FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

SUBSTITUTES FOR CORN.

Where the core crop is not sufficient to supply the home demand for the ensuing year, there will be hard times next spring and summer. Fortunately, the trouble may now be easily met. Rye, red rust-proof oats, barley and Italian rye grass, if sowed early and properly, will furnish winter pasturage, and also grain for stock early next season. In these is the safety of the planter whose gorn grop is inadequate for hie wants. Irdeed many very practical men especially in Georgia, advocate the general substitution of these grains for corn as stock food, beg. u-e they are equally satisfactory, and may be grown at less cost. With winter pasturage, corn may be husbanded for the beginning of next year's work, when the toams will need grain; and two months before the next crop of coch is ready for courumption, the small grains may be threshed. Sow pats. Sow rye. Sow Italian rye grass seed. And the earlier the better. -Southern Appus.

Cold rain and mad will soon interfere with out-door work. It is important, therefore, to puel it forward very rapidly. All matured crops should be housed as quickly as possible, and fat sowings completed as soon as practicable. It is extremely bad policy to let the operations of one year drag over into the next. A late atert is general. ly equivalent to a bad start.

MERINQ SHEEP. al As borrespondent who has visited Mr. Luck's farm, near Batavia, N. Y. sava: Mr. Lusk has mustered the art of so breeding and feeding the Merine as to put the maximum weight of fine wood on one hundred pounds of carcass. We looked over his rams, his owes and his lambs, and wondered how nature could be so directed that she could wrap around a sheep's body a skin large enough to cover twice the dimen sions, and to do it by laying it on fo'ds or plaits, and covering all with thick wool. Wonder if the modern belie took the hint from the Merino to wrap around ber form twice or thrice the number of yards of dry goods necessary for a dress by laying it on in folds plaits, bows, etc Mr. Lu-k's entire flock of 107 sheep sheared this year an aggregate of 18561 pounds of wool, which is an average of over 17 35 100 pounds to a head. His five-year-old ram Hopeful sheared 33 pounds 8 ounces; a two year-old ram, New York, sheared 29 pounds 12 ounces; a two year old ram, Money-Maker, sheared 31 pounds; a five-year-old ewe sheared 18 pounds 5 ounces; a two-pear-old ewe sheared 24 pounds; another 21 pounds. This will be as a sample of what care all breeding and constant attention to the wants of the animal will

STORING PUTATOES.

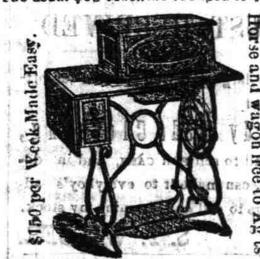

In storing potatoes several methods are adopted, yet they are all practically the same, the object being to pretect them against freezing, whether buried in pits or stored in cellars. The first causideration is to keep them in perfect darkness; the next is, the bine sh uld not be too deep pot over three feet to produce warmth and wase them to sprout. When stored in the field, straight trenches are dug, say twenty feet in length and four or five wide, which are filled to the depth of three feet with potatoes then wellcovered with straw, on top of which put eighteen or twenty inches of earth, In a pit twenty feet long there should be about three gas escapes or ventilating spenings, which should be plugged with straw and sovered with a board set at an angle to turn the rain. If in, cellars, bara or otherwise, the bin should be covered with rugs, old parpetings or strawe Those intended to be kept for late spring sales should be frequently examined and all sprouts removed; for as soon as a motato bebess and quality: Hal a serie and control of the series and control of the series of t

THE LEDGER has not stained the plane of success upon which it now solidly rests without earnest, well-directed effort. Its conductors have labored earnestly and persistently not only to make it an excellent literary journal, but also to make the reading world acquainted with it. Thousands upon thousands of dollars have been expended in bringing its marits to the attention of the reading public. In fact, The Empore has been the most extensively advertised newspaper in the west. The publishers have a feeling of pride at the success that has attended their efforts to build up a first class literary paper in the capital city of the West. The circulation, already large, is rapidly growing, and by the lat day of January will be not less than 25,000. The publishers do not mean to re-ax publishers do not mean to relax their efforts to make THE LEDGER the best weekly newspaper in the West, but in and to powerers in the work, and during the coming months will still further increase its, value
