Football, the national game, is not without its casualties. A late statement puts the number of deaths at 31 during the season. It comes high to both the spectators and the players.

In Tuesday's election in the 5th New Jersey Congressional district Percy H. Stewart, a Democrat, was elected to a vacancy caused by the death of a Republican. This gives the Democrats 219 seats, a clear majority of two. The normal Republican majority has been 35,000. The administration has received small comfort from the recent elections.

A charity game of football will be played at the Duke University Stadium Saturday afternoon. The cream of the teams will engage in the contest. Duke and Carolina are pitted against State, Wake Forrest and Davidson. It no doubt will be a great game. If the fans patronize it as well as they have the other games a goodly sum should be realized.

Mr. Hoover champions plan to buy homes on easy installments after an initial payment of one-fifth of the entire cost. Most would-be home owners find that initial payment an insuperable barrier. Homeownership is commendable in the highest degree and is a pretty subject to talk on, but the depression handicap that has fastened itself upon the country has wiped out many homeownership prospects and dreams.

Hold-ups are everyday occurrences. The laws do not put the crime in the same class with burglary. The burglar who enters a home in the night time goes prepared for any emergency, if he meets resistance. The crime is a capital felony. The hold-up also goes prepared for any emergency and about the first intimation the victim has of what is going on is a gun in his face with a demand for the cash. In either case the victim is in extreme jeopardy, but there is a wide difference in the punishment prescribed by law. Here is something for legislators to reconcile in crimes and punishments.

In Kentucky tobacco growers are wrathful and resentful at the low prices, lower than last year, received for tobacco. They threatened to tear down the warehouses. Wrong there—the operators of warehouses are not responsible. The trouble is somewhere else, and it is not because the consumer is getting the manufactured product for less. As a fact, some of the manufactured goods, if not all, were advanced in price not so many weeks ago. It might be worth while for the government to do some investigating. Maybe there is a "secret treaty" somewhere that needs to be brought into the open.

The Congress that convenes next Monday is going to count noses on prohibition. There will be Democrats and Republicans voting pro and con. There are avowed wets and bone-drys on either side. There is some sentiment for the repeal of the 18th amendment and a good deal more for a modification. Prohibition is not sailing on an even keel—that's the thing that bothers, while millions are being spent in an effort to enforce an unpopular law. There is small hope for the ideal in prohibition, but conditions might be materially improved by intensive education as to evil and baneful effects of intoxicants.

BUILD AIRPLANES FOR STRATOSPHERE

France and Germany Work in Great Secrecy.

Washington.—Germany has matched France with construction of an airplane for traveling in the stratosphere, far above the earth, at an exceedingly high speed.

Manufacturers of this type of plane visualize it making a trip across the Atlantic to New York, flying ten miles high, in five or six hours, thus revolutionizing all present modes of airplane travel.

Both the French and the German machines, the latter built by the Germans Junkers firm in Dessau, were constructed secretly.

A general description of the German plane has been forwarded to the Commerce department here. The ends of the wings are pointed and the fuselage is long. The width of the ship from wing tip to wing tip is 36 feet.

The plane flies slowly at low altitudes, but is capable of making 300 miles an hour at high altitudes, or better. The construction is of the all-metal low-deck type, with one built-in Junkers 800-horse power motor of the L-88 type.

To supply oxygen to the motor in the rarefied atmosphere in which the plane will fly, the motor is equipped with a bellows arrangement. The pilot and his assistant will occupy a low-pressure sealed chamber into which oxygen will be pumped, instead of the usual cabin.

The air pressure in this chamber will be artificially increased to correspond with the increase in the pressure of the air at high altitudes.

Preliminary trial flights are expected to be made soon.

Three Baths Yearly Once Limit for School Girls

New York.—The school girl who is scrubbed and fed and sent off each day with a pile of books under her arm is probably healthier and happier than the young scion of nobility who was placed in a private institute of learning 200 years ago.

From a catalogue issued in the Eighteenth century by a school for the daughters of nobility at St. Cyr, France, we get this interesting bit of information:

"Pupils are entitled to have one set of underclothing, one pair of stockings, and two handkerchiefs per month. Towels; Pupils, one every week; nuns, one every two weeks. Footbaths: Pupils, one a month; nuns, only by special authorization of the superior. Complete baths: Three a year (May, June, and July). Pupils unable to take their baths on the appointed day must wait until the following month."

Though a great many modern school girls are not as spick-and-span as they should be, even the children of city slums are not as rigidly cut off from the comforts of cleanliness as were these daughters of bygone kings.

Rules Man Has Right to Boast Under Soft Moon

Los Angeles.—A man has a legal right to boast to a girl under the spell of a romantic moon. Superior Judge Thomas C. Gould has ruled.

The judge made his ruling in denying the plea of Letys Phillips for an annulment of her marriage to Stanley Phillips because she said he told her he was prosperous and could give her a number of expensive things, but never did.

"Every girl is promised all manner of things under a soft moon," said the judge. "Not that they expect to take such prattle literally, but they sort of expect the power to paint a rosy picture of the future. One of the oldest laws entitled a man to 'puff his wares.'"

Small Town's Cemetery Holds Vets of All Wars

Lynville, Ind.—Veterans of every war in which the United States has participated are buried in the cemetery of this small town. The graveyard is on a hill, overlooking the village. Civil war veterans, 50 of whom are buried here, lead the list. Others are: Revolutionary war, four; war of 1812, two; Black Hawk Indian war, one; Mexican war, one; Spanish-American, one; World war, one.

Farmers Saving Small Spuds to Feed Hungry

Amery, Wis.—Farmers living near this city have been asked to save the small potatoes gathered in harvests this fall for shipment to western areas where crops have been less bountiful. The Farmers' union plans to send a carload of the little "spuds" to help feed others who had no crops this year.

Coffin Is Mistaken as Cache for Rum

Topeka, Kan.—A busybody, who saw a suspicious looking box being carted into a certain house, notified Joe Delmer, special liquor investigator. He rounded up a squad of policemen and investigated.

The findings: An undertaker's convention was in progress at the house. The suspicious box contained a sample casket.
