GRAHAM, N. C., NOV. 11, 1943

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY

$1.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE

Entered at the Postoffice at Graham, N. C., as second-class matter.

The coal miners have largely returned to the pits, but not in very good humor about it.

In the southwest Pacific, in Italy and on the Russian front the allied forces are making good progress. Planes and ships are being destroyed daily and installations blasted. But it is not accomplished without loss. However, the gains outweigh the losses many times over. It is a long way yet till the victorious end we fear.

Hitler in a Munich beer cellar Monday made a fiery speech on the war situation. Though both vindictive and boastful there was something of the swan song tone about it. He threatened to kill any who faltered in their task of devoting every effort toward success. He boasted that he could lead to victory and that he would not be sorry for Germany if she broke under the strain. And in closing he tried to divest himself of the blame by charging that Britain was the prime mover in bringing on the war.

Morrison Not Candidate; "Me Too" Reynolds

Congressman Cameron Morrison announced last week that he would not be a candidate for renomination next year to succeed himself. This week Senator R. R. Reynolds followed suit.

The two announcements coming so close together has caused considerable political chatter and speculation in Washington, and more in their home state.

Morrison is in his first 2-year term. Reynolds will have completed two full terms and a part term, but prospect for renomination was not alluring.

Upon the death of Senator Overman, Morrison was appointed by the governor to the vacancy till the next general election. That was in 1932. In that year Reynolds in his spectacular "Tin Lizzy" campaign defeated Morrison for the nomination.

Since Morrison made his announcement, the action of Reynolds puts a new phase on the senatorship. Though former Governor Hoey has consented to make the campaign against Reynolds, there is some sentiment for drafting Morrison as a candidate for the Senate. Morrison's hands are not tied as to the senatorship and his entry in the race would add interest to the campaign.

Fatally Stabbed Sunday Night

William S. Minor died at Alamance hospital early Tuesday morning from a knife wound in his abdomen.

Officers' investigation reveals that Minor, George M. Glasgow and Bill Hornaday, getting ready to go on a deer hunt stopped late Sunday night at Sear's place at Glen Raven. Hornaday and Glasgow got into a fight after the latter had been hit over the head with a beer bottle. Minor undertook to separate them and it was then that he received the fatal stab from a hunting knife that Glasgow had in his hand.

Both Hornaday and Glasgow are held for further investigation. All lived in or near Burlington. Minor, aged 40 years, was a machanic and worked in a defense plant. He came from Wytheville, Va., where he will be buried, and is mourned by his wife, a daughter and a son.

End of War Sometime In '44

Britain's strong man is Prime Minister Winston Churchill, cautious and far-seeing. He will be 69 years old on the 30th of this month and the years have been spent in public service, in great part.

He has not always had easy going. At times in his career nearly everyone appeared to be against him on account of his views on public questions. His conclusions were so unerring that they seemed savored of prophecy.

After a season of anathema, while things were going from bad to worse, he would be called back to leadership again.

He never indulged in "I told you so," but made the best of a bad situation.

Britain is indeed fortunate to have a Winston Churchill at this stage of her existence—he has literally saved the empire.

He is not given to endless speech-making, but on occasions he deems it due to tell Parliament how matters are going.

He was pleased with the outcome of the conference in Moscow that ended on October 30 and wanted the English people to know about. He waited a week after the action of the conference was made public on Monday of last week.

What he said is of peculiar interest to the Allies, and here are a few excerpts from his speech on last Monday:

"It is a reasonable assumption, that unless we make some grave mistake in strategy, the year 1944 will see the climax of the European war.

"Unless some happier event occurs on which we have no right to count and the hand of Providence is directed by some crowning mercy" then 1944 will see the greatest sacrifice of life by the British and American armies and battles far larger and more costly than Waterloo or Gettysburg will be fought.

"Sorrow will come to many homes in the United Kingdom and throughout the great republic of the United States. British and American manhood—true brother-in-arms—will rise to the attack and grapple with their deadly foes.

"A great many people speak as if the end of the war in Europe were near. I hope indeed that they may prove right.

"There is danger in anything which diverts the thoughts and efforts of any of the allied nations from the supreme task which lies before them, namely, that of beating down into dust and ruin the deadly foes and tyrants who so nearly subjugated the entire world to their domination.

"If things are said in one country or another which are provocative, which are clumsy, indiscreet or even malicious and untrue, there should be no angry rejoinder."

No claim was made that winning the war from now on would be an easy task, but he warned that it would be "severe" and "most costly in lives".

The annual 4-H dress revue winter, Miriam Scott of Alexander-Wilson club, recently took honorable mention in the state contest held at Oxford, Miss Marshbanks said.

The Office of Price Administration has simplified its rationing regulations so that a farmer may now easily determine whether he is eligible to consume home-slaughtered meat without giving up ration points.

In a joint announcement with OPA, the War Food Administration has authorized such individuals to slaughter for home consumption without a permit if they meet the OPA requirements.

Under the two revisions, a person may slaughter and consume meat at home without giving up rationing points if he can qualify on these three counts:

1. If a farmer has raised the livestock from birth;
2. If he fed it for a period of 60 days immediately before slaughter;
3. If the weight increased at least 35 percent between the time he acquired it and the time of slaughter.

In all cases, raising the livestock must take place on a farm or other place where the livestock producer operates. In addition, he must have resided more than six-months of each year on the farm and must have given personal attention to raising the livestock for at least one-third of the time during that period.

Farmers or others who raise livestock and meet the requirements may serve the meat, point-free, to those who eat at his table, including farm workers.

white roses, the Confederate colors, were used. Mrs. Dolph Long, the newly elected president, presided. Mrs. A. Lucy Holt led the ritual. After which Mrs. Long, who was the only representative from the chapter attending the division convention held in Statesville in October, gave an interesting resume of the meeting and of her stay in Statesville. The final financial report for the year was given by the treasurer, Mrs. J. DeWitt Foust. Mrs. J. J. Henderson mentioned highlights from the Bulletin, the last issue being dedicated to South Carolina as a tribute to the U. D. C. president-general, Mrs. Robert Downs Wright, and containing a lovely story about Mrs. Wright, written by the attorney-general of the state. Other outstanding articles were those about Columbia, capital of South Carolina; Fort Sumter; Gen. Wade Hampton and a description of Confederate insignia, telling of its difference from the army insignia of today.

The registrar, Mrs. S. S. Holt, presented Mrs. James McBride Holt, a prospective member, who was present. Miss Mamie Turner, of Raleigh, guest of her sister, Mrs. Scott, was also a visitor.

Burlington Votes Next Tuesday for Larger Corporate Limits

Burlington is voting next Tuesday on enlarging the corporate limits. The voters inside the present limits and those in the territory proposed to be taken in will decide the proposition.

If the election is favorable to the plan it will come near doubling the city's present population of more than 12,000, and increase the area from two and a fraction square miles to more than seven square miles.

There is considerable population outside the present limits on all sides, and the added area will make it rank along with the largest in the state.
