The County Commissioners upon their organization Monday made a start toward the reduction of the cost of county government for Alamance county. The people are expecting a material reduction, something of the nature of that proposed and advocated for the general and state governments — an economy that will help relieve the tax burden.

Balancing the Federal budget was the outstanding note in President Hoover's message to Congress Monday. He proposes to slash the government payroll to the tune of a half billion and to pare appropriations with lavish hand. The tragedy of it is that this reduction of Federal pay did not come sooner. But there is an office-colding clique in Washington that feeds upon the government and defies the powers when it comes to slashing their pay check. The government belongs to the people and they pay the bills—and not the office-holding clique who are sucking the life-blood of the Nation. The barnacles should be knocked off.

A story is passing around that a "machine" is in the making, with Senator Robert R. Reynolds as the central figure, that will boost Judge Wilson Warlick for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1936 and John Bright Hill of Wilmington for lieutenant governor. The story is reported to have had its conception in Charlotte last Friday night. Both Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Hill disavow responsibility for the origin of the political baby. A cool note comes out from Raleigh anent such a scheme. The fact is Senator Reynolds will have all he can do to hold down his job in Washington, while Mr. Hill no doubt will be occupied with his campaign for appointment as U. S. District Attorney for the Eastern District which his friends are pushing for him.

Newly Elected Officers Inducted into Office.

Monday was the beginning day in office for the officers elected on the 8th of November. The members of the new Board of County Commissioners, F. L. Williamson, Loy E. Guthrie, Wade H. Huffman, W. E. Stainback and W. Lawrence McPherson, met and were sworn in by E. H. Murray, Clerk of the Superior Court. The Board organized by electing F. L. Williamson chairman, the office he has held for the past two years under the name of County Manager. The office of County Manager was abolished and Mr. Williamson was elected all-time Chairman at a salary of $3,000 per year, a reduction of $600 per year. J. S. Vincent was elected assistant county accountant at $1,700, a reduction of $300; and W. S. Harris treasurer at a reduction of five percent; and H. J. Rhodes was elected county attorney. In addition other routine business was transacted and the Board adjourned to meet next Monday. Monday night there was a meeting in the court house for a public installation of officers and to formulate an "Institute of Government."

At this meeting Sheriff Stockard and a number of other officials were sworn in. The "Institute" was put in motion by the appointment of committees from different groups of citizens. Among the speakers at this meeting were Judges W. I. Ward and D. J. Walker and other prominent citizens. But to our program we hope to refer again.

News Notes of Week on Alamance Farms.

Farmers Institute and Meeting to be Held in Graham

Arrangements are being made for the holding of a one-day Institute and meeting in the Court House in Graham Friday, December 16th. This meeting is open to all farmers of Alamance County and it is expected that all of the Farm Agents of Piedmont North Carolina will attend with leading farmers from their counties. At this meeting the specialists from State College will present their programs for the coming year directly to the farmers. Ample time will be provided for discussions of various farm problems. It is hoped that a number of demonstrations can be started through the meeting of these specialists with the farmers. The following men will be on the program for a fifteen to thirty minute talk: John A. Arey, Extension Dairy Specialist; R. W. Graeber, Extension Forester; L. R. Harrill, State 4-H Club Leader; Jack F. Criswell, Extension Specialist in Farm Management; G. K. Middleton, Dept. of Seed Certification, and O. F. McCrary, District.

It is expected that several hundred farmers will attend this meeting. Letters announcing this meeting and program will be mailed from the County Agent's office in the near future.

North Carolina Cow Testing Members Increase Efficiency of Herds.

Recent tabulations made by the Federal Bureau of the dairy industry of 1651 North Carolina cow testing records which were completed this year contain information of interest to North Carolina dairymen. One tabulation shows that these cows produced an average of 6927 pounds of milk containing 303 pounds of fat. The average feed cost per cow was $91. A summary of the cows on test in North Carolina for the past three years is shown in the table below in comparison with summary with all cow testing records in the United States for 1930-31:

	No.	av. lbs.	av. lbs.	av. lbs.	av. lbs.	av. lbs.	av. lbs.
		av. milk	av. fat	av. cost	av. cost	av. cost	av. cost
U.S. 1930-31	219,924	7,812	306	$ 73.00
N.C. 1929-30	1,761,298	267	129.00
N.C. 1930-31	1,644,674	289	117.00
N.C. 1931-32	1,651,927	303	91.00

This table, which indicates a steady gain in milk and fat production, shows that North Carolina cow testing members are gradually placing their herds on a more efficient production basis. An increase in fat production during three years from 267 pounds to 303 pounds, which is within three pounds of the National average, is a record to be proud of.

Persistent culling is partly responsible for this rapid increase in production. During this period from ten to twelve percent of the cows on test were culled out each year because they were unprofitable. When herd records clearly show that a cow is not paying, the owner does not hesitate to send her to the butcher; however, many unprofitable cows are retained in herds where no production records are kept. The total production of these unprofitable cows will probably equal the surplus that now exists on our fluid milk markets and which is responsible for reducing the price of milk, in some instances, to below the cost of production. If all of our fluid milk producers would keep herd records and send all mature cows to the butcher which produced less than 6000 pounds of milk per year the present milk surplus would not only disappear, but the net returns from the remaining cows would be materially increased.

There is a direct relation between the production of milk, feed cost and income over feed cost. As production increases feed cost also increases, but not in the same ratio. This is clearly brought out by the following table:

No.	av. lbs. Cows milk	av. feed cost	av. income over feed cost
831	6,028	$ 82	$ 196
207	7,988	98	236
109	9,948	111	290
36	11,880*	126	386

As milk production increased from 6023 to practically 12,000 the feed cost increased from $82 to $126, however, the income over feed cost increased from $196 to $386.

Men Should Be Culled Rigidly Now.

Poultrymen are no doubt finding that their flock production has increased in November and should continue to increase in December. This flock production increase affords the Poultryman an excellent opportunity to go in his flock and cull out non-producing, undeveloped, inferior pullets. Other things being equal, those pullets that have not yet come into production should be culled from the farm flock. Rigid culling is one of the most important factors in successful poultry production, and unless culling is practiced every month during the year feed costs are bound to run up to a large extent.

Bolognaize Them, Get Better Ones

If all dairy cow owners in the United States would suddenly determine to dispose of two of their lowest cows via the Bologna way and get one better cow or heifer in replacement, they would do more to better their own condition and dump the surplus milk from the market than almost anything of which they could conceive. And if they didn't need the replacement cow or heifer they might use the funds thus derived in buying a good young bull, or a calf, as an eventual herd leader.

Great as has been the urging and however great the observance of the advice by cattle owners the reaction has not been enough. There is too much deadwood carried in American herds. Too many people have clung to their worthless cows like a tramp to his shoes and one is worth about as much as the other when it comes to production value. The difference, if any can be measured, is in favor of the shoes, for they at least do not cost their owner a lot of useless labor and feed bills.

Production of milk is too high at present, in comparison with consumption, and those surplus cows produce just enough milk to keep the market in a stew at all times as to what to do with the surplus milk. One cow of a hundred and fifty pounds butterfat capacity does not dump much milk in the market—but ganged with her several million sisters of like measure, she is a decided liability in the business. This country is not cursed with under-production of agriculture. It produces until the horn of plenty bulges and the result is diminishing returns on efforts expended. As a national proposition we doubt if anyone will disagree that it would be better to produce less wheat, corn, hogs, etc., but the great problem is for the individual producers to become so thoroughly convinced that they will reduce and wait for the break that is sure to come in their favor. The unprofitable milk

Balance the Feed Budget to Meet the Situation.

We hear much about the need and value of balancing budgets as it pertains to business and politics. Whatever is good for business is also good for the dairyman, especially that which can be readily and easily applied, asserted Prof. E. A. Cannon of the Purdue University dairy extension staff.

Under present conditions, there is a big need for balancing the feed budget on the dairy farm. This will go a long way towards solving some of the marketing and price problems prevailing today. Nearly every dairyman has a definite income to make to operate his farm and to live as society demands of him in his respective community. As a result, the average dairyman milks a certain number of cows. The number of cows milked to produce this income is determined by several factors, the most important of which are the kinds and amounts of home-grown feeds available, management of the herd, including feeding practices, the kind of a cow to which this feed is fed, the quality of product and the market price of it.

Here is where the feed budget enters the picture. At the present time, there are indications of increasing production and a decrease in consumption. In order to make operating expenses, a man usually depends on cows, and overlooks the first and most important essential, that of the proper kinds and amounts of feeds. When the milk check does not meet his needs he adds more cows. More cows add to the already over-burdened markets with more surplus. The increase of surplus does not help by any means to bring a favorable price; usually and naturally the contrary is true. Because a man milks a large number of dairy cattle is no indication that it is a profitable herd.

Poor feeds, unbalanced rations, careless management, and general indifference to the real problems force far too many dairymen to milk more cows than should be required in order to obtain the desired income. Balancing the feed budget will overcome this tendency to increase cows and surplus and return more dollars and cents with fewer cows, and less overhead and labor.

A feed budget of 20 bushels of ground shelled corn, 20 bushels of ground oats and five bushels of ground soybeans, one-half acre of good quality legume hay and three tons of silage per cow, will help solve many income and market surplus problems. This, with common salt, is the ideal ration that will produce desirable results from fewer cows, with less labor and overhead. Fitting the cow to the ration involves too many cows, too much labor and too little returns or compensation under any circumstances. Fit the ration to the cow.

N. C. SHIVER, County Agent.
