AN ANALYSIS

Element: Women. Chemical Symbol: W O. Accepted Atomic Weight: 120 lbs. Occurrence: Found wherever man exists. Seldom in free state. With few exceptions, combined state is to be preferred. Physical Properties: All colors, sizes, shapes. Usually in disguised condition. Face is covered by composite material. Boils at nothing and freezes at any moment. However, melts when properly treated. Very bitter when not well used. Chemical Properties: Very active. Professes great affinity for gold, silver, platinum and precious stones. Violent reaction when left alone. Has the ability to absorb great amounts of expensive food at any time. Undissolved by liquids but activity greatly increases when saturated with a spirit solution. Sometimes yields to pressure. Turns green when placed beside a better looking specimen. Ages very rapidly. Uses: Highly ornamental. Wide application in the art and domestic sciences. Acts as a positive or negative catalyst in production of fever, as case may be. Useful as a tonic in alleviation of sickness, low spirits, etc. Efficient as cleaning agent. Equalizes the distribution of wealth. Is the most powerful (income) reducing agent known. Caution: Highly explosive when in inexperienced hands. - Burlington High School Girl in "The Barker". Visitor: "What's your name, my good man?" Harry (Prisoner): "19564." Visitor: "Is that your real name?" Harry: "No, that's just my pen name."

Mr. Junius Parker of New York Here, Returning from Raleigh.

On Tuesday a portrait of William W. Fuller, North Carolinian, who became a distinguished lawyer, was presented to the Supreme Court in Raleigh. Mr. Parker was chosen to make the presentation. No better selection to perform that service could have been made.

Mr. Fuller and Mr. Parker, when young men, practiced law in Durham. Both brilliant young lawyers, were often opposing counsel in important cases. They knew each other and their respect and esteem were mutual. Mr. Fuller was called to New York as chief counsel of the American Tobacco Company, and about the same time Mr. Parker moved to Knoxville, Tenn.

The legal department of the American Tobacco Company grew to be more than a one-man affair, which Mr. Fuller made known to the company, and he was authorized to choose his assistant. He knew the metal and temper of his former antagonist in the legal forum and to him he turned. For many years the two were yoke fellows in the law department of the company. Mr. Fuller, some ten years Mr. Parker's senior, at length retired as chief counsel and was succeeded by Mr. Parker, who has since retired.

Mr. Fuller, a son of Col. Thos. C. Fuller, native of Fayetteville, was a great lawyer in his day in Raleigh. Mr. Parker, son of the late Capt. E. S. Parker of Graham, one of the State's finest lawyers in his day. Two young lawyers, lawyers by inheritance and training, worked and strove together and they knew each other. Mr. Parker's part in the presentation was one in which he could give unbridled expression of his esteem for the character and ability of his friend. A Graham attorney, who heard the presentation, told the writer it was the most eloquent tribute he ever heard. A newspaper writer in Raleigh was equally as complimentary in his estimate of the presentation speech.

Mr. Fuller was born August 28, 1858, and died at his home on the Hudson Aug. 23, 1934. He read law in the Dick and Dillard law school, Greensboro, was licensed to practice by the Supreme Court in January, 1880. In the same year he married Miss Annie M. Staples, in Greensboro, by whom with five children he is survived. The Supreme Court room was filled by friends and relatives from different parts of the State to witness the impressive ceremony.

Up to the present time, cotton farmers of Hoke County have purchased gin certificates amounting to 118,000 pounds from growers of Montgomery County.

$3,000,000 Paid To N. C. Farmers.

The Cost of Administration Was Over 14 Percent.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration poured almost $3,000,000 into the pockets of North Carolina farmers during the months of July, August and September. Rental and benefit payments to farmers co-operating in the crop adjustment programs accounted for $2,578,686.79 of the total, said Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College. The largest sum went to tobacco growers, who received $1,443,792.83. Cotton growers got $997,218.76, corn-hog producers $128,642.57, and wheat growers $8,432.63. In addition, cotton growers who placed surplus tax-exemption certificates in the national pool received $1,361.73 from the sale of these certificates to other growers. The $437,904.53 in administrative expenses went largely to pay committee members, farmers who help administer the programs locally. The rental and benefit payments are still flowing to the farmers, but the amount for October and November have not been tabulated to date. The payments are made from funds raised by processing taxes on the commodities covered by the various adjustment programs. Benefit payments on all crops in Alamance county for July, August and September were $22,940.29. Payments to neighbor counties were: Caswell, $35,594.29; Chatham, $21,304.48; Guilford, $30,087.48; Orange, $12,614.71; Randolph, $16,084.41; Person, $39,562.60. The largest amount, $153,019.99, went to Pitt; the smallest, $28.75, to Dare. Landowners say the two chief handicaps to dairy farming in Cumberland County are lack of pasture and a supply of home grown feed.

Dr. Few's 25th Anniversary as President of Duke University.

Twenty-five years ago on November 9th Dr. William Preston Few was inaugurated president of Duke University (then Trinity College). On Monday night a celebration was held in commemoration of the 25th anniversary, which the writer was privileged to attend.

The trustees of the University observed the event at a dinner meeting, to which were invited Trustees and Faculty members, Alumni and Alumnae Association and Council officials and many others.

Col. John F. Bruton, chairman of the Board of Trustees, was in charge of the program. The speakers were Rev. A. J. Hobbs, representing the alumni; Dean Alice M. Baldwin, representing the women; Dean W. H. Wannamaker, representing the faculties. The anniversary address was made by Dr. Bruce R. Payne, president of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

The growth of the institution in the 25-year period has been nothing less than marvelous, unmatched, perhaps, by any other school in this country. The growth for the period from 1910 to 1935, inclusive, has been gradual but on the upgrade all the while. Here are a few figures: Library volumes in 1910, 37,662, in 1935, 421,517; for same period - regular students from 363 to 3,400, faculty from 35 to 397.

Trinity College was changed to Duke University in December, 1924. In the same month James B. Duke, who died October 10, 1925, created an endowment of $40,000,000 for educational and charitable purposes.

Beginning in 1925, and since, a building program was started, which embraces the old college site and a new area of 5,000 acres on which the University buildings proper are located. To appreciate the bigness of what has been accomplished one must study a history of it and see it. Words will not convey a real conception.
