Country Boys.

Lizabeth City Carolinian. Let no boy on the farm bewait his hard low. Though he may have plain clothes awkward ways, and stern virtues, yet he knows what a dollar is worth. The writer, though now nearing his parce score years, recollects vividly his home made jeans coat and pants; and he remembers, too, some of the first town boys with whom, he made in a more nobby wile than those made on the farm by a good mother. But while those boys had fine clottes, rich parents and good advantages they had also temptations. such as the bal room, he saloon, the card table and other nameless tempta-tions which the boy who had been traited to work ever since he was old enough to pick up a basket of chips, had not It is generally supposed that the city boy has many advantages over the country boy. But in real fact such is not the case Some admal experience is diat of the half dozen town boys who were dressed and had plenty of money to pay for what their appear tite or fancy desired, and who were very rule to the country bey when they meshim, not one of them is living to-der-they have all passed over the rives some of them in disgrace for crimes nome by dissipation, while others thappeared and left no mark.

The interkness the time (six other capatry boys—his playmates, district school mates and friends. Sons of conest, and strices farmers, they were taught to work and to practice frugality. They grew up to manhood, became worthy citizens, attained to heaprable positions in society, raised lamilies who have distinguished themselves in literature, in politics, are till living, honged in their age, But the other six boys, were peried and pampered fifty years ago are dead, their bones have rotted

A boy who wears plain clothes works one half of the year to raise money to pay for his schooling, is far more a subject of envy than the boy whogoesto college, has all the money he wants for fine clothes and useless luxuries and spends his vacations in rounds of galety and flotous living.

The farmer's boy who depends upon his own dertions, wears plain clothes, and applies himself to his study, has a grand future before him, and we beseech him not to bewail his hard lot in life. He has a glorious future. The world is saiting to see his hon statio and soble record. The fields of enter-prise have been specially reserved for his triumbhs. His destiny is upward, and the world will yet do him homage.

markable Letter. From the Albany N. Y., Dapress.

For many years my wife had been the victim of nervous dyspepsia, of the chronic, distressing and apparently incurable type from which so many of her sex suffer, lamarish and the. It was all the worse because the rendency to it was inherited. She had been under the systematic treatment of many of the best physicians in New York and Brooklyn and elsewhere for twenty years with only temperary relief. In fact, there were few, if any, kinds of food that did not distress lies, so diseased, sensoive and lorpid were all the organs of thesetion. The usual symptoms of dyspepsia, with its concomitant ailments, were all present-bad taste in the month, dull eyes, cold feet and hands, the souse of a load upon the stomach, tenderness on pressure, indigestion, sidelines, gitive pains in the sides, chest and back I have often risen in the night and adminhtored stimulants merely for the sake of the shight and transfest relief they gara

This could not last. The effect of the quinine was, if possible, almost as both as the twofold disease which was wearing away hor strength and her life. Quinine poisoning was painfully evident, but the fever was there still. Almost every day there come on the characteristic chill and racking headache, followed by the panal woakness and codapse. About this time I net socially my friend Mr. Norton, a member of the firm of Chauncey Thus & Company, brokers, of Albany, who, on hearing from me these facts, said: "Why, I have been through almost the same thing, and have got over it." "What cured you?" I asked eagerly. " Kas-
