TAR DROPS

Cotton 87. Be sure to read the new advertisement of B. P. Clifton in this issue. If you wish to rent, buy, or sell property advertise in the TIMES.

Mrs. A. M. Hall's new advertisement will be found in this issue. Read it.

Farmers do you have your chattel mortgages cancelled? It is business to do so.

The colored people have had as bad a time, it not worse, for their Fair, as the whites had last week.

We are glad to announce that there will be a first-class photographer in town next week. He has secured Clifton's gallery.

We understand that the ladies of the Baptist church here, are preparing to give an entertainment for the benefit of the church.

The happiest man in this immediate section is Capt. Fleming, the ever polite and popular conductor on the Louisville Railroad. It's a girl.

It would be a wise thing for the authorities to make an investigation of the above pipes in town. A little precaution may save a very large fire.

The O'ld North State Poultry Club had quite a display at the Fair last week, and succeeded in capturing a number of premiums, medals and diplomas.

The State Fair folks did two good things. First by electing Eugene G. Harrell, Secretary, and second by agreeing to have two weeks of the Fair next year.

At the Fair last week J. L. Stone, the organ man, had a very large gunkin, and allowed every one who desired, to guess at the number of seeds it contained, the nearest guesser to be presented with an organ. Every guesser's name and the number guessed were recorded and the pumpkin was cut on Saturday.

The number of seed was 612 and A. N. Butts, of Durham, was the lucky man, having guessed the exact number. E. J. Jones, Esq., of Louisville, guessed 611, and is now trying to get somebody to lick him for guessing so close. It is said that he had already given directions how the organ was to be shipped, so certain was he that his guess was right.

As was seen by the number of Alliances published in our last issue, that has been formed in this county, the Farmers' Alliance is making considerable headway in Franklin. Being an outsider, of course we know little of its workings, but from the facts we hear, we think it a good thing. Farmers certainly ought to consult more together and help each other. An exchange says:

The two primary objects of the Alliance are to abolish the mortgage system and to crush out gambling in cotton futures. It further aims to encourage (enforce, among its members) the payment of debts and the ultimate establishment of a cash system. It desires the better education of farmers and a general improvement in their financial and social condition. In short, the Alliance wants the farmer to get the benefit of the profit of his work, instead of the speculator, and desires to see the farmer on a plane of intelligence and respectability with the best in the land.

An exchange very truly says: Quite frequently we hear people complaining that there should be a law against this and that which tends to disturb the peace and quiet of the community, and that the law should take hold of this or that offender. They either do not think or are ignorant of the laws. We have laws enough and to spare. The trouble does not lie in the absence of laws to cover the offenses complained of, but in the failure to properly execute the laws which now fill our statute books. Who is responsible for this failure? Our officers are responsible to duty, to a limited extent. Those who complain and the mass of the people are mainly to blame. For it is impossible for any law, let it be so necessary and wise, to be enforced if the sentiment of the people in general does not heartily and actively sustain the executing officer.

Let an officer try to execute a law not sustained by public favor and he will not only fail to enforce said law but will make himself very unpopular by his unsuccessful endeavor to perform his duty. Even these croakers can't be prevailed on to give evidence against anyone of these offenders. A strict enforcement of the laws against the sale of whiskey to minors and of the law against drunkenness would leave the prohibitionists very little to do, and would lessen the number of our grand juries and judges to a remarkable degree.

We suppose every farmer in Franklin who knows how, will raise some tobacco next year. Those who tried it this year have nearly every one been successful, and have made money.

The rain having ceased and the weather being favorable the Raleigh people (the visitors had nearly all left for their homes) took in the Fair last Friday and Saturday, so says the News-Observer.

In the art department at the State Fair, we saw some very pretty paintings by Ella Spencer and Frank C. Oke, of Louisville, the former aged 23 and the latter 17 years. They were very creditable paintings and received many compliments. Both of these young people are taking lessons under Mrs. W. P. Hicks.

It is rumored.

That the Register of Deeds will be called on soon by a young man in town. Do your guessing ladies.

That L. L. Linsburg has paid, on an average since the season opened, better prices for cotton than any other inland market. Figures speak for themselves.

That something very startling will explode in certain quarters before long, and great will be the explosion thereof.

That already candidates are being spoken of for county officers next year. Among the number P. A. Davis for Register of Deeds.

The Times Wants to See.

Everybody prosper. And everybody work as hard to pay their debts as some do to keep from paying.

Louisburg with a population of progressive and energetic citizens to the number of several thousand and upwards.

A well-managed and successful Stock Association in Franklin County.

Every Democrat fully determined that Franklin shall be carried for Democracy next year.

A diversification in crops in Franklin next year, and more fine bright tobacco raised.

The county and town people pull together in every thing to build up and cause the whole county to prosper. One is dependent upon the other.

A Gold Mining Company Incorporated.

A company has just been formed and incorporated under the laws of North Carolina, for developing and working the Mann-Arrington gold mine in Nash county. The capital stock of the company is $70,000. Mr. D. W. Lyon of this city is secretary and treasurer and Mr. W. A. Campbell of N. C. is general superintendent. The remainder of the company is composed of gentlemen of Pittsburgh, Pa., of ample capital and who have large interests in the extensive iron works of that city. The company hold a fee simple 1350 acres of land in the placer district of Nash county in which there are four well defined iron veins from 6 inches to four feet thick with Huronian slate walls. This is the first organized company for working the auriferous veins of Nash and it is not simply a venture in the ordinary acceptance of the term. The company have expended $100,000 in exploring with the mine that they might know something of its possibilities before making a permanent investment. A twenty stamp mill will be erected at once and operations begun on a large scale. They already have contracts for several months ahead, which yields from $20 to $30 per ton of pure metal. Seccharon quartz ores will be the principal thing worked. -News-Observer.

Manufactories. Nearly every town in the State of this note is endeavoring to organize capital for the purpose of starting manufactories. The people are waking up to the fact that in order to hold and increase the population something must be done to give employment to labor. There is a class of citizens in every town and city that is dependent upon their daily labor for existence, and there is nothing that puts the smile on the laborer's face quicker than the knowledge of the fact that manufactories are to be built. And while other towns are turning about in this particular, we stop to enquire, what a Louisville doing? Now this is a very pertinent question, and one which the citizens, who are in condition to act should answer. Of course stores of various kinds are very necessary, but these alone never built up a town beyond a certain point. As we say, they are very necessary, but they fail to give employment to the laborer, and the various industries that might be developed by manufactories are allowed to lie dormant, and a large number who desire to make their residence in such a place are forced to go elsewhere because they are unable to get employment. There is no place in the State more suitably situated for manufactories than Louisville, and we can mention a number of factories that would pay here. For instance, a cotton factory, tobacco factory, a wagon factory, and several others. If our own citizens cannot see their way clear to embark into these or similar enterprises it would pay them to offer such inducements to outsiders as would cause them to come on and invest their capital. There are various and sundry ways to build up, and in these progressive days towns and communities that put forth the greatest efforts and offer the greatest inducements are growing and prospering.
