies in these sketches, for there are times when silece would be golden and the veil of charity should be the winding sheet.

A good friend in Washington City sends us a card reminding us of the unveiling of the monument where the battle of Alamance was fought. He was there and so was the writer. It was on Saturday, May 29th, 1880, the day following the commencement exercises at Graham College. The event had not been forgotten, and in due time it will be given more than a mere passing notice.

We are glad to have these reminders, and, before the narrative is concluded it will, no doubt, be necessary to back-track many times to pick up lost or forgotten trails.

All the buildings which were on the Scott lot fifty and less years ago have been razed and moved away and the frontage is occupied by brick structures—W. A. McAdams' cash grocery, Crack & Joe's dry goods store and Graham Theatre. Besides these there are two vacant business lots.

Now we move to the next lot, North. This lot was also bought at the auction sale of lots when the town was started. It was bought by Esquire Peter R. Harden, then a young man. It fronted on North Main St., 105 feet and had a depth of 210 feet, the same depth as the Scott lot.

Let's "back-track" here: The streets of Graham had not been named until 1892, so far as the records show. Before that date the main street North and South of the court house was designated as the "street running North from the court house," and the other streets in a similar way from or by some well known and established landmark. This explanation, properly, should have been made at an earlier stage.

In 1848, by act of the Legislature, Alamance county was erected out of Orange county, which was represented in the House at that time by Col. John Stockard and Hon. Giles Mebane, both of whom favored the measure and both residents of the proposed county. The town was named in honor of Gov. Wm. A. Graham. After the Town Commissioners had named the streets in 1892, it was learned that the two principal streets of Graham were to have been named for these gentlemen—that running East and West from the court house square, Mebane; and that North and South, Stockard. This tradition never came to the ears of the Town Board until after it had performed the act and made a record and diagram of it in its minutes. And, so far as known, no one on the Board knew or ever heard of the names, Mebane and Stockard for these two principal streets.

We never knew Col. Stockard (he died more than 50 years ago), but we knew and talked with Mr. Mebane 8 or 10 years after the naming of the streets. The matter was not mentioned. We did not think of it and it is doubtful if Mr. Mebane did.

At the time of the naming of the streets, H. W. Scott was may-
