

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., OCT. 1, 1931.

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY.

J. D. KERNODLE, Editor.

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

Peyton McSwain, State Senator, whose home is Shelby, announces himself a candidate for Attorney General of North Carolina. He is a prominent lawyer and experienced legislator.

There are forward-looking folks these days, especially in politics. It takes an early bird to head the procession of place hunters. A time-keeper with a stop-watch would be necessary to determine the first entry.

J.C.B. Ehringhaus, Elizabeth City, attorney and out-standing gubernatorial candidate for governor, spoke to a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in Burlington last Thursday night. He made no mention of politics, and in that he displayed shrewd politics.

The State Fair at Raleigh will be held Oct. 12 to 17, inclusive. Indications are, according to reports coming from Raleigh, that it will be a great exposition. Those fond of horse-racing, and most people are, will be able to enjoy the sport again, as there are races scheduled for every day.

In choosing Henry L. Stevens, Jr., of Warsaw, as Commander of the American Legion at Detroit last Friday, a distinct honor come to the Old North State and the South. And coming back home his fellow citizens gave him a royal welcome, and other events on a big scale in his honor are in the making.

What will be done about it is problematical. The American Legion went on record for a referendum on prohibition, affecting beer, and the National Grange opposes the region view in that it would militate against the dairy interest. Both these are big organizations with large influence. The people are sober-minded but the operation of the Volstead act, and its enforcement, is not making a good job of making them prohibition-minded.

Is hard times a myth—an economic condition or a mental delusion? The continuous spending and doing prompts the interrogation. There is apparently no let-up in burning gas; amusements, baseball, football and movies, continue to draw big crowds; and as for the schools—the attendance grows—the University has its record matriculation and other schools are showing no appreciable falling off. It takes money for all these, and the money is coming from somewhere in spite of the depression.

Double Feed Money
By Selling To Cows.

Fourteen dollars worth of farm-grown feed fed to good average cows will produce $25 worth of butterfat, at present prices and will leave $5.00 worth of skim milk on the farm to say nothing of the manure. "At the present prices for butterfat, the man who has produced a surplus of forage and other dairy food can sell this feed through cows to a fairly good return for his labor," says A. C. Kimrey, dairy extension specialist at State College. "The relation between the farm price of dairy feeds and butterfat is favorable now and bids fair to remain so through the coming winter. Records kept on present market conditions shows that if $14 worth of feed is fed to good average cows, it will produce 180 pounds of butterfat. When sold for butter-making purposes, this fat is worth $28. In addition there will be left on the farm about 1,600 pounds of skim milk worth 35 cents a hundred pounds. This is excellent for feeding poultry or hogs and when so fed has a value of $5.00."

In addition to these values, the manure...

JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

By Carl Goerch

Last Friday I went down to Warsaw. It was the day after that community had received word of the election of Henry Stevens as national commander of the American Legion.

You talk about a place being all excited and stirred up. The folks down there were some kind of elated. Half of the babies born in Duplin county during the next six months probably will be named in honor of Henry.

Despite all this talk about hard times and business depression, I read in the papers last week of two men—one in South Carolina and another in Ohio—who had been arrested for bigamy.

Another thing I've never been able to understand is this business of ordering a suit made to your measure. When you look over the flock of samples that the tailor puts on display, you skim through that until all of a sudden you see a piece that strikes your fancy.

It's a beautiful piece of goods. You rave about it. The tailor, not to be outdone, also raves. The measurements are taken and you leave the store with the knowledge that for once in your life, you're going to have a striking, distinctive and wonderful suit of clothes.

When the suit arrives, it looks like something the cat has dragged in. You try it on and your wife comments: "Why in the world did you ever pick out a pattern like that?" Your friends are equally that sarcastic. One of these days a miracle may happen; a suit may look as good to me as the sample from which I selected it, but I seriously doubt it.

While we're on the subject of suits, bigamy, depression and such things—which have nothing to do with the next subject—I've often wondered about those jokes that one hears on the street, in pullman smoking compartments and in other places where men congregate.

Who makes them up? Where do they get their start and how do they manage to circulate so rapidly? They can't be published, because they are too raw, and yet, I've heard the same jokes in New Mexico that they tell up in New York.

I have yet to find anyone who could tell me where these jokes get their start. Does somebody just make them up accidentally, or are there folks who spend their time in trying to think them up?

The Wickersham Commission ought to have given that subject a little time and attention.

It's a funny thing, but during the last week or so, I've heard less talk about the gubernatorial and senatorial situation than at any time in the last two months.

From now on until next June is a long time. The various candidates are going to have a hard time of it, keeping interest at a high pitch during this interval. What with the World Series and the football season just opening up in good fashion, politics doesn't stand much chance of hogging the spotlight for the next several weeks.

I was on the road between Goldsboro and Raleigh last Friday afternoon. Driving along at about forty miles an hour, I was passing a little country store when a man out in front of the place let out a yell of alarm and pointed at my rear tire.

I jammed on the brakes and brought the car to a stop. The man came running up with a grin on his face.

"Mind giving me a ride up the road spicer?" he inquired.

"First of all I started to get mad. Then I decided not to."

"Sure" I heartily assented. "But would you mind running back into the store and getting me a box of matches?"

He darted toward the building. When he got inside, I threw the car in gear and beat it. It was the last I saw of him.

cent of the plant food in the food-stuffs will go back to the farm in the form of manure and thus cut down the fertilizer bill, says Mr. Kimrey.

The return from selling foodstuffs through cows does not suggest that any one will get rich from the project, cautions Mr. Kimrey, but he does suggest that a better price will be received for the grains and

The Graham Messenger Moves To Burlington And Changes Name.

The Graham Messenger, established here three and a half years ago by F. A. Slate, is moving to Burlington this week. Its predecessor here was the County Seat Graphic, operated by C. S. Parnell, owner of the Mebane Enterprise.

Our relations with The Messenger have been very pleasant and we regret our neighbor is leaving though it is not going away very far. Capt. R. G. Foster, a veteran newspaper man and well known throughout the county, has edited the Messenger most of the time since its establishment. It is understood he will not be connected with the new paper.

The new paper will be known as The Burlington Messenger. Volume 1, number 1, appeared last Friday. At the mast-head is the name of Brinson Smith as editor and F. A. Slate as manager.

The Graham paper was Republican in politics, but Mr. Slate says in his salutatory, "politically, the Messenger will be as thoroughly independent as it is humanly possible to make it."

Mr. Smith, living at present in New York City, is a native of Georgia. In his newspaper career he has been connected with the New York World, the Detroit Times, Success Magazine and other papers.

The new paper, says the announcement, begins as a tri-weekly and will be converted into a daily as quickly as necessary machinery can be installed and a staff organized.

With two dailies in Burlington and two weeklies, at Mebane and Graham, Alamance citizens should keep up with the happenings in the county.

Mankind Seems to Have Reversed Nature's Rule

It has been revealed that the men of one great American city spend almost as much for clothes as the women. There is a difference in cost, of course. Women can purchase three or four dresses and appear beautiful for the money a man pays for one suit. And there can be no dispute about the women looking far more comfortable, especially in hot weather.

One writer, commenting along this line, makes the observation: "The masculine taste is to dress well enough to be unnoticeable and the feminine ambition is to dress well enough to attract attention." Accepting this epigrammatic statement as true, it is a complete reversal of nature's rule as between male and female. In natural life the male is endowed with the fisheries, presumably to attract the attention of modest potential mates.

It is a waste of vigor to protest against woman obtaining what she denominates her rights. She takes them where she sees them and there is nothing to be done about it.—Toledo Blade.

Removes "Frozen" Bolts

Nuts on bolts used on machinery often become "frozen" in place and are removed only with great difficulty. Often it becomes necessary to cut them away with a chisel or remove them by drilling, either of which is a long and tedious operation. Human strength cannot move these pieces, but a piece of pneumatic machinery has been recently devised which does the work. It is an air-driven wrench which has been largely adopted for use about locomotive shops and similar establishments. The tool is of such convenient form that it may readily be carried about and will quickly dislodge nuts on bolts up to an inch and a quarter.

United States Fur Center

The United States has displaced London as the fur center of the world, according to the latest government reports. There are no accurate figures for the domestic fur catch in the United States, but its annual value is estimated at from $45,000,000 to $70,000,000, and most of this comes from the Mississippi valley, which is the largest fur-producing area in the world, with double the catch of Russia and three times that of Canada. The four outstanding domestic commercial furs are muskrat, opossum, skunk and racoon.
