OUR SATE CONTEMPO-

on sides RARIES, We have nothing to say against charitable works, but the mother who devotes the better part of her time to hunting up objects of charity and leaves her children to the care of an ignorant nurse, doesn't know what genuine objects of charity are. The claim which her bubies have upon her charity is greater than that of any other charitable claim, and it ought to be satisfied first. Their comfort, training and happiness should be her first consideration .- Goldsboro Headlighter by ad live year

We are a decided friend of the State Guard organization in North Carolina, but we do not believe it prudent or right to ask the boys (the members of the State Guaril) to leave their business, at a busy season of the year, to go to Richmond, Va., or anywhere else, on a pleasure excursion. Such trips as that will soon make the organization unpopular in this State among business men who have but a short time in the year to make money enough to pay expenses, support, &c.

-Charlott Democrat. One of the great draw-backs in the way of poor people getting an education, is what appears to be the systematic effort on the part of somebody, we know not who, to continu ally change the books used in the schools; almost every session a different set of books has to be bought. If the younger children could use the same books as they come along, that the older ones used, it would not make so much difference, but no, they won't do, you must buy a new set for every child you send to school, this is heavy on a poor man if he has lots of children; and poor men always do. Well, it may be right, but we can't see it in that way.-Hillsboro Recorder.

Undue exposure to cold winds, rain bright light or malaria, may bring on inflammation and soreness of the eyes. Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Eye Salve will subdue the inflammation, cool and soothe the nerves, and strengthen weak and fail-ing eye sight, 25 cents a box.

Weevils in Grain.

Numerous remedies have been tested and reccommended for weevils in grain bins. Once the weevils are in the grain as certain a remedy as any is probably bisulphide of carbon introduced into the bin, which is then covored to confine the vapor. An objection urged by some against the use of bis-ulphide of carbon is that the vapor arising rom it is very explosive, and therefore careful handling is required. Anniseed is one of the old remedies. This is placed near an infested bin and it is said to attract the weevils, and these can be destroyed. Millers resort som-times to kill drying to destroy the weevils.

In this as in many other cases the best remedy is a preventive. When possible avoid storing grain in bins that have been intested. When it is practicable to change the place of storage fundaments. When it is practicable to change the place of storage fumigate the grainery with burning sulpher. Funigation should not only be done before the grain is placed in the bins, but repeated in the course of a month of two after it has been stored. An abundance of light, with thorough cleaniness in the mill, be found beneficial. Millers advise white washing the bins inside and out, and washing the floors occasionally with hot water. Expose the wheat to the light by frepose the wheat to the light by frequently stirring it or pouring it from one bill futo another this will also prevent it from becoming heated. The weevil is adverse to light and air, fience the advice to frequently expose it to the light, with ample ventilations.—N. C. Farmer.

Chaptain Hall Writes the Following Be-markable Letter () From the Many N. F. Espress. For many years my wife had been the victim of nervous dyspepsia, of the chronic, distressing and apparently incurable type from which so many of her sex suffer, languish and die. It was all the worse because the tendency to it was inherited. She had been under the systematic treatment of many of the hest physicians in New York and Brooklyn and elsewhere for twenty years with only temperary relief. In fact, there were few, if any, kinds of food that did not distress her, so diseased, sonsitive and torpid were all the organs of diges tion. The usual symptoms of dyspepsia, with its concomitant ailments, were all present bud taste in the booth dall eyes, cold feet and hands, the source of a load upon the stomach tenderness on pressure, budigestion, glddings, great weakness and prostration, and fagitive pains in the sides chert and back. I have offen risen to the night and administered stimulante merely for the sake of the slight and transient relief

they gave. Intermittent malarial fever set in. complicating the case and making every symptom more pronounced and intense. By this time the paceumo-Gastrits, and six had strong Gastrits, and also beat I may be at lowed to call chromic intermittent malacial fever all at once. For the letter the physicians prescribed the gooth oldfactioned, sheet-sucher remedy, Quinfor gradually increasing the doses until - Inerectible as it tray seens she seenally took TIMETY GRAINS A DAY FOR DAYS IN SUCCESSION. This could not last. The offect of the quisine was, if possible, almost as bad as the twofold disease which was woaring away her strength and her life. Quinine poisoning was painfully evident, but the fever was there still. Almost every day there come on the characteristic chill and racking headache, followed by the usual wonknows and collapse. About this time I neet socially my friend Mr. Norton, a member of the firm of Chauncey Thus & Company, brokers, of Albany, who, on hearing from me these facts, said: Why, I have been through almost the same thing, and have got over it." "What cared you?" I asked eagerly. "Kaskine," he said, "try it for your wife." I had seen Kaskine advertised, but had no more faith in it than I had in sawdust, for such a case as hers. Mrs. Hall had no higher opinion, yet on the strength of my friend's recommendation I got a bottle and began its use as directed

Now recall what I have already said as to her then condition, and then read what follows: Under the Kaskine treatment all the dyspeptic symptoms showed instant improvement, and the daily fever grow loss and soon beased altogether. Side by side these diseases vanished, as side by side they had tortured their victim for ten years the dyspepsia alone having, as I have said, existed for twenty years. Her appetite improved from week to week until she could eat and digest the average food that any well person takes, without any suffering or inconvenience. With renewed assimilation of food came, of course, a steady increase in feet, until she now looks like her original self. She still takes Easting occasionally, but with no real need of R, for she is well. I consider this remit a scientific masele, and the " New Quinles " loostitled to the credit of he for from the time she began with Kaseine als meed no other medicine whatever yanden
