ROTATION OF CROPS.

Some New Light on an Agricultural Topic of Great Interest.

Perhaps this subject engrosses the mind of the farmer as much as any other connected with his business. Many articles have been written on the subject, published in the agricultural journals, and discussed by the readers, and yet, to-day many farmers are undecided as to which is the most successful course for them to pursue. In selecting a course for myself I bore in mind the fact that manure was of the most importance on the corn and root crops, from the fact that the roots of corn go deeper than those of other crops in my rotation. I therefore start out with corn the first year with all the manure, spread from the wagon, (not dumped in piles to leach out for a month or more, and then scattered) before plowing. Then after corn has been gathered I plow in the fall if weather will permit, and sow in the spring to oats. After this crop is off, I seed it to wheat and clover. After allowing it to remain in clover two years, I put it in wheat a second time, allowing all the fall crop of clover to remain and be turned in, and after wheat this time, I return to corn and the start.

By this system, as the manure is turned under for corn, its roots generally find a portion, and when the piece is plowed for oats the rest of the manure comes to the surface to benefit the oats. After the wheat, which follows oats, the clover sowed with or upon it is cut the following spring and fall, but the second fall I plowed the second crop of clover to get as large as can be turned under for the next crop of wheat. Some years it may be best to allow the seed to be taken from the clover, with success depending on suitable weather for threshing; but upon the whole, in a series of years, I believe the additional quantity of wheat resulting from the green crop plowed under will over-balance the clover seed crop. The potatoes being planted the same year with the corn, and at the ends of the corn rows, get the full benefit of the manure plowed under. I believe potatoes should be planted deep. By making four or five hills of potatoes at the ends of corn rows it is better to turn the team upon in cultivating.

This system is based upon the fact that the roots of corn and potatoes go deep, while those of oats and wheat branch out horizontally at no very great depth. Consequently by the time I get through the rotation the land is in better heart than when I commenced.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

A REMARKABLE REMEDY FOR BLOOD POISON.

(Editorial in New Orleans Picayune, May, 1887.)

S. S. S.—those whose blood is poisoned will find a very interesting article on another page from J. E. Mitchell, West Twenty-third street, New York, who had been suffering from this complaint seven years and was completely cured by the use of the S. S. S. There is nothing on the top of the earth better than this remarkable remedy for blood poison. Remember, in buying, to see that you get the genuine as counny imitations of this great medicine are on the market. Write to the Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga., for a Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases, which will be mailed free to any address.

AN ENEMY TO POISON.

The New Orleans Picayune, July, 7th, 1887, says editorially: "The medicine of the Swift Specific Company, renowned for their wonderful cures in cases of blood poisoning, are always backed by the best known names, coupled with the most desperate cases."

"If this medicine could only cure a local sore it would of be worth of a name, but to eradicate from the blood all impurity, even that which is hereditary, makes it what is claimed for it—a boon to mankind."

VOICE FROM VIRGINIA.

Roanoke, Va. Times, April 21, 1887.—S. S. S.—By the use of this valuable medicine once one of our citizens, who had upwards of thirty boils. He tried various other medicines and several mineral waters, but nothing else afforded him the desired relief. This testimony we give unsolicited, and without the knowledge of the proprietors."

Annual Meeting of the N. C. Farmers Association.

This Association was organized at the Farmers' Mass Convention, which was held in the city of Raleigh, January 26, 1887, by electing a President, one Vice President for each Congressional district in the State, a Secretary and an Executive Committee of five. It adopted a Constitution and By-Laws for its government. It adjourned to meet in the city of Greensboro on the second Wednesday in January, 1888. The Constitution restricts the membership of the Association to such only as have their chief interests in farming. Each county in the State is entitled to as many votes in the body as it has members in the lower branch of our legislature, but in no manner restricts the number of qualified delegates who are to cast these votes.

The object and purpose of the Association is to take such action as may best improve and promote the agricultural interest of our people. This is the broad basis upon which it is founded and it hopes to have the hearty approval and co-operation of every farmer in our State.

Although called without organized effort or formulated plan, the convention of last January was composed of nearly four hundred farmers representing forty-three counties. We earnestly hope that every county in the State will be represented in our meeting in Greensboro.

Let the farmers in each county in the State call meetings at once and elect delegates (as many as will come) and give them certificates, to the end that all sections, and the interests of all sections may be represented. Reduced rates on railroads have been secured and the agents are instructed to issue round trip tickets to all delegates. Reduced rates are also been secured at the hotels and boarding houses in Greensboro.

A farmers institute will be held during the session. Able and distinguished agriculturists will be present to address the body on important topics connected with agriculture. Every effort will be made to render the occasion interesting and profitable.

Rochester Pa. Dear Sir—The two boxes of Oil you sent me did excellent work and they would have saved my son was the victim of Malarial disease, by living in Florida two years, and the Antidote has done more than five hundred dollars worth of other medicine could have done in this time. I have had one of my children to try the medicine, and it cured him immediately. I now recommend it to every one suffering from Malaria.

DYSPEPSIA

Up to a few weeks ago I considered myself the champion Dyspeptic of America. During the years that I have been afflicted I have tried almost everything claimed to be a specific for Dyspepsia in the hope of finding something that would afford permanent relief. I had about made up my mind to abandon all medicines when I noticed an endorsement of Simmons Liver Regulator, by a prominent Georgian, a jurist whom I knew, and concluded to try its effects in my case. I have used but two bottles, and am satisfied that I have struck the right thing at last. I felt its beneficial effects almost immediately. Unlike all other preparations of a similar kind, no special instructions are required as to what one shall or shall not eat. This fact alone ought to commend it to all troubled with Dyspepsia.
