

"Oh, I say... is there no end
to this?"

IT'S Sir Walter speaking. What, Sir Walter Raleigh? The same. Some months ago he offered pipe lovers a free booklet on "How to take care of your pipe." And the poor chap's been buried under requests ever since. However, we've succeeded in engaging two of Queen Elizabeth's ladies-in-waiting to help the old boy out with his mail—so don't hesitate to send for your copy. It tells you how to break in a new pipe—how to keep it sweet and mellow—how to make an old pipe smoke smoother and better—the proper way to clean a pipe—and a lot of worth-while hints on pipe hygiene. If you're a pipe smoker, you'll want to read this booklet. It's free. Just write to the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, Louisville, Ky.

TUNE IN on "The Raleigh Revue" every Friday, 10:30 to 11:00 p. m. (New York Time), over the WJAF coast-to-coast network of N.B.C.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia! When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it. Phillips is the genuine, prescription product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

No Lost Motion in Handling Milk

Few Foods Are Delivered to Consumer as Quickly and Cleanly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Few foodstuffs are delivered to the consumer as quickly and cleanly with as little lost motion as milk, and in bringing about this condition the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture, co-operating with the state, city and other officials and with the dairy industry, and the public, has played an important part, said O. E. Reed, chief of the federal bureau, in an address July 7 at Sacramento, Calif., to the California State Milk-Control conference. The federal bureau, he said, is working constantly to raise still higher the general level of quality of the public milk and cream supply.

Consumption of Products.
"The consumption of dairy products in the United States can be greatly increased," he said. "The per capita consumption of milk in this country is much lower than it is in several other of the civilized nations. Our bureau is serving both the economic interests of the dairy industry and the nutritional interests of consumers."

"Our bureau is investigating dairy sanitation, and is devising and helping to introduce better methods of producing and handling fluid milk and cream," he said. "Our quality-improvement work relates to the sanitary treatment of utensils and the care of milk equipment; to the cooling of milk and cream to prevent the growth of bacteria; to the care of milk and cream in transit to the consumer; to efficiency in pasteurization; and to sanitation in city milk plants. Also, when asked to do so, we assist state and local authorities in formulating legislation and ordinances for safeguarding the milk and cream supply. As a result of this work, the bureau is able to advise dairymen, milk dealers and distributors, and milk control officials, as to methods to use which will help to give stability to the producer's market and trade conditions, and which will provide the consumer with wholesome products."

Herd Improvement.
Mr. Reed emphasized that herd improvement by associations of dairymen is highly important, to the dairy industry. "Sound economics demands that the industry maintain only cows which produce efficiently and economically. The consumer has the right to expect that the industry will increase its productive efficiency," he said.

Raising and Finishing

Baby Beef on the Farm

The farmer who keeps a herd of beef cows and fattens the calves for market as yearlings has some advantages over the farmer who buys feeder calves. By using a good type pure bred bull of one of the best breeds with cows carefully selected for beef type and early maturity, he can produce better calves than those usually available for feeding. By starting these farm raised calves or grain while they are still running with the cows, they will go into the feed lot weighing more than range raised calves, and there will be no setback from weaning or from being shipped long distances. Calves which are raised and finished on the farm will reach market weight and finish in a shorter time.

Farm Hints

The pasture is entitled to a rest; it is absolutely necessary for best results.

Effective methods of swarm control of bees involve the use of young queens and plenty of room for the bees.

Covering silage with blankets or burlap and preventing circulation of air in the silo are ways to keep silage from freezing in severely cold weather.

Farmers are learning that it pays to plow the stubble immediately following the binder or combine, especially if the following crop is to be winter wheat.

Isolation of the new hogs requires that they be placed in a lot by themselves far enough removed so they will not come in contact with other hogs through the fence.

Vegetable specialists recommend seeding the garden to rye or some other cover crop. The growth will prevent erosion and the green material will improve the physical condition of the soil.

Products produced on the farm are an important item in the income of the small farm business. As an average, approximately one-third of the farm family's living comes from the farm. A well planned farm garden is a source of much of these products.

Look for Hessian fly infestation the second week in November. Infested plants may be found in early sown fields or where volunteer was left standing. Volunteer wheat is recognized as one of the most injurious weeds grown on the farm. Inspect the fields for the fly while the infested plants show deep green colors and hollow stems.

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Building materials, together with many other commodities, are relatively low in price now, so that farmers who have delayed erecting new buildings can go ahead with the assurance that costs probably will not be less in a number of years. Farm building since the war has been neglected because of high prices of materials and labor. The present scale of costs coupled with the fact that modern farm buildings are profitable investments should cause a resumption in the erection of new farm improvements.

Brighten Up Dark Rooms With Cheerful Colors

Whether a person is building or renovating, one is nearly always confronted with the problem of dark rooms.

The northern exposure needs sunlight, the eastern exposure warmth of tone. Even the western and southern exposures may often have too little light from a too small window or an obstruction of sunshine by neighboring buildings. Occasionally there will even be a windowless room.

The last problem is a common one in the older parts of cities, where the dark "middle room" of the house is a usual architectural feature. The interesting manner in which this situation has been handled in one such home is worthy of the attention of anyone who would like to make sunlight for a sunless room.

The walls are painted a warm cream, while the woodwork, which fills an entire side of the room with a series of charming little cupboards, is ivory white.

The double doors leading to the passage which turns onto the patio are half of glass, as are those leading on the other side of the living room. Both are hung with gold-colored gauze, through which the light filters with a suggestion of sun. Glittering brass candlesticks and a gilt china bowl on the table, repeat this suggestion.

Not only is a light color used for this room, but a paint carefully selected for finish. A glossy surface generally reflects more light than a dull one, and while the walls and woodwork need not necessarily have a high gloss finish, the flat finish, which always absorbs a certain amount of light, must be avoided in such a situation.

In every detail, where it can profitably be done—in hue, value and what may here be referred to as texture—everything in this treatment is subordinated to light making. The success may be estimated to some degree by the electric light fixtures chosen. Two small fixtures suffice, proving the luminous qualities of the finish for artificial light.

Of course, this problem of a windowless room is not a particularly common one in most parts of the country, but there is seldom to be found a house or an apartment that has not some poorly lighted place. Hallways, bathrooms and kitchens frequently

While the poultry industry is in a slump this summer, there is no reason to believe it will not revive. But in order to make it profitable farmers and poultrymen must provide their flocks with houses where the birds will do their best. In connection with this article there is shown an illustration of a small shed poultry house and practically complete plans showing how this building is erected, and the materials used. This type of house is a proper house for the young pullets which are kept on range throughout the summer. However, there is no reason why this house cannot be used for layers during the fall and winter. The architect's drawing which accompanies the exterior view of the building consists of a front elevation, a cross-section and floor plans, together with details of construction. The dimensions of the materials used are indicated on the cross-section and in the details.

Roofs No Longer Mere Covering Over the Home

The day has passed when the roof of a home is regarded as the covering over four walls and nothing more. The roof is an important part of the house exterior and should have the same architectural treatment and consideration as the rest of the house.

Today roofs are recognized as comprising more than a mere necessity (a necessary expense) in house construction; they are character-endowing, beauty-enhancing features, fitting in with particular types of architecture, yet losing none of their usefulness, says a statement issued by a well-known architect.

"Progress in roof designing has been steady," the statement goes on. "In the last decade some particularly noteworthy strides have been made. The departure from the purely utilitarian field began in all probability with the gradual assumption of broken lines and the consequent elimination of some of the over-severe regularity."

Harmonious Effect Should Be in Trim and Walls

The trim should, if possible, be of the same hue (color) as the walls. In times past we thought that the trim should form a harmonious unity with the walls. If the trim must be of a different hue we should take care that the brightness or value is the same. Otherwise there would be a suggestion of hard and inconsistent lines, which in turn would produce a feeling of restlessness.

Germs sealed up in culture tubes 26 years ago have been found to be still alive by Dr. Ortiz Patto, reports Modern Mechanics Magazine. Many of the germs grew in the new cultures and some produced disease just as these same germs would have done when young.

Rejuvenation

Dr. Sims Lee Rice, the Richmond surgeon, was talking about the Vornoff and other methods of rejuvenation.

"These methods," he said, "rejuvenate, yes, but the rejuvenation only lasts a short time. A year or so passes, and you are older, far older, than before."

"One of our millionaires," Professor Rice went on, "underwent the rejuvenating operation, and temporarily the change in him was remarkable. Though he was seventy years old, a crop of thick brown hair burst forth on his bald head, his wrinkles disappeared, and the strength of youth came back to him."
