Genevieve Ward's Dog.

Miss Genevieve Ward has a famous dog, and thereby hangs a tale. A tall hound, b. most dogs, except bull dogs and Scotch terriers which have their tails cut off, probably to keep them from being chewed off.

A gentleman who once journeyed from India to Australia with Thekla and Miss Ward tells the following amusing story of their devotion to each other. It appears that in Australia there is a ridiculous large import duty on dogs, and they are also required to go into a quarantine for a certain length of time, in order to make sure that they will not introduce the man or other low diseases among the high-bred dogs of Australia, which, like other colonies, are particularly of their aristocratic belongings.

Miss Ward learned of this state of affairs as the ship approached its destination. She immediately took room, and her demonstrations of affection for Thekla increased at the rate of seven knots an hour, the average speed of the ship. A Mr. Bastino, a member of the Victorian parliament, telegraphed from Adelaide to Melbourne, trying to have Miss Ward's dog admitted free and at once upon the land-gig of the ship. Other high political influence was brought to bear; but when the party got into the harbor of Melbourne, the purser, who had been particularly objectionable during the voyage, said that a reply had been received to the effect that Thekla must submit to the usual indignities. Miss Ward rushed up to the captain and, pointing to the purser, said:

"This kangaroo says I can't get my dog in. Now, if the dog doesn't go in neither will I. I'll just stay with the ship."

This was rather startling. Miss Ward's arrival was awaited with eager expectancy by a public that had heard of her great charm and talent as an actress. Her engagement was to be the event of the Melbourne season, and to have the whole of Australia disappointed because of a dog, however expert the latter might be in standing on his hind legs, turning somersaults, and other canine accomplishments, was too much for the captain. He said:

"Miss Ward, you just wrap that dog up in your shawl and a shawl strap around his neck, and you can carry him ashore without saying anything about it."

And that is how Thekla entered Melbourne. Whether not Miss Ward told the foreward and expectant custom officers that Thekla had filed off, sensibility the reporter's informant did not say. He did say, however, that the passengers effected the discharge of the disagreeable purser, whom Miss Ward called a kangaroo. Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Editor's Road not an Easy one.

The editor gets up in the morning and booms the town. He gives free puffs by the score, and in the evening is cursed by the merchant growing fat of his efforts. If he says "It's a girl," and it's a boy, the proud father sharpens the toe of his boots and hurls him up. If he makes mention of it at all the man is mad. Let him give credit to the wrong minister and there's a howl in the corners of heaven. Dare he to say plier than the charming and delightful Miss So and So is in town and the young men declare him a beast. He must say every body is pretty, industrious, full of business, handsome, talented, and stand accused of lying. If a man dies he has to write, "he went straight to heaven," or another one of earth's most precious flowers has been transplanted in the sweet bond, and at night be tormented by the devil for robbing him of his prize. Verily the editor is a hard road to travel. Durham Recorder.

Linnseed and Cotton Seed Oil.

Cotton seed meal, when used in moderation, is a very useful food for dairy cows. It is the reserve of laxative, and tends rather to costiveness. This, however, gives it an especial value when sown upon grass, and when it is mixed with bran. When it was first introduced in the Northern States as a food for cows, twelve years or more ago, it was sold at eighteen dollars per ton, and was an exceedingly cheap food. Since then it has become widely popular, and has advanced in value fifty percent. Still, for the nutriment contained in it, it is yet cheap, being valued for its nutritive at forty cents per ton. It is very rich in nitrogenous substances, and is consequently an unsafe food for cows, if fed in excess. The cotton plant possesses some very powerful medical qualities. The root produces abortion, and the seed certainly has some of the same active effects. The meal has a decided infammatory effect upon the milk glands, and, therefore, is to be used only in very moderate quantities. We have fed it to cows from four pounds down to one pound, and while feeding two pounds daily, with twice as much bran and corn meal the butter produce of a cow experimented upon ran up to two pounds daily. When four pounds daily was fed, with the same quantity of corn meal and bran, the yield of butter was only 1.88 pounds per day for a few days, when an attack of garget was brought on and four days afterward the yield was less than a pound. As this result happened frequently with other cows in the dairy, and hired men could scarcely be restrained from using too much of it, and a fine lot of Berkshire pigs were sacrificed to this temptation to feed the meal to excess, its use was abandoned. With one pound only, used with twice the quantity of corn meal and bran for a single ration, cotton seed meal may be used safely; but as any excess over that is apt to be injurious, it is advisable to mix the feed in bulk, so that the ration cannot be exceeded by any accident. This meal gives a high color, solidity, a fine waxy texture and a rich, nutty flavor to the butter.

ONE OF JEFFERSON'S VETERANS.

He was mentioned in the life of Jeff. Stewart with honor for bravery and dash than the gallant Major B. S. White, of Barnsville, Maryland. The Major was one of the most trusted of the Jefferson cabinet. He was Major for years since the war, was an invalid, but recently he has entirely recovered. This was brought about is told in the following letter:

Dear Sir:—For sixteen years I had rheumatism in my right shoulder. At the same time I had severe indigestion and dyspepsia. All during these years I tried several physicians and numerous patent medicines without any permanent relief. A few months ago, at the persuasion of relatives, but with decided prejudice, I began a course of Dr. J. H. McLean's Kidney and Bladder Pills. After using six large bottles I was entirely well. The medicine got at the root of the disease and eradicated it. When the disappearance of the rheumatism was complete, I was told by a friend that you recommended your S. S. S. to my neighbors and countrymen, because I am convinced of its efficacy. I have cured me in spite of every prejudice. Yours truly, B. S. White.

What Breaks Down Young Men.

It is a commonly received notion that hard study is the unhealthy element of college life. But from tables of mortality of Harvard University, collected by Professor Pierce from the last triennial catalogue, it is clearly demonstrated that the excess of deaths for the first ten years after graduation is found in that portion of the class of inferior scholarship. Every one who has seen the curriculum knows, that where the physical and political economy, history, and date hours and runs-pitches up at a dozen, and their two little fingers are heavier than the loins of Euclid. Dissipation is a sure destroyer, and every young man who follows it is as a timely frost. Those who have been inveigled into the path of vice are legion. A few hours sleep each night, high living and plenty of "smashes" make up upon every function of the body. The brain, the heart, the lungs, the liver, the spine, the bones, the flesh, every part, and faculty are overtaxed and weakened by the terrific energy of passion, loosened from restraint, until the physical system is in a state of total prostration. The body is a tabernacle, falls into ruin, and the soul is a mere spirit, fast young men, right about.

The Modern Old Maid.

Who does not rejoice in her? She is round and jolly, two dimples in her cheeks, and has a laughing musical as a bobolink's song. She wears nicely fitting dresses, becoming little ornaments about her plump throat, and capturing kind looks. She goes to concerts, parties, suppers, lectures and matinees, and she doesn't go alone. She carries a dainty parasol, and wears killing bonnets, and has nice poets and philosophers in her train. In fact, the modern old maid is as good as the modern young maid; she has sense and conversation as well as dimples and curves, and she has a bank book and dividend. And the men like her—and why not?—Ex.

The Gift of To-Day.

The girl of to-day is a busy, useful worker. She is generally proficient in needle work. She can not only sew her own dresses but can make those and her underclothing as well. She has a knack at trimming her hats and doing up her dresses and does her full share at helping the dressmaker who comes to assume charge of the spring and fall sewing. She understands the various branches of mending and takes that division of labor of her mother's hands, as well as the care of the parlors and dining-rooms, the supervision of the manners and apparel of the younger children, and sometimes of their studies, too. Let full justice be done to the "girl of the period" or rather let there be a clear comprehension of what should be really represented by that much-abused phrase. It is not fair to take the weakest specimens of the sex as types of a class comprising earnest workers, with strong convictions of life, its responsibilities and burdens and a steady purpose to bear them according to the best of their ability. —Ex.

How the Cigar got its Name.

The origin of the word cigar is of some interest and is not to be found in the ordinary dictionaries. The word, of course, is Spanish, and it is his French dictionary says that it is derived from cigarrin, the Spanish name for grasshopper. When the Spaniards first introduced tobacco into Spain from the Island of Cuba, in the sixteenth century, they cultivated the plant in their gardens, which they called cigarral. Each grew his tobacco in his cigarral and rolled it up for smoking, as he had learned from the Indians in the West Indies. When one offered a smoke to a friend, he would say: "Este cigarro es de mi cigarral." This cigar is from my garden. And from this the word cigar spread over the world. The name cigar for garden, comes from cigarras, a grasshopper, that insect being very common in Spain, and cigarral meaning the place where the cigarras sing. In this way the word cigar, the name of the insect not because it resembles the body of the grasshopper, but because it was grown in the cigarral, got its name. —Ex.

By Joye? I feel hard.

"By Joye? I feel hard," said a man at a leading hotel last evening. "What is the matter, old man?" asked a friend. "Well, I have had a couple of chums here from New York for a day or two, and we have kept up so well that my digestion is upset. I'll tell you what you ought to do. Take an evening dose of Dr. J. H. McLean's Great Rejuvenator; how much do you think my stomach will hold?" Detroit Free Press.

The most influential parents are those who know how to share the enjoyment of their children.

Unsuspected disorders of the kidneys are responsible for many of the chronic ailments of humanity, which neglected, develop into a serious and perhaps fatal malady. Experience would suggest the use of Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm.

Some of the most eminent men were remarkable for their dullness of youth.

Stimulate these feelings in your own behavior that you would calculate in others. A man may fall ten thousand times but there comes a time when he may succeed. If a book inspires you with noble feelings, seek no other rule by which to judge it. It is good.

What a child does for himself and by himself, under wise instruction, is an excellent education.

I desire to announce to the public that I have opened in Louisville a certain patent's shop and can be found in the old "Hudson's Store" which is a new place to work in the line of patenting of any kind, or if you wish a door, window, sash, or anything of the kind made, give me a call. Never sneer at children.

Words are living things. Mind is perpetual motion. As the parent so is the child. Wisdom makes opportunities. Those who look for evil find it. Progress is born of experience. Sin is taught before it is acted. Do not scold, and never threaten. Authority should be felt, not seen. Correction is better than compulsion. Growing strength increases intelligence. Animation is an essential of success. The successful instructor is made, not born. That is today your danger. Also, your wonderful machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the overcoat pocket, but the lining, the little tabs and catches, hanging from them, sometimes a man's life. When these things lead about with matter which ought not to be there, your jump cannot fall to the ground. Call it cold, cough, phlegm, asthma, consumption or any of the forty or fifty names, it is the same. It is a cold, cough, phlegm, asthma, consumption or any of the forty or fifty names, it is the same. Parents sometimes need instruction as much as the children need education.

William, Phil, Sam, etc., Messrs. A. T. Shiloburn & Co., Rochester, N. Y. I have tried the bottle of pills for malaria sent me, with the most wonderful results: one dose cured a case of two months standing. Please send me one dozen by mail, immediately with some advertising matter, and I will send you a bottle of pills. Very truly, J. P. Ferguson, of an Dealer in General Merchandise, 100-102 Broadway, New York.

Give sick people credit for some of the times knowing more than the doctor.

The first step in giving credit to a child is to govern yourself. Many live ridiculously for fear of being thought ridiculous. Children are encouraged, by the approbation of their parents. Convince the people you see in your dead earnest if you would succeed. Time spent in making advertisements is never thrown away.

PERSONAL.

Mr. N. H. Froehlichstein, of Mount Airy, N. C., writes: I was cured of my rheumatism by Dr. King's New Discovery for Gonorrhea. I have used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis, and it gave me instant relief. I had entirely cured me and I have been a blessed man. I also tried to use the L. I. B. but it did not do me any good. I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Bronchitis and Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs and Colds, and both gave me a permanent cure.
