

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., MAR. 17, 1932.

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

Entered at the Post-office at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

Congress is considering a ten percent reduction in the pay of federal employees. If the array of employees shall also be reduced, it would help reduce the enormous expense of government and curtail to some extent the increasing deficit now confronting the U. S. Treasury.

The Lindbergh baby kidnaping is a tragedy which has profoundly stirred all America, and does not stop at our own shores. The situation now is not far different from what it was the hour the baby was first missed from its crib. There is still hope, but it is heart-sickening.

Prohibition had its day in the House of Congress Monday. It was whether the House would consider a resolution to provide for state dry law control. The decision was 227 against to 187 for. It was a victory for the 18th amendment. Both the "wets" and "drys" were pleased in the matter.

When one speaks of economy in government he should not expect to be cheered by the beneficiaries. It strikes the taxpayers differently. The cost of government for the United States, the states, counties and towns grew and grew in flush times. The time has come, is now, when there must be a cutting down of costs all down the line.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the North Dakota primary Wednesday maintained a strong lead, almost two to one, against Gov. Murray of Oklahoma as the Democratic preference for president. Gov. Roosevelt, as far as a test of strength has been made, is in the lead. But there are other candidates than those against whom Gov. Roosevelt's strength has been tested, all of whom will figure in the final decision.

Congressman Frank Hancock of this Congressional district was the lone North Carolina member to vote to bring the prohibition law up for consideration. Just what effect his action will have on his prospects for retaining his seat is a problem. He may or may not have been right in his attitude. Of course the "drys" will say he was wrong and the "wets" that he was right. It was a bold stroke, to say the least.

At least five prominent Democrats are mentioned for the office of Judge of the General County Court. Those mentioned are W. H. Carroll, D. J. Walker, former Judge, L. D. Meador, John S. Thomas, and W. Luther Cates, prominent Justice of the Peace. Judge W. I. Ward, Republican, is now the county court judge, elected by a Republican Board of County Commissioners. The Board is now Democratic and will fill the place accordingly. It is hoped the Board will make no mistake. But before there is an election the matter of salary should be seriously considered. In this an economy can be effected and still compensate the incumbent adequately for his services.

Forty-three boys and girls joined the first 4-H club ever to be organized in the Suit community of Cherokee County last week.

News Notes of Week on Alamance Farms.

Applications For Government Fertilizer Loans Now Available.

A supply of application blanks for farmers who wish to take advantage of Government seed and fertilizer loans are now on hand at the County Agent's office at Graham. It is necessary for each farmer who wishes to take advantage of these loans to fill out the following forms: 1. Application, 2. Crop Voucher Form, 3. Promissory Note, 4. Crop Mortgage. In the case of a renter or tenant the landlord signs a waiver on the reverse side of the Crop Mortgage blank. A stenographer and Notary Public will assist farmers in making out these applications in the courthouse.

It will be well for those who contemplate borrowing this money to remember the following regulations:

1. No loans will be made to anyone who did not farm in 1931.
 2. No loans will be made for Summer Fallowing.
 3. No loans will be made to anyone who has any means of livelihood other than farming.
 4. No loan will be made to a minor.
 5. Loans will be made only for crop production, and under no conditions for the payment of debts, interest, mortgages or taxes or for the buying of feed and supplies.
- A maximum of $10 per acre can be borrowed for tobacco, $20 per acre for truck crops, including potatoes, $6 per acre for cotton, corn and other crops. Inasmuch as the Government reserves the right to limit loan to each individual. It is not advisable to apply for the maximum loan per acre. In the case of cotton and tobacco, loans will not be made in excess of 65 per cent of last year's acreage.

It is expected that every farmer who takes advantage of this loan will plant sufficient feed and food crops to take care of his work stock and cattle, and in addition to this plant a garden of sufficient size to take care of his family. In the case of Alamance county, the loan committee insists upon each individual's planting feed crops to consist of the following: two acres of soy beans for each head of work stock and each head of dairy cattle; one acre of Jespedeza for pasture and feed for each head of work stock and each head of dairy cattle.

Each application must be signed by two of the three township committees and by the three County Commissioners. Applications should be forwarded to the Farmers Seed Loan Office, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., when completed.

Poultry Sales and Exchanges Attended by Laege Crowds.

One hundred and twenty Alamance county poultrymen attended a three day poultry school held in the county last week. Mr. C. P. Parrish, Poultry Extension Specialist of State College, and Dr. R. S. Dearstynne of State College led the discussion. United States Department of Agriculture poultry feeds were shown at the Graham Theatre Monday morning. This picture show took up all phases of poultry production, and in addition to this, the management showed other features. The remainder of the program for Monday included a lunch at the Graham Hotel and a poultry culling demonstration at the farm of Bob Keck of Haw River. On Tuesday and Wednesday, meetings and demonstrations were held at the farms of Sam Newlin, R. F. D., Harvey Newlin and Buck Shaw of Saxapahaw.

JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

By Carl Goerch

The story of the Lindbergh kidnaping case contains many interesting features and angles, but there is one phase of it in particular which has attracted my attention more than any other.

I believe that without a single, solitary exception, it has proved to be the poorest handled newspaper story I ever have seen in all my life. I've been in the newspaper business quite a while, but nothing ever has appeared in print during my day and time which could ever begin to compare with it.

Columns and columns have been written about the case and all of the actual facts could have been condensed and put in about ten inches of type. Day after day statements appear, only to be contradicted the next day. Worse than that I've read a story in one column about some feature of the case and then have seen it contradicted in the next column.

A ransom of $50,000 was demanded; later it was reported that the ransom was $500,000. A note was reported to have been left by the kidnapers; later it was announced that perhaps there had been a mistake about this and that no note had been left. Pictures of the baby were broadcast, showing an infant with a mop of curly hair; later it was admitted that the child's hair had been cut some time ago. Mrs. Lindbergh was reported to be downstairs, reading when the nurse discovered the baby was gone; later she was said to have been upstairs, getting ready to take a bath. The mayor of Boston announced last week that the baby had been returned and that information to this effect was withheld from the public for 72 hours; later it was ascertained that there was nothing to this report. Lindbergh has been reported to have been in daily contact with the kidnapers, but each succeeding day has brought about a denial of this statement.

These are only a few of the many, many details of the case that have been brought out. Now then, if you want the low-down on the case, the absolute facts that have been discovered thus far (this being written Monday morning before anything of a definite nature had been found), here it is:

The Lindbergh baby had been kidnaped. Nobody knows anything concerning the child's whereabouts.

There you have the accurate story of the whole case. You can dig up all the old copies of newspapers containing accounts of the affair and, after you sift everything down, you won't be able to find a single fact that has been able to withstand the test with the exception of those contained in the above two sentences. As I said before, by the time you read this, the baby may have been found, but that doesn't alter the circumstances any.

The real trouble with a case of this kind is that everybody is afraid that somebody else is going to get the inside dope first. Because of this, the wildest kind of rumors are immediately given credence. Nobody bothers to do much investigating and nobody takes the trouble to verify the authenticity of new information. The entire nation—the entire world, for that matter—is deeply interested in the Lindbergh case, but the entire world is getting mighty fed up on the newspaper accounts of the kidnaping. In this same connection, one can't help but wonder what the reactions of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are.

The Whitsett P-T association will meet on Wednesday at 7:30 P. M., March 16th. One of the special features for this meeting will be an address on the adequate training of the child by Miss Nettie E. Brogdon, county school supervisor. There will, also, be other interesting features. An interesting social gathering was held in the school auditorium on Saturday evening which was largely attended by the school and patrons. C. K. Fitzgerald of Asheville has been here for a visit with relatives this week. Rev. and Mrs. R. K. Davenport of Raleigh spent a day here the first of this week. W. T. Whitsett, Jr., of the University is here for a short visit with his parents this week-end.

Terracing to prevent or control soil erosion in Person county received considerable impetus last week when the farm agent held a two-day terracing school. Twelve men were instructed in how to run terraces correctly.

Tyrrell county farmers are curing hams this winter for the purpose of developing a trade in this product for the future.

One hundred and fifty Caldwell County farmers will plant 12,000 pounds of Korean and Kobo Jespedeza on about 600 acres of land this spring.
