

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

Castoria corrects CHILDREN'S ailments

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restful sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine; with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

DOCTOR'S Prescription gives Bowels Real Help

Train your bowels to be regular; to move at the same time every day; to be so thorough that they get rid of all the waste. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription—will help you do this. When you take this compound of laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients, you are helping the bowels to help themselves.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the sensible thing to take whenever you are headachy, bilious, half-sick from constipation. When you have no appetite, and bad taste or bad breath shows you're full of poisonous matter or sour bile. Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for 47 years. His prescription always works quickly, thoroughly; can never do you any harm. It just cleans you out and sweetens the whole digestive tract. It gives those overworked bowels the help they need. Take some Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today, and see how fine you feel tomorrow—and for days to come. Give it to the kiddies when they're sickly or feverish; they'll like the taste! Your druggist has big bottles of it, all ready for use.

Found Love in a Library

By JANE OSBORN

LESTER PORTER had been graduated from college—a fact, said his friends, that indicated that the faculty of Baldwin university were getting rather lenient or that Lester had been very lucky. No one ever saw Lester reading a book, and if he ever spent any time in the college library during his four years as an undergraduate, it was surely on rare occasions.

Then by some odd turn of events Lester got a job on the editorial staff of a magazine—but still he never read, at least any more than he had to. And the editor in chief one day remarked to his first assistant, well out of Lester's hearing, that it was a mortal shame that Lester did not have a better education.

"Oh, I know he's been to college," said the editorial leader. "But the trouble is, Lester needs literary seasoning. He's really clever, perhaps brilliant, but his manner and his writing give the impression of a man who's never read 'Too bad, because he will hardly do here in the editorial offices. We'll try to get him switched over to the business department.'"

Then it happened one day when Lester Porter had business in the section of the old town where were stretched out the buildings and campus of his alma mater, that a really heavy rainstorm overtook him. And being only a short way from the old college library, Lester ran thither for shelter. Perhaps there would be a current magazine of a frothy nature that would serve to while away ten minutes or so. He would ask where they kept the current magazines. And the girl he asked happened to be Lorna Crane, youngest of all the young librarians employed in the college library—youngest and decidedly the prettiest.

"There are no magazines in this section," she told Lester when he asked his question. "And I think you have to have a special permit to read them. Otherwise the students would be at them all the time. Is there something else that you would like?"

"Why, yes," said Lester. "I might browse around awhile if you have no objection." Lester stayed in the library an hour and a half that afternoon. And the longer he stayed the more sure he was that this girl with whom he had been talking possessed all the qualities needed to the making of his ideal woman.

He came back three or four days later at about the same time in the late afternoon, and seeing that the girl of his ideals was on duty, Lester sat down and began to read a book that some previous reader had left out. It was an essay on English literary style by a writer of whom Lester had never even heard. Despite his frequent glancing up to see whether his ideal was still not far off Lester found himself becoming much interested in what this writer had to say.

Again and again Lester came, always primarily to see the girl, but eventually in good measure to go on with some book that had taken his attention on some previous visit. Then somehow Lester managed to get courage to ask this girl if she would sometime have tea with him when she could leave the library a little early. And from that it wasn't very hard to ask her if he might call. She turned out to be the daughter of a professor—old Professor Crane, whom Lester had once regarded as a first-rate fossil. And from meeting Mrs. Crane and shaking hands with Professor Crane, it was not so very hard to ask Lorna to go to the theater with him and to manage to dance with her at a little club he knew about afterwards.

"What's got into you?" asked his editorial chief one day when Lester was trying to concentrate on a bit of editorial work before him. "You don't spend so much time at the office as you used to, but the time you do spend here you use to ten times as good advantage. This review you've just handed in and that editorial you wrote last week—why, man, they're corking! Not just clever—your things were always that—but scholarly."

Lester was trying to stammer out some sort of reply, but the editor went right on. "I was thinking of getting you transferred over to the business department," he said, "but since you've been doing so well here, I think you'd do better to stay with us. I think I'll promote you to Stanley's place—as my first assistant. He's taking a year off and probably won't ever come back. That means, of course, about double the check you are now getting." Lester stammered his thanks.

"I'm especially glad," he said, "because I have just become engaged to Lorna Crane, Professor Crane's daughter, you know—and now we won't have to put off the wedding."

"So that's it," commented the editor in chief. "Well, you're not the first man to whom romance served as a tonic."

Queen's Crucifix Added to Vatican Treasures

The pope has recently added a very important, though quite unostentatious looking crucifix to the already large and priceless collection which he possesses. This crucifix was carried by Marie Antoinette almost up to the moment of her execution and is made of wood and brass.

After the queen had made her confession, an hour or so before her execution, she handed the simple little crucifix to the priest... almost her last earthly act. Some time later the priest gave the crucifix to his niece, who lived in Toulouse.

As she lay dying she asked the cure to select some little object as a keepsake. He chose Marie Antoinette's crucifix. Later he became Monsiegnor Ricard and it was he who bequeathed the relic to his holiness.

Millions in Vegetables

One hundred thousand freight cars were required to move the vegetables that were shipped out of the state of California last year. This represents a valuation of $75,000,000, and the crop was 50 per cent more than it was five years ago.

California is not only conceded to be the first state in vegetable production, but outstanding in the science and practice of vegetable production and marketing. Since the late 90s, when the first shipments of vegetables were made to the East from the Los Angeles basin, methods of growing, packing and loading have been constantly improved until at present the vegetable products of California and Arizona set the standard of quality on the East and Middle West markets.

Got His on Earth

Anne W. Armstrong tells a little story which reveals the psychology of the southern mountaineer. When she was a child her father took one grim old mountaineer from Yancey county, North Carolina, to visit the finest house in town. The mountaineer gazed at everything without comment, but as they came away he remarked, "Won't no man what lives in a house as fine as that there ever go to heaven!"—Washington Star.
