GRAHAM, N. C., APRIL 15, 1943

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

The United States Treasury has borrowed money from the Federal Reserve Bank on special certificates of indebtedness and it seems things haven't been going so hot as expected in Mr. Morgenthau's establishment. The certificates outstanding on March 15 reached about $1,300,000,000. The Treasury deals in billions that run so high that the average man cannot see the top.

The thirteen billion dollar bond sale launched Tuesday to provide funds for the fight for the preservation of liberty is being rapidly subscribed for. If America would preserve liberty, she must fight for it and pay for it—Many will die for it—many died to achieve it. This is not the end of borrowing for the war; it will take many more billions to complete the task. It is now costing about six billions a month to carry on the war—that much for America alone. To win means much giving and much sacrifice for all.

Some 2,500 Japanese-American soldiers from Hawaii and about the same number from the United States mainland have enlisted for the war and are gathering at Camp Shelby, Mass., for training for military service against the enemies of the United States. Perhaps there are some who will doubt their whole-hearted loyalty. Like native Europeans who came from countries now at war with the United States and have taken up arms in defense of the United States, having learned that they fare better in America than they did in their native land, these Japanese-Americans of Japan extraction have learned they are far better off than they would be if they were in the land and under the government of their forbears.

Farmers and labor groups are linked in warning from the Administration that they are pushing the Nation toward the brink of the cliff of inflation. The farmers are defended against critics by Senators and Representatives from agricultural States who charge the Administration with sitting with folded hands while farm workers are being lured from the soil to industrial centers where the rewards include high wages, plus bonuses for work above 40 hours a week.

The statesmen from agricultural States are very critical because so many farm workers have been inducted into military services. All the "facts and figures" show that farmers haven't had a fair break with other classes of workers and citizens in the spread of higher incomes. In fact these comparisons between farm workers and war workers don't sound like horse-sense.

AMERICA THREATENED

A despatch from London says a broadcast, recorded there yesterday by the Associated Press, that Tokyo radio broadcast a speech by a Maj. Gen. Kenryo Sato, chief of the Bureau of military Affairs, declaring that preparations for a Japanese air offensive against the American continent have been completed.

In his speech, the general said "a vast air attack on the American mainland" was envisioned, with Japanese, German and Italian air forces striking in collaboration.

This may only be propaganda for the present, but it is not doubted that an attack would be forth coming were not the axis kept busy in trying to ward off the blows being delivered daily by the allied forces by land, sea and air.

Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, and her efforts to establish bases in the Aleutian islands, makes the threat sound real, if and when she could spare the forces to do it.

THE WAR

Nazi Marshal Rommel is in a trap in Northern Africa and the British, Yanks and Fighting French are closing in on him. He may or may not be able to get out. If he gets away, he will leave the bulk of his army to be taken prisoners.

On the Russian front the nazis continue to die at the hands of the Reds or taken prisoners.

In the Southwest Pacific Gen. MacArthur's men do a daily job sinking Jap ships and shooting down Jap planes.

On all fronts the Allies are carrying on offensive warfare.

THOMAS JEFFERSON

In the capital at Washington on Tuesday, the 200th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, a great and beautiful marble shrine was dedicated to the great champion of human liberty and one who took a leading part—more than anyone else—in framing the foundations upon which this great nation of the United States is builded.

The shrine to the great champion of liberty was long overdue, but at last it came.

President Roosevelt delivered the dedicatory address surrounded by a great multitude present for the occasion.

THIRTEEN BILLIONS

When you speak of billions, it is beyond mental conception; dripping down millions the mind is still puzzled. Divide the incomprehensible sum by the 130 millions of population in the United States and you have $100 for each and everyone of them, the old and young, the big and little, the rich and poor.

That's the bond sale now on to help finance the war, and save America from the bloody beasts of destruction.

Speaking for the bond sale, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, a soldier, who knows what war is and why so much money says:

"On many fronts, the American soldier is now doing his job, enduring privation, suffering hardships, fighting and dying. He can do no more.

"He is in constant need of planes and tanks, guns, ships, and a thousand other items of war material, all of which wear out, are lost at sea or destroyed on the battlefield.

"War is always wasteful and this war more so than ever before due to the bomber and the submarine.

"All this costs money—vast sums of money. We must not quibble over the amount. It is a price of the victory that America demands.

"We must do our part at home as the soldier does his overseas, and we must do it to the full as the soldier does who lays down his life.

"Buy your share of war bonds."

Rosebud

Rosebud is eight, and the most beautiful shade of caramel fudge. To her loving Mammy and Pappy she is known, on approximately alternate days, as "Angel" and "You devil child". It was on her devil-child days that Rosebud tied the knots in the shirts that Mammy had taken in for washing, and poured the whole of the vanilla bottle into the lamb stew, just, she said later through bitter tears, to "flavor it up some".

On her angel days Rosebud is equally imaginative even if a more restful occupant of the little shack down on Vinegar Hill. Once when Mammy was out doing day work, Rosebud got a wave of cleaning fever and scoured every pot and pan in the kitchen so that they literally glistened. Another day, left alone, she tidied up Mammy's and Pappy's room to such a point of apple-pie order that it was a week before Pappy could find an undershirt.

Rosebud is a great reader of the newspapers. Mammy and Pappy don't take one, but there are plenty of perfectly good newspapers blowing round Vinegar Hill. It was out of one of them that Rosebud got her idea for spending the ten cents the Bunny had put under her pillow the night her tooth came out. After breakfast Rosebud disappeared down the Hill and reappeared soon after with a beautiful ten-cent War Stamp pasted firmly into a brand-new book with neat little squares for more stamps. She displayed her investment to Mammy. "I declare you're an angel child," Mammy said. Rosebud went on sitting on the kitchen floor staring with large brown eyes at the empty squares in her book. From time to time she took hold of one or another of her teeth and wiggled it, gently.

Mammy was engrossed in a particularly big washing. Rosebud was as quiet as a mouse and Mammy forgot about her until, coming in from the yard with her arms full of dry sheets, she encountered her child with a large hammer in her hand. Scenting the devil in her angel child, Mammy shouted at her, "Rosebud! Come yere with that hammer! What you planning on doing?"

But what was done was done. In Rosebud's other hand was another tooth. Her mouth was stretched in a broad if slightly bloody smile. "I ain't doing nothing, Mammy," she said. "I'm just filling up my stamp book."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Many of the women of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps are already overseas serving in various capacities to help win the war. The WAACs go through a strenuous training to fit them for the arduous duties they must perform.

A uniform for a WAAC, complete, costs approximately $170.00. The quartermaster's department must provide thousands of them. Your purchase of War Bonds helps pay for these uniforms. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday through a Payroll Savings plan at your office or factory. U. S. Treasury Department

If you haven't gotten around to buying a Second War Loan Bond, stop and think what it would mean to you if your soldiers hadn't gotten round to the fight.

Will Americans Be More Tender With Their Money Than Lives of Their Sons

Washington, D. C.—A blunt challenge—whether Americans will be more tender with their money than with the lives of their sons—confronts U. S. citizens as they prepare to meet the appeal of the government to put an additional 13 billion dollars into the fight in the next three weeks.

American dollars which run off to some cozy shelter to hide while American boys are dying to defend our cities and towns from destruction and invasion will face a rising demand from all classes of patriotic citizens to come out and fight.

Millions of workers who now are buying War Bonds regularly out of current income must lend extra money to their government during the Second War Loan campaign (which started April 12).

In recognition of the spirit of sacrifice which is sweeping over the land as our troops swing into offensive action in Africa and await the signal for a landing in Europe, the Treasury Department is offering a series of government bonds to fit every pocketbook.

No matter whether Americans buy the familiar Series E Bonds or 2 1/2 per cent bonds or 2 per cent bonds or tax certificates, they will be doing their part to make the Second War Loan drive a success.

Consumer Spending Too High. Consumer spending in 1942 was much too high to meet the war situation of 1943. Last year more than 82 billion dollars of our soaring national income went to feed the desires of Americans for clothes, recreation, foods and luxuries. As these items grow scarcer, more of our income must be diverted from such expenses into government bonds.

During 1942 millions of our fathers, sons, relatives and friends were in training here and abroad. Some were already in action. Casualties were beginning to bite into every community. War Bonds became a vital link between the home and fighting fronts.

Today sacrifice has become a way of life for America's fighting men. Civilian spending on the 1942 scale must go out the window if the home folks are to attempt to match the heroism of our boys at the front.

Not every American can take his place in a bomber or in a foxhole or on a fighting ship but he can fight away at the enemy by lending money to the government.

Schools Open Drive To Buy 10,000 Jeeps

THE little jeep which is serving so nobly from Guadalcanal to Africa has become the symbol of the gigantic efforts of millions of American school children in their War Savings program.

Thousands of public, private and parochial schools soon will be displaying a certificate of honor from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., signifying that they have paid for at least one jeep by buying $300 in War Stamps and Bonds.

Countless others will be flying the Schools At War banner awarded to schools with 90 percent pupil participation in War Savings.

Ten thousand jeeps and a hundred bombers! This is the new goal of America's schools as 30,000,000 children continue their Schools At War program under the auspices of the Treasury Department and the U. S. Office of Education.

Results so far in the program reported by Dr. Homer W. Anderson, Associate Field Director in charge of the education section of the War Savings Staff, are:

Battle Flags of the Schools

More than 7,000,000 elementary and high school students from 30,000 schools have prepared special Schools At War scrapbooks for state and local exhibits.

War Stamp and War Bond purchases may reach a grand total of $300,000,000 for the school year.

Vagrancy, Idleness, Punishable By Law

On the statute books of this state there is a stringent law against vagrants and tramps—Consolidated Statutes of 1919, section 4,459, defines them and prescribes the punishment.

The last legislature passed a resolution demanding that law enforcement officers enforce the law. Section one of the resolution is as follows:

"Section 1. That all sheriffs, constables and the police and other peace officers of the state are hereby urged to strictly and diligently enforce the provisions of the North Carolina statute against vagrants and tramps, which is found in Article thirty, nine Chapter eighty-two of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, and to the end that all able-bodied persons fit to work who are by law designated as vagrants or tramps, and who are not engaged in any gainful occupation, shall be compelled to either become employed or be subject to indictment and prosecution under said laws."

All sheriffs, constables, police officers, mayors, and prosecuting attorneys have copies of this resolution and will enforce the law against offenders.

Quick, stinging statements made to children are remembered far longer than grown-ups realize and may be responsible for some of the inferior complexes of later years. A thoughtful consideration and a sympathetic understanding of children, on the other hand, may big dividends in family happiness, joy, and contentment.
