TO DEMOCRATS.

The members of the Democratic Executive Committee of Franklin are hereby called to meet in Louisburg on Monday April 2, for the purpose of calling a convention to elect delegates to the State and Congressional conventions. The following is a list of the committee:

Dunns—Robert Griffin.
Harris[illegible]
Kreenans—F. P. Pearce.
Franklinton—B. W. Ballard.
Hayesville—J. H. Alford.
Sandy Creek—E. W. Cooke.
Gold Mine—D. J. Burnett.
Cedar Rock—G. W. Webb.
Cypress—J. G. Creekmore.
Louisburg—B. B. Massenburg.

Every member will please be present.

J. A. THOMAS,
Chm'n Dem. Ex-Com.

March 9, 1888.

THE State Sunday School Convention was largely attended at Raleigh last week.

A FARMER laughed when his prudent wife advised him not to smoke on a load of hay. He forked it home afterward with his hair singed, most of his clothing burned, and carrying in a sack the iron work of his wagon. Then his wife laughed.

THE Pittsboro Record, well and truly says that the remembrance of the outrages and oppression heaped upon our people by the Republican party, when in power in North Carolina, surely ought to deter any white man from now aiding that party to regain its control of the State.

CHIEF Justice Waite, of the United States Supreme Court, died on last Friday morning in Washington, D. C. He was appointed by Grant in 1874. And his career as a judge is complimented by all. His successor will be appointed by the President, and will be a Democrat.

PROF. W. H. MILLS, who has had long experience, says: "Our observation in the schoolroom has convinced us that if A is started to school at six and B at eight, when both are ten B will be very far ahead of A. Several times have we urged upon politicians the necessity of excluding from the public schools children under eight and over sixteen. The teachers, if delivered from the baby element and the courting characters, could do better work. Boys and girls who fail to learn what is taught in public schools in eight years will as well go to work."

WE DO not believe in changing men as soon as they learn their business and can be of service to the people. The science of government is the most difficult of all sciences, and no man can master it in a few short years. Morgan, Colquitt, Colquitt, Lawson, Vance, Ransom, Jarvis, and Davie, let them stay, and give the country the benefit of their wisdom and experience.—Wadesboro Messenger.

You are correct Bro. Messenger. The State of North Carolina should keep Ransom, Vance, Jarvis in the Senate as long as they both live. This is the way the North has been benefitted, and is now able to boast of so many big men. When the Northern States put a good man in they keep him in, as long as he remains true.

THE Game, Fish and Oyster fair at Newberne was a grand success! From some who were present, we learn that it was one of the most interesting fairs ever attended. The Journal gave a very full account, but we have room for only the following:

Well, New Berne has had a Fair. It was the first exhibit of the kind ever held here, and although gotten up in short notice and in the face of many discouragements and difficulties, it was completely successful in every particular, financially and otherwise. We were satisfied this would be the result when once the people became interested enough to make the effort. All have done their work well and all have reason to be proud of the success we have attained.

DEMOCRATIC DIVERSITY CONVENTION.

A convention of the Democratic party of the fourth Congressional district will be held at Raleigh, on May 29th, next, to nominate a candidate for Congress, a candidate for district elector, to elect two delegates to the National Democratic Convention and for other purposes. By order of the executive committee.

CHM'N executive committee.

ONE PLAIN TRUTH.

There is one plain unvarnished fact that no honest and truthful man will attempt to gainsay. That is: in 1870 there were mountains of debt piled up in the towns, in the counties and in the State. There was stagnation; all confidence was destroyed; the people were depressed; all business enterprises hung fire; taxes were enormous; extravagance ran riot, and ruin stared the tax-payers in the face. All this resulted from radical supremacy and their deeds. For twelve years the Democracy have had control, and the contrast between North Carolina in 1888 and in 1867 or 1870, is marvellous to behold. The throb of industry beats strongly in the great North Carolina heart. The busy hum of machinery is heard from centre to circumference. The people are active, eager, enterprising. Hope, confidence, courage fill the soul. A great industrial awakening pervades the State. North Carolina is shooting ahead. Her schools, closed under radical rule, are now open and filled with youth burning for fame and thirsting for knowledge. The credit of North Carolina is excellent, her good name is now restored. Public charities flourish. State taxes are light, compared with the dark era and all promises well under a continuance of Democratic control. Will the white people allow the blacks to get control again? Shall they supinely permit ruin to visit again the fair fields of the State, to blight and destroy? See to it them that the campaign is intensely active, intensely earnest. Resolve to win, and then act.—Wilmington Star.

And we are not expected to say "1868," or "nigger." We are not to draw a comparison between the bribery, corruption and stagnation of 1868 and the progress, ponds and prosperity that have come in the State since 1876. How can we show the people the danger of going back to Republican rule, unless we can point out the abuses allowed and the corruption originated and winked at during the only period that party had control of the State?

How can we judge the future except by the past? How can we form intelligent judgment unless we know with what the past afflicted us? It is necessary for us to continually recur to the days when Republicans dominated. And the oftener and the more vividly the dark lines of the dark picture can be brought out, the more thorough will be the disgust with which we shun any attempt to put again in power the party that blotted so indelibly our fair fame. Yes, we will call to mind the one plain truth.—Durham Plant.

OBITUARY.

William Richmond King, M. D.

The subject of this short sketch was born in the town of Louisburg, N. C., Nov. 10, 1814, at the present Shaw residence. His parents were Joel G. and Martha P. King. The only educational advantages that he had were those offered by the different academies of his native county, but he thoroughly availed himself of these opportunities and thereby acquired the groundwork of an education upon which he industriously and perseveringly continued to build until his intellectual and moral worth was rounded into the perfect citizen gentleman and physician that he was. Being of an enquiring mind and in all things ever grasping for that article (immortal truth which never hurts any one) he chose medicine as his profession and launched out into the great field of medical science where he well balanced mind had full play and gratification. He graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania in the spring of 18[illegible] and returned to his native town where he practiced his profession conscientiously and successfully until his death which occurred March 6th 1888. Dr. King was an eminent physician of large practice and rich experience. It is to be regretted that he did not contribute to the columns of the medical journals, we record this proof of his modesty with deeper regret as that he was a man of remarkable energy and vigor of mind and body: the record therefore of his successful practice would have formed a valuable contribution to medical literature. As a physician Dr. King worked hard, was a constant student, was a most watchful and prudent medical counsellor and having [illegible] will long cherish the remembrance of his kindness and sympathy. He was the possessor of an analytical mind and his motto seemed to be prove all things and hold fast to that which is good. His mind was [illegible] useful information and therefore he was [illegible] interesting companion. [illegible] and was proved in the [illegible] desire for more and more [illegible] and benefit to others. [illegible] he was married to Miss [illegible] daughter of Dr. [illegible] of Louisburg, who survives him. [illegible] children, two sons and two daughters, all of whom are married and have families of their own. [illegible] he was buried to the [illegible] was conducted by the Rev. [illegible] Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of which he was a member.

An inquest has been held over the body of the child who was killed in the affray between John Bottoms and Noel Eatman, and Eatman has been placed under arrest. His wounds are such that he cannot be taken to jail and he is consequently being guarded at his home.

The "Advance" is pleased to hear from a number of Nash county gentlemen with whom we have talked, that the Democratic party of that good county are determined to "clean up" the Independents this year. The party can fully redeem the county if the Democrats will only work together.
