From the Releigh Register. To Miss. Lizzie W. R. In childhood's bright and sunny hours, Ere we had learned the world's cold ways, We gave each other frienship's flowers-We loved each other's praise.

Side by side we tripped along, The white sand path to the old school room; Bright our faces, gay our song, And free our souls from gloom.

Ah! little dreamed our bouyant hearts, That either ever could grow cold, And pierce the other with keen darts, From the poinard that false friendship holds,

But a chasm yawns between us now-Thou movest on the sunny side; I know not whence it came nor how-I only know 'tis deep and wide. I would not have thee clasp again On earth the binding links of yore;

But in heaven, Lizzie, throw the chain Around my yielding heart once more.
