

MAKING MONEY.

It is not a difficult thing to make money. Many men succeed in making money, but they are poor and have but little to show that they have achieved any success in this line of business. Frugality is the want of the age. Men have not learned how to make money so much as they need to acquire the talent of saving money. "It is not that what they'll make," said a friend to a young man, "but what they'll save, that will make thy fortune."

Frugality is not a miserly nor does true frugality sacrifice any of the real pleasures and enjoyment of life. That miserly love of money which consumes its possessor with thirst for wealth, simply for its own sake, is not frugality. Men who practice this kind of self-denial and call it frugality keep themselves poor while increasing their worthless riches, and are paupers in mind and soul amid millions of money so acquired.

Nor is frugality meanness; for meanness, like covetousness, of which it is the offspring, often defeats itself. "It saves where it ought to be generous," says out worthy employee or hiree cheap ones that are good for nothing, grudge expenditure of the store or shop that are essential to neatness, attractiveness and success in business; disgusts good customers, and fully exemplifies the saying, "Penny wise and pound foolish."

True economy is a Christian virtue, gathering up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost. True frugality is that careful management of money or goods which expends nothing unnecessarily, and applies what is used to a profitable purpose. Making money is saving money by this wise and commendable method of living. When men begin to practice this kind of economy they will be enabled to lift the nose from the grindstone and enjoy what they make. Their lives will be useful and happy. They will be independent, and the spirit of a true and noble manhood will cheer their pilgrimage to the grave.

A PARTY OF TRAITORS.

The Goldboro "Argus" says the plan of the Republican party is to encourage every shape of independence. "They are ready," says the "Argus," "to buy with the offer of office any man who has any influence and who offers himself for sale. They seek out men who have been disappointed in securing offices in the Democratic party; they flatter their vanity by securing them that they are very valuable and have been badly treated by the Democratic party. Long notices in this has made them very skillful, and in this way they secure many ambitious young fellows who are not well grounded in faith and whose only attachment to the party is measured by the chances of political aggrandizement. There ought to be no doubt about besting any party in this State whose strength is made up in this way. If there is any doubt of it, the doubt can only be based upon the supposition that the people of this State do not have a very high conception of political morality. A man who has been disappointed by the Democracy—whose fame it has made—whose pockets it has filled, that will from party resentment, or the hope of office, desert the party that has made him what he is, can have no claim to any high consideration than that of a traitor. He deserves to be and is displaced by his fellow party men, that deliberate and traitor-like and abet in making the party no better than the traitor himself."

RALEIGH AGAIN DRY.

The Supreme court of North Carolina (Associate Justice Harrison rendering the decision) has decided that lager beer and wine are prohibited in the term "liquors" and that the county authorities of Wake had no authority in granting licenses to persons to sell and dispense. Under this decision the beer shoddy will be closed in Raleigh.

The Republicans have called a State Convention to be held in Raleigh the 23rd of May.

BLAINE is opposed to taking the tax off liquor. Now what will the so-called Republican revenue do if it do or say?

TARIFF REDUCTION.

The whole country especially the farming interests, is looking to the present Congress to do something in regard to the reduction of the present high tariff and internal revenue taxes placed upon the people by the Republican party, and the New York Star, the leading Democratic paper of New York says:

It is not difficult to predict what the bill reducing tariff taxes will be. The condition of business and the necessity of framing a measure that will pass the Senate define the limitations which will determine the boundaries of the tax-reduction bill.

We predict that it will be in substance as follows:
First—The free list will include all the ores—iron, lead, zinc, copper—and also salt, coal, lumber, wool, jute, hemp, marble, stone and other raw materials used in manufactures in this country.

This free list will effect a reduction of about $7,000,000.
Second—The tax on sugar will be cut in two in the middle. This will throw off $27,000,000, unless an increased consumption shall result from the reduced taxation. It may, however, be assumed that the receipts from sugar will be $20,000,000 less than at present.

Third—The placing of tropical fruits upon the free list and the lopping off of taxes above 60 per cent. will make a further reduction of, say, $3,000,000.

Fourth—There will be secured by the changes above suggested a decrease of $40,000,000 in the tariff taxes. Supposing that the scheme is to effect a saving of $50,000,000 which is as great a reduction as Congress is likely to make, the contribution to the general reduction which the protected manufacturers will be required to make will not be more than ten millions. This can be accomplished by revising the taxes upon manufacturers so that the minimum duty shall be 40 per cent. ad valorem and the maximum duty 60 per cent.

A minimum duty of 40 per cent. is "high protection." We submit to the judgment of the people whether it is not enough.

We now venture to predict that the tariff above sketched will be found to resemble the bill upon which the Democrats will take their stand as closely as the Saratoga platform resembled the President's message.

"THE TRUSTS."

The greatest evil which seems to be threatening our prosperity just at this present time is the "Trusts." The Standard Oil Trust was the first to organize to raise and control in all particulars the sale, production and refining of coal oil. Then come the Cotton Seed Trust and a long list of pools and "trusts" too numerous to mention. There is hardly a product of general consumption—food, light, heat, clothing, or anything else that is not controlled by a combination, and this fact is one of the very strongest arguments in favor of a free trade. Without a protective tariff such combinations would be impossible. It means that the manufacturers and dealers cannot see far enough ahead to know they are furnishing the club that must eventually break their own heads.—Public Herald.

The President's message is generally endorsed by not only the Democrats throughout the country, but a large number of Republicans speak words of praise for the solid views of the able statesman, and best President the country has ever had. The Washington Post says there is no more room for doubt. Hear it!

Every Democrat who believes in standing by his party in support of its principles and policy will fall into line at once. There is no other course to pursue, absolutely no other alternative action, unless he is willing to walk out into the cold and slam the door behind him.

Heretofore the Chicago platform has been the only Democratic law being upon the surplus, its reduction and prevention of its increase. The platform was ambiguous enough to admit of two constructions, and the high tariff Democrats insisted that they, and not the great majority of the party, were acting in strict accord with party opinions as expressed in the record.

The message of the President, recognized as he is everywhere as the leader of his party and its candidate in the mighty struggle of 1888, is the law for every Democrat, and so he must consider it. Of course, as a free citizen of the Republic, he may do as he pleases; but he has been served with notice that tariff reform is the great party issue, and if he does not conform to it he becomes, with his eyes wide open, a deserter and an outcast.

The Democrat who now dares or allies himself with the enemy knows just what he is doing and must expect a great deal of justice and very little mercy.
