

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., SEPT. 4, 1930.

LOCAL NEWS

—It continues hot and dry.
 —The county schools will open next week.
 —Superior court convened Monday for a term of two weeks for the trial of civil cases.
 —Graham schools opened Monday with a good enrollment. All the teachers were in place ready for their work.
 —Rev. R. P. Ellington and family returned to Graham the latter part of last week after spending the summer at their old home in South Alamance.
 —Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thompson are giving a fish fry Friday afternoon for the Graham school teachers at Loy's pond, in Albright township, some eight miles south of Graham.
 —We notice among those here attending court the following attorneys: Hon. S. M. Gattis of Hillsboro, Hon. J. Elmer Long, of Durham, Mr. O. L. Sapp and son, O. L. Sapp, Jr., of Greensboro; also W. H. Foushee, of Greensboro and J. Sam Albright of Wilmington.

—The Junior Order made quick work of securing the insurance from the insurance department of the order on the life of Mr. Banks Quakenbush. He died Monday evening and the insurance check was received Sunday morning. That was prompt service.
 —Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis and children left this morning for Baltimore, to spend a few days. From there they will sail for India the latter part of the month. Mr. Minnis was a missionary in India for a number of years. Some two years ago he returned and had been pastor of Graham M. P. church. He feels the call to go back. He resigned his charge and preached his farewell sermon Sunday morning. He made many friends whose prayers will follow him in his chosen work.

Resolutions of Respect to William Banks Quakenbush

Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in his wise, though mysterious providence, has seen fit to take from our midst our dear, beloved brother, W. B. Quakenbush:
 Be it resolved, that in his death we, the officers and members of Graham Council No. 36, Jr. O. U. A. M. have lost an upright, honest brother, a brother whose heart was easily touched by the infirmities of mankind,
 That we mourn his death and meekly bow to the will of God, who is too wise to err, and whose eyes are never bedimmed by the veil so dark to us, and which we call mysterious,
 That we endeavor so to live, that when we come to the river that marks the unknown shore, our hands may be filled with love, the passport to eternity,
 That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes and a copy be sent to The Gleaner for publication.

Fogleman-Shoffner Reunion at Low's Today

Marker Will Be Unveiled to Pioneer Fogleman.

Whitsett, Sept. 3.—One of the interesting features of the Fogleman-Shoffner reunion which will be held at Low's Lutheran church Thursday, September 4, will be the unveiling of a marker to the pioneer Fogleman who came direct from his home near the Rhine river to this section. Worship began on these grounds a short time before 1750, and the place was first known as the Beaver Creek church, taking the name Lau's church later from the pioneer David Law, who gave the land; this family name was later changed to the present spelling, Low. Here the Lutheran and Reformed people of this section worshiped together, often being served by the same pastor. After twenty years on these grounds the Reformed people moved to Brick church and for years used a schoolhouse as their place of worship, later building a church home. The first Lutheran pastor's home was located near Mount Hope church and was last occupied by the late Rev. E. P. Parker. The second home was near the scene of the Alamance battleground where Gov. William Eryon met the regulators, May 16,

 County home bill for $448.46 allowed.
 Old soldiers to be furnished transportation to Charlotte.
 Jury for county court for September 22, drawn.
 A Mr. Curtis asked $10 for six turkeys killed by dogs. To be investigated.
 County accountant ordered to demand from former sheriff, C. D. Story, settlement of taxes due and for which he was responsible when he went out of office and that copy of order be sent to bonding company.

1771, and many from this section took part in that battle.
 The address presenting the marker on September 4, will be by Dr. W. T. Whitsett, and the speech of acceptance by Prof. J. B. Robertson. The Fogleman family record as to ancestry and connections will be given by Dr. D. I. Offman.

Banking Grows More Complicated

DENVER, Colo.—The increase in the technicalities of the banking business in the past dozen years was shown by a speaker before the American Institute of Banking which held its annual convention here recently when he pointed out that in 1918, when the institute last met in this city, it gave only three courses, while today it gives 10, with more subjects in preparation. At the earlier date, he said, the curriculum of the institute consisted of elementary banking, commercial and banking law, and money and banking, whereas today it consists of banking fundamentals, commercial law, negotiable instruments, standard economics, standard banking, credits, investments, trust functions, analyzing financial statements, and public speaking, while the two new subjects of bank operation and organization, and bank management are to be added.

Graham 50 Years Ago.

What was known as the Pugh corner fifty years ago (now occupied by Groham Drug Co., Citizens bank, Misses Amicks' millinery shop and Graham Hardware Co.), was a 2-story brick structure. The corner, fronting on the courthouse square, was a sizeable store room for the day and time it was built. It was not ornamental; just a plain brick building. It took about four steps to get in at the front door. There was a stairway in the back end of the store room to get to the second floor.
 This building was built by the Sellars—we have heard it was Dr. B. A. Sellars, the founder of the large mercantile firm of Burlington, which bears his name. But it may have been a brother of Dr. Sellars.

An examination of the courthouse records, as far as we have examined, does not disclose who was the original purchaser of this lot when the town of Graham was founded. In subsequent conveyances it is known as lot No. 2, in the plan of the town.

Title was taken to the lot by Elizabeth Pugh June 19, 1873, to whom it was conveyed by George and M. A. Patterson, wife. This man Patterson was a merchant and did business here in the years immediately following the Civil war, and moved to Concord in the early 70's.

At the time we are writing about the property was owned by the children of Elizabeth Pugh, widow. There were at least four children, Frank P., Dave and two young girls, one Louella and the other's name is not recalled just now. Frank was a plasterer by trade, and Dave a printer. Dave learned the art of setting type in The Gleaner shop, afterwards going on the road and becoming what then was known as a "hobo" printer, working in sundry shops for a day or so to get a few dollars ahead, then moving on.

The family moved from here to Greensboro. If any of them are living, we are not advised where. One of the girls married and lived in Florida at one time, and one of them attained some fame as a writer of verse.

The corner store housed at one time or another sundry efforts at the mercantile business—small grocery stores, principally. Some of them we recall were J. J. Long, Geo. A. Durham, W. F. Blackmon, R. H. Farrell, James M. Turner, J. H. Watson, John Denny, hardware, and others.

In the up-stairs of the above store room the tenants were also varied. Long, Stockard and Co., made smoking tobacco there at one time. Mrs. John Denny and daughters used it for a millinery shop for a while. Here also Col. Jacob A. Long had his law office for a year or so. Before the upstairs began to be used for the above purposes, a stairway was built onto the outside next to the courthouse square.

The upstreet wing, a two-story affair, was long and narrow, about fifty feet long and fifteen or sixteen feet deep. The first room, northward, about the spot now occupied by the Citizens bank, was Miss Sallie G r e s o n's millinery shop. It would have vied with Dickens' "curiosity shop." But here she stitched away, fashioning headgear for the ladies of the community. She seemed to please her customers and the things she made enhanced the good looks of her patrons. Grown old, she retired and passed away.

For a while the aforesaid room was a miniature drug store, and used for awhile by the late Dr. Geo. W. Long. In this same room John M. Coble, prosperous business man of Burlington, when but a lad, laid the foundation of his future business success. He sold fancy groceries, confectioneries and soft drinks. If you meet up with him he will tell you about it good-humorously. By the way, he and members of his family have just returned from a tour in Europe.

What else is to be told about this corner will keep till a later date.

Easy to look at

EASY TO LOOK AT—good to look at—that's your reaction to charm and beauty. Easy to smoke—good to smoke—that's the lure of Camels. Good because of the natural mildness and fragrance of mellow tobaccos, with all the delicacy and aroma preserved by scientific skill in preparation and blending—good because there's no over-processing or doctoring—no flatness of taste.

Easy—because they are so mild and smooth that you can smoke them all the day through with never a suggestion of throat discomfort.

Notice that it's Camels now—your crowd and elsewhere—because Camels are so good to smoke.
