Exercises for Asthma

FROM time to time we read about new drugs to shorten an attack of asthma. Formerly, breathing in from a handkerchief on which three drops of amyl nitrate had been poured, or the use of a solution of nitroglycerin, 1 drop, was the usual treatment. More recently, the hypodermic injection of 15 drops of adrenalin or epenephrine is more generally used.

The tendency to asthma is inherited in a great many cases. It is now believed that allergy—being sensitive to various substances—is the cause of nearly one-half of all the cases of asthma. These substances are (a) wheat, oats, corn, rye, rice, peas, potatoes, beans, nuts, eggs, meat, milk, fish, oysters, lobsters, crabs, beef, chicken; (b) substances in the air from horses, cats, cows, dogs, rabbits, guinea pigs, chickens and geese (feather pillows); (c) pollens such as ragweed and timothy; (d) certain drugs, sachets and perfumes.

Other causes, not allergic, are chronic bronchitis; disturbances of stomach, liver and intestine, heart and kidney ailments.

Breathing Exercises.

Although the treatment depends upon the cause and the above methods of relieving an attack are effective, the Asthma Research council of Great Britain, which supervises research work in asthma at four large London hospitals, strongly advises all asthmatics to practice breathing exercises which not only help to bring the barrel-shaped asthmatic chest back to normal, but also help to prevent asthmatic attacks.

The exercises consist in breathing air in gently and in small amounts, and breathing the air out with all the force possible.

"In an asthmatic attack the small air tubes become smaller in size as a result of spasm of their muscular coat, and their lining manufactures a tough mucus. In breathing in these little air tubes are pulled open and there is of course less obstruction."

The object of these exercises, which consist in breathing in gently and breathing out "hard and long," is to empty the lungs. The asthmatic lungs already contain too much air.

When Child Is Feverish.

One of the natural mistakes mothers make when a youngster has a little rise in temperature is to give some fever reducing remedy, when, as a matter of fact, the body's temperature has been raised in order to fight off the ailment or infection. Of course, if the temperature is unduly high, it should be reduced.

Dr. Joseph K. Calvin, Chicago, in the Chicago Medical Society Bulletin, states:

"If the fever produces restlessness, loss of appetite and other symptoms, or reaches 104 degrees Fahrenheit, measures to reduce it should be made. A rapid tub bath in lukewarm water is much better than sponging, with far less expense to the child. Wet, tepid, flannel packs or jackets about the body, or wet sheet packs including arms and legs are good fever reducers, if kept wet with tepid or cool water. Such packs can be left on until the desired reduction of temperature is obtained. If a convulsion occurs, relaxation can usually be secured in a tepid, not hot, tub bath, followed by a wet pack and an ice bag to the head."

There are two or three other suggestions by Dr. Calvin that should prove of great help to mothers, worried about the youngster's fever.

First, the youngster should be kept in bed during the fever. There is always the chance that some childhood infection is present and the youngster's heart reserve must be maintained.

As the youngster has lost his appetite, starch foods that he likes and plenty of liquids should be given. The foods will keep up his strength and the liquids will help rid the system of poisons and wastes by way of the kidneys.

"A daily movement of the bowels is desirable and this can be accomplished by a mild laxative such as milk of magnesia, an enema, or a suppository, often depending on the mother's and the child's preference. Seldom, if ever, does a children's specialist use castor oil, calomel, or salts. An enema every other day during an acute illness is enough as there is not much waste to be removed."

White Reflects Light

A good white paint will reflect from 82 per cent to 89 per cent of the light striking it, while a dense black will reflect only about 2 per cent, and intermediate shades range between these figures.

Swedes Celebrate Tercentenary

Prince Bertil and his stepmother, Crown Princess Louise of Sweden, who took part in the ceremonies at Wilmington, Del., to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Swedes and Finns on the shores of Delaware. Prince Bertil substituted for his father, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, who remained aboard the Swedish liner Kungsholm which brought the royal party across the Atlantic for the festivities.

Motherhood at Ripe Age of 16

Here is Lizzie, a sixteen-year-old Spitz dog, with her newborn male pup, both of whom are doing well. Dog breeders in Detroit, where Lizzie lives, had never heard of a dog so old having a pup. A humane society officer said that a sixteen-year-old dog is about the equivalent of an eighty-year-old human. Mike Vella, Lizzie's owner, named the pup F. D., because it was born when President Roosevelt was making a radio speech.

Bees Take Over Fire Hydrant

It was a good thing that a fire didn't break out in Detroit in the area of this fire hydrant which was taken over by a swarm of bees. Bee experts say the bees crossed the Detroit river from the Canadian side and decided that the fire plug would be a good spot to rest. Two Detroit policemen are shown trying to get the bees to move away from the hydrant.

Evangelist, 78, Weds Pupil, 26

A "December and May" romance resulted in the Hollywood marriage of Gipsy Smith, seventy-eight-year-old internationally known British-Romany evangelist, and Miss Alice Shaw, twenty-six, of London and Los Angeles. The evangelist met his bride when she attended music and evangelist studies in England while a child of twelve.

HE'S 'MIBS' KING

Frank Santo, thirteen years old, of Throop, Pa., who was crowned the marbles king of the United States at the conclusion of the national marbles tournament at Wildwood, N. J. As a result of his victory Frank received a $150 radio set and a wrist watch. His father is an unemployed miner.

Mysterious Case of the Stolen Run

This third inning mystery was solved by the baseball Sherlocks during a Boston Red Sox—Athletics game in Philadelphia. Villain of the piece is Billy Werber, third baseman for the Mackens, who is covering up his run-sleehing machinations behind a dust screen. Victim is Gene Desautels, backstop for the Vermilion Hose. At left, as though groping for a clue, is Inspector—beg pardon, Umpire Moriarity. If you look close enough you can spy the outline of Gene's shoes in front of the approaching batter. Moriarity is calling Billy "safe!" F. S.—The Red Sox won 6 to 5.
