To-morrow will be the festival of St. Valentine, the patron saint of lovers. On this day according to popular ideas the birds pair, and lovers are expected to follow suit or trump. The day is specially devoted to the sending of love tokens, which in the average small boy usually assume the comic form. The bookstore is amply provided with means to supply the wants of all, and there Valentines may be had of all sorts and sizes, shapes and colors. The love-lorn youth may breathe his vows in the most cloying of sentimental doggerel, and his rejected rival may gratity his spleen, by investing five cents in a "comic" which would scare the crows out of the field.
