

THE GLEANER

GRAHAM, N. C., MAR. 13, 1941

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY

J. D. KERNODLE, Editor

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

The Legislature

The lawmakers in Raleigh are trying to finish their work to adjourn Saturday night or early next week.

The appropriation bill, carrying more than 166 million dollars, the high-water mark in spending, has been passed. Let us hope it has been wisely done.

What to do with the vexatious liquor problem has not been concluded. A State referendum was proposed and lost out. Whether the ABC liquor stores in the 26 eastern counties will be interfered with is uncertain. The counties decide for themselves whether they will have ABC stores.

The sale of fortified, strongly alcoholic, wine came in for considerable discussion, but it was left in statu quo.

The Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis, the World War Machine, may be or prove to be strong enough to keep the Nazi juggernaut moving against all opposition, but it is out of repair and hopelessly sagged in the middle (Rome). It will be the burden of the ends, Germany and Japan, to support the middle and save it from complete bogging.

War and Defense

America is moving tremendously for defense. The lend-lease bill to aid Britain is a defense measure - to help the democracies in Europe fight it out over there so that it will not have to be fought out over here.

Britain, speaking, is confident they can win with the help they will receive from America.

Hitler is moving toward Greece and Turkey. The Russian bear is growling and Yugoslavia is wavering as to what course to take.

The lend-lease bill is now law signed by the President, and the President has asked for 7 billion more for defense purposes, for the stronger and better prepared America is, so much the less will be the likelihood of her having to do any of the active fighting.

The thing that looks worse in America now is the frequency of strikes in big plants where the Government has placed big contracts for implements and munitions of war.

FROM WASHINGTON

130 Million Reasons

By J. E. Jones

Washington, D. C., March 11th - This isn't the first time that the United States has been on the verge of war. This isn't the first time there has been wholesale sniping at business men. This isn't the first era of disturbing strikes. But, even the old-sters are not able to remember a time when there was a greater rush to build up national defense and preparedness than in this year of 1941. To mention a hope that there will be "business as usual," appears to invite a scolding. Nevertheless, in the office building where this item is being written there are several hundred persons employed and nearly all of them are doing about the same things that they have been doing in past years. In a dozen large buildings of the surrounding half-dozen blocks about 90 per cent of all the workers are carrying on "business as usual." Across the way there is an antique store, a real estate office, a beauty parlor, a parking lot and a restaurant, and just beyond, is the United States Chamber of Commerce, where typewriters and mimeographs clatter as usual, and within less than a square mile are the national headquarters of the American Federation of Labor and the Committee of Industrial Organizations.

Out of the city streets and for endless miles through the rural areas of connecting Virginia and Maryland and beyond, everything seems to be "as usual," which is accounted for by the fact that 90 per cent of all the people of the United States are working away at the same old jobs, in the same old ways.

My local habitat is just three city blocks from the White House.

Nearly every editor in the whole country might make an interesting survey of this kind in his own community.

There are 130 million reasons to earn a living in these United States, and to follow the old process of through "business as usual." The necessities of defense and military precautions employ a comparatively few million people. They are expected to do a good and perfect job, backed and supported by the country's business and professional men, the civilian population of cities and farms and by citizens in all walks of life.

The historic old formula is operating to provide necessary work, as usual, business as usual, and all the old-fashioned ways of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as usual, with occasional time off for such recreation as church choir practice, golf, moving pictures, bridge parties, and a wide assortment of strictly "usual diversions."

Highway Post Office

The first rural free delivery service of mail was in 1895, and those were horse and wagon days. The total daily mileage of the United States service of 45 years ago was about 30 miles. Rural delivery grew very slowly because good roads were few and far between in those days. Today more than 6 million rural mail boxes are scattered across the country.

A new efficient mail service is in operation between Washington, D.C., and Harrisonburg, Virginia, a distance of 140 miles. In the pomp and ceremony of launching the system the U. S. Post Office Department hailed the "Highway Postoffice" as a companion-piece of the railway mail service.

The first "Highway Post Office" consists of a specially equipped motor bus in which mail messengers perform the same services in sorting and delivering mail as the railway service. The experiment will be supplemented by other routes designed to test out different types of vehicles and special accessories adaptable to the work.

There are 48 thousand communities in the United States that completely lack railroad service. Most of these communities have been served by motor trucks carrying mail sorted in city post offices, and dropped off at local post offices on the routes.

Those mail carriers have covered more than 1,392,470 miles each scheduled day with their automobiles and trucks and rendered regular service for 29 million individuals. The "Highway Post Office" is an important factor in the development of the finest postal system in the world.

Subject To Taxation

The U. S. Treasury is about to issue new securities to be sold to the public, because Uncle Sam must have more money. These new bonds will be subject to taxation, thus ending tax-free securities.

Burlington, Reidsville

United States Marine Corps Recruiting Stations, 17-21 Inst.

Representatives of the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Service from District Headquarters in Raleigh will establish temporary offices at the post office buildings in both Burlington and Reidsville, from the 17th through the 21st of March, for the purpose of interviewing and examining young men for service with the United States Marine Corps.

Only young men who volunteer for service in the marine corps serve with this branch of the service. Why be drafted when you can volunteer for this colorful and interesting branch of the service? Opportunity for advancement and promotion is unlimited in the marine corps.

The marine corps trains hundreds of young men in many technical fields to supply its needs. Numerous vocational schools are maintained to train meritorious young men, and hundreds of correspondence courses on any subject desired are offered free of charge to the personnel of the marine corps. This is an opportunity to travel extensively and further your education with pay sufficient to make substantial savings.

Applicants for enlistment must be American citizens of good moral character, must be white, single, 18 to 29 years of age, 64 to 74 inches in height, have the equivalent of an eighth grade education or better, and be in good physical condition.

PRESS THE BUTTON

By G. H. Enfield

It's a wise girl who doesn't mix her dates and lemons.

Experience proves it's easier to throw a letter than a ball into a basket.

The proudest folks are not those who have made something or done something, but who have inherited something.

The fellow who gets no fun out of life puts no fun into life.

Some are so eager to show a happy spirit that they giggle even when the preacher prays.

There is enough commercial headache reliefs broadcast for every one to have a dose

The way in Christian service is the way up to spiritual acquisitions.

Lapps Are Content With Own Religious Services

The Lapps derive solace and happiness from attending their own church services. They get to church as often as they can - four or five times a year. They go to the Swedish State church, too; they never miss Christmas and Easter services. They are baptized, confirmed, married, and buried in the state church.

However, they are given spiritual exaltation in their own church services, by their own preachers, the stern and severe followers of Lars Levi Laestadius. They attain a sublimation of the soul they seem unable to get elsewhere, writes Mason Warner, following an interview with an authority at Abisko, Lapland, Sweden, and published in the Chicago Tribune.

The services are always the same. The sermons are in the Finnish language. The preacher begins by telling the congregation how weak they are, how sinful, how utterly lost - their souls are past redemption. Rebuke and condemnation are piled on criticism of their actions and lives. To these are added promises or threats of terrible punishment.

This continues until the people are subdued, cowed, low in spirit - are so beaten down by the pastor's oratory that they are in a semi-swoon of doubt, terror, and fear. The almost trance-like state of consciousness of their unworthiness is known as Likikutus. Then comes the great moment. Absolution for sins is given by the preacher.

Great rejoicing ensues. They remain seated, but away from side to side or throw their bodies forward and backward in an ecstasy of happiness. They do not dance - nor do they sing. They jolka.

Either Laestadius or his immediate successors abolished singing. "Jolka" is the Lapp's substitute for singing. It is not sustained melody, but it is musical, with intervals and disconnected notes.

Cotton Seed Ice Cream

A cotton seed derivative was used experimentally in making a unique type of ice cream at Memphis, Tenn.

Wrestling in Iceland differs somewhat from that of American wrestling. The participants wear full-length blue tights and, around their waists, leather harnesses. Shaking hands stiffly they grasp each other by the harnesses and go to work, the idea being to pull one's opponent off balance and throw him to the mat. The action is fast and furious and very exciting.

REDUCED PRICE ANNOUNCED FOR AMERICAN BOY

With the announcement of an enlarged and enlivened magazine, The American Boy, foremost publication for boys ten to twenty, also announces a reduction in its subscription and single copy prices. Hereafter The American Boy will sell for 10c a single copy at newsstands or for $1.00 a year and $2.00 for three years on a subscription basis.

In announcing a change in editorial policy, publishers of The American Boy assure subscribers that the established fiction heroes who have made the magazine so popular with young and old alike, will continue to tell of their adventures exclusively in The American Boy. Included in this group are Renfrew of the Canadian Mounted, Connie Morgan and Old Man Matile, prospectors; Square Jaw Davis, railroad engineer; Johnny Caruthers, flyer; Jim Tierney, detective; Tod Moran, seaman; Alan Kane and Ted Dooliver, adventurers in science, and others identified exclusively with The American Boy.

However, with a larger magazine will come new fiction characters and an enlarged sports, defense and adventure program in the nonfiction field. Greater recognition will be given to outstanding boys the country over and an exceptional achievement will be rewarded with the boy's picture on the front cover. This feature was inaugurated with the November issue which carried on the front cover the picture of America's outstanding driver of high school age.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys groups recommend The American Boy enthusiastically.

They have found that, as a general rule, boys who read The American Boy regularly advance more rapidly than boys who do not read it. Through the leadership and sportsmanship of its fiction characters, boys are imbued with a desire to become leaders, to develop the high ideals and courage the heroes themselves display.

To subscribe to The American Boy simply send the name and address of the one who is to receive the magazine together with proper remittance (1 for one year or $2 for three years) direct to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.
